III.—SCIENTIFIC.

LECTURE NOTES ON HUMAN PHYSIOLOGY. For Science Students and Candidates for Examination. Fcap 8vo, 6d.

"Admirably adapted to the requirements of students in the Elementary stage of Animal Physiology of the Science Department Syllabus. I shall have great pleasure in cordially recommending it to the students of my classes."—A. W. GLOVER, Esq., F.G.S., &c., Science Lecturer, Science and Art Department.

"Will doubtless be found useful for students in science and candidates for examinations. The contents of its forty pages consist of apt definitions of terms connected with anatomy."—Durham Chronicle.

METALLOGRAPHY AS A SEPARATE SCIENCE; or, The Student's Handbook of Metals. Consisting of Notes on Fifty-five Metals, their Properties, History, Localities, and Uses. [A reprint of Contributions by the Author to various Magazines.] Dedicated by permission to the President, Council, and Fellows of the Edinburgh Geological Society. Crown 8vo, cloth, 3s. 6d.

"We did not know there was any room for another work on Metallurgy, but an examination of the present volume has convinced us that Mr. Blyth may reckon on a considerable amount of favour being extended to his convenient handbook. It presents a great deal of desirable information in a condensed and accessible form."

Civilian, the Accredited Organ of the Civil Service.

"This is a reprint from magazines, issued as a student's handbook. It is based on notes taken originally for the writer's own private use; but the book is all the more valuable on that account, as it is not a mere made-up compilation from other books. . . . It contains much that other elementary treatises want."—Builder.

"An excellent handbook for students."—Architect.

"A popular account of the metals. . . . The information given is accurate. . . . As a guide in the laboratory it will be useful to beginners."—Gardener's Chronicle.

"The book contains facts not stated in most chemical works."

Popular Science Review.

"This is designed as an elementary work for the use of schools and science classes, and consists of notes on fifty-five metals, their various properties, their history, the localities in which they are found, and the principal uses to which they are applied. This brief indication of its contents will serve to indicate its valuable character, and no doubt it will be found useful and well adapted for the purposes which it is intended to serve. Interest is also combined with instruction, and a glossary of technicalities and an alphabetical index are appended."—Glasgow Daily Mail.

"In the work before us we have a succinct and clear account of fifty-five metals, their 'properties, history, localities, and uses.' As an elementary treatise on a science not very much studied, it will be found very useful to the class of students for whom it is intended. The glossary of technicalities at the end is also a good feature, and adds much to the value of the work."—Educational Times.

IV.—BIOGRAPHICAL, HISTORICAL, TOPOGRAPHICAL, &c.

JOHN HUSS, THE BOHEMIAN REFORMER. A Lecture delivered at Oxford to the St. Aldate's Communicants' Association. Crown 8vo, 1s.

THE HISTORY OF BEDFORD AND VISITOR'S GUIDE. Illustrated with Photographs and Engravings. 318 pages, demy 8vo, cloth, extra gilt, bevelled edges, 5s.

May be had of SHRIMPTON & SON, Broad Street, Oxford.

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF SIR WILLIAM HARPUR, Knight, Founder of the Bedford Schools, and Lord Mayor of London in 1561. A Lecture delivered March 24, 1864, to a Young Men's Association in Sir William Harpur's native town. Crown 8vo, cloth, 1s.

"Your account of Sir W. Harpur is very interesting."—SYLV. URBAN., Editor of the Gentleman's Magazine, March 19th, 1866.

JOHN BUNYAN AND HIS CHURCH at Bedford. An Authentic Historical Account from the Foundation of the Church to the Present Time. Crown 8vo, cloth, 1s. 6d.

"We are much pleased with both books (this, and the Lecture on Sir William Harpur)."—Bedfordshire Express.

THE EPISTLES OF JOHN BUNYAN AND JOHN GIFFORD, with Lives of "The Dreamer" and his "Evangelist." (Nearly ready.)

A MEMOIR OF JOHN JUKES, Pastor of Bunyan's Church. Crown 8vo, cloth, 1s. 6d.

A MEMOIR OF JOSEPH JAMES INSULL, Co-Pastor of Bunyan's Church. Third Edition. Crown 8vo, cloth, 1s.

"A very interesting memoir. . . . Will be highly treasured."

Cambridge Independent Press.

"A concise little memoir. . . . The memoir is short, but sufficient to continue to posterity the remembrance of a good and useful man."—Hertfordshire Express.

"A justly-drawn picture."—Luton Advertiser.

"We have much pleasure in commending it."—Dunstable Chronicle.

"Mr. Blyth has paid an earnest tribute to the memory of the young pastor."

Christian World.

BURT'S DIRECTORY AND HISTORY OF THE CHURCHES OF JOHN BUNYAN, John Howard the Philanthropist, John Wesley, &c., at Bedford. Crown 8vo, cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

THE STRANGER'S GUIDE TO THE BEDFORD SCHOOLS. Illustrated. Crown 8vo, cloth, 1s.

"A very perfect and a very readable book; and one which, we have no doubt, will meet with a large sale."—Leighton Buzzard Times and Woburn Gazette.

"Of a very useful character. . . . We recommend the book."—Bedfordshire Express.

"A succinct description. . . . Clearly written."—Boy's Miscellany and Paper.

"Full of educational information, and very agreeable."—Christian World.

"The world-wide celebrated schools of Bedford are described historically, &c., and full directions given how the benefits of these seminaries of learning may be obtained."—Baptist Messenger.

"Cannot fail to commend itself."—Bedfordshire Advertiser.

"A complete handbook. [The author] evidently possesses a thorough knowledge of the subject, and we have no doubt that the Guide will be found of great value."

Cambridge Independent Press.

"After a perusal of the book, we feel great pleasure in recommending it."

Dunstable Chronicle.

CARTER'S BEDFORD DIRECTORY AND HISTORY OF THE TOWN, its Ancient Churches, Chapels, Endowments, and Britannia Iron Works. Crown 8vo, 1s. 6d.

May be had of SHRIMPTON & SON, Broad Street, Oxford.

V.—OXFORD STUDENT'S GUIDES AND HELPS.

THE STUDENT'S GUIDE TO MATRICULATION, RESPONSIONS, and the Examination in Lieu of Responsions at the University of Oxford. 287 pages, crown 8vo, cloth, 5s.

SPECIAL EXERCISES FOR LATIN PROSE at "RESPONSIONS," consisting of all the passages set in "The Schools" during the past twenty years. Crown 8vo, 1s.; cloth, interleaved, 2s.

SPECIAL EXERCISES FOR LATIN PROSE at "MODERATIONS," Pass and Class. Consisting of all the passages set in "The Schools" during the past eighteen years. Crown 8vo, 1s.; cloth, interleaved, 2s.

THE OXFORD LOGIC CHART. Notes and Hints, prepared expressly for "Moderations," and divided into Twenty-four Sections or Lessons. The Student is advised to prepare and write out, entirely from memory, one section each morning, and one each night. By this means the main Points of Logic may be mastered in a fortnight. 1s.

THE OXFORD HANDBOOK OF LOGIC, Deductive and Inductive. Specially adapted for the Use of Candidates for Moderations at Oxford. Second Edition. Revised and considerably enlarged. 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d.

"This is a little handbook of Definitions, Proofs, Explanations, Examples, &c., and drawn up to serve as an aid in mastering the memory work of Logic. The work is admirably done, and must prove of the greatest service to those students who are making their way through a logical course. It seems to have been constructed with special reference to the logical treatises of Jevons and Fowler, but it may be used, to advantage, with any other system. The value of the work is enhanced by a series of exercises compiled from questions set at the University examinations."—Schoolmaster.

"Excellent handbook."—Literary World.

"The object of the author is to point out to the student those main points of Logic, without a thorough knowledge of which no success can be either attained or even expected. He travels over the whole ground, from the simplest definition to the most abstruse exercise, explaining fully and yet so tersely that the whole can be easily retained in the student's memory."—Durham Chronicle.

QUESTIONS AND EXERCISES IN ADVANCED LOGIC for Candidates for Honours at Moderations. Selected and arranged from the Papers set at the Oxford Examinations. Crown 8vo, 1s. 6d.

THE UNDERGRADUATE'S GUIDE TO UNSEEN TRANSLATIONS from Greek and Latin Literature. Crown 8vo, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.

THE UNDERGRADUATE'S GUIDE TO THE HOLY GOSPELS. Prepared entirely from the Papers given at Oxford to Candidates for Moderations. Crown 8vo, 1s. 6d.

THE UNDERGRADUATE'S GUIDE TO THE RUDIMENTS OF FAITH AND RELIGION. Crown 8vo, 1s. 6d.

May be had of SHRIMPTON & SON, Broad Street, Oxford.

Sketch of the History of Bedford.

BEDFORD, the county town of Bedfordshire, is situated in the Archdeaconry of Bedford, Diocese of Ely, and Norfolk Circuit. It is divided into five parishes—St. Paul's, St. Peter's, St. Mary's, St. John's, and St. Cuthbert's. The parish of St. Paul has recently been divided into two Ecclesiastical Divisions—St. Paul's and that of Holy Trinity. The Trinity Church is a Chapel of Ease to St. Paul's. The principal street in Bedford is almost a mile long. This street is well paved and lighted with gas, and much has been done during the last few years to enlarge and improve the appearance of its shops. There are a great many private families residing here, who have been attracted by the advantages arising from the great public endowments which Bedford possesses, especially the great benefits and economy in education which the noble and celebrated Harpur Schools afford. The principal manufactures carried on here are tillage implements, straw plait, and pillow lace. The manufacture of pillow lace is carried on to a great extent, and Bedfordshire pillow lace has a world-wide celebrity. A straw hat and bonnet manufactory has also been established. The Britannia Iron Works of Messrs. J. and F. Howard, which were commenced in 1857 and completed in 1859, cannot be surpassed in utility and beauty of design. Messrs. E. Page and Co., Victoria Iron Works, are also very extensive manufacturers of various agricultural implements and machinery.

Bedford is generally considered as a neat, clean, and gradually increasing, and, as far as its appearance is concerned, a rapidly improving borough and market town. It contains 2200 acres. Annual rain-fall 16 inches. It is the county town of Bedfordshire, and is situated in the Archdeaconry of Bedford, Diocese of Ely, and Norfolk Circuit, it is 50 miles distant (N.N.W.) from London by the Midland Railway, or 63 miles via the London and North Western, and pleasantly situated upon the river Ouse, which flows nearly through its centre from west to east. Pleasantly situated, did we say? Yes, its situation is indeed remarkably pleasant and agreeable; for, being placed on the margin of a large navigable river, occupying either of its banks to a considerable extent, and both sides of which are connected by a handsome modern bridge (about which we shall speak by and by)—these circumstances alone communicate a very pleasing and picturesque effect to its appearance. But it is not only pleasantly, but advantageously situated; for, since the railways running from London to Leicester, and from Oxford to Cambridge, cross each other at Bedford, it possesses a facility of communication with all parts of England, which, to the merchant, the traveller, and the gentleman, must naturally recommend it as an important and desirable locality. Camden describes the town as more eminent for its antiquity, and pleasant and healthful situation than for its beauty or extent. “It is as near as possible by road, midway between the two extremities of England—Cornwall and Northumberland; in the direct road between the two universities of Oxford and Cambridge; and about equal distant, and in a straight line drawn from, all the following places:—from Brighton to Doncaster, south to north: from Harwich to Worcester, east to west: from Bristol to Yarmouth, south-west and north-east: and from Dover to Liverpool, south-east and north-west:—thus standing like a star in the centre of them all; and surrounded, as with a zone, by the most important commercial and fashionable towns and cities in the kingdom. As a place of residence, its air is considered as very salubrious and healthful; and its water in general is naturally pure and wholesome. Provisions are good and moderate in price; its meat being considered as fine as any in the kingdom, and fruit and vegetables being usually abundant in supply. As a place of business, being advantageously situated, as well as the capital of the county, it naturally commands a certain and regular trade ; and all county business, meetings of societies, assizes, sessions, courts, assemblies, races, &c., being carried on in the town, it consequently attracts a regular influx of visitors, who in a great measure tend to keep it continually gay, lively, and interesting. Lying also in the midst of a fine and open sporting country, the number of gentry of that class, who are in the habit of visiting it, is occasionally very considerable ; which, added to its rich, important, and extensive public charities, renders it, for all classes of persons, one of the most desirable places of abode that probably can be found.”* Not that as a town it has, as yet, attained to that marked superiority, either of general architecture, consequence, or enterprize, at which it is excellently calculated to arrive ; but possessing, as it does, the elements of all, in a population, industrious, intelligent, and wealthy ; and with a great, popular, and munificent benefaction, which must necessarily call forth the noblest energies of the mind ; the natural course of these circumstances will tend rapidly to raise it, so that ere long it will probably vie with some of the proudest cities in the world.

As regards the antiquity of Bedford, its history, like that of many other towns of an early and uncultivated period, seems to be involved in much uncertainty. Some assert that its ancient British name was Lettidur or Lettuydur, which signifies beds, lodgings, or inns, on a ford, while on the other hand some have considered this to be only a modern forgery. Again, Bedford has been supposed by some to be a Roman town—the Lactodurum of Antoninus. This, however, rests on a very slender foundation, for Camden has given two reasons for not assenting to the identity of Lactodurum and Bedford—first, “its not being situated on a Roman way ;” and secondly, “no Roman coins having been dug up here.” No one however, has ever ventured to dispute the identity of this town and the Saxon Bedicanford, afterwards called Bedanford, which names signify “The Fortress on the Ford” or river, and which appear to have been expressive and appropriate appellations, and were no doubt derived from its situation at the ancient ford on the river Ouse. In Doomsday Book it is spelt Bedeford. "About the Norman revolution we find the name of the town changed from BEDANFORD into that of BEDEFORD; but whether it was so changed long before that period does not positively appear, as this word seems to be as purely Saxon as the original from which it may be supposed to be derived. The Saxon word Bede signifies a prayer; it is therefore not improbable (as Florilegus informs us that a chapel stood formerly on the margin of the river, in which were deposited the remains of Offa the famous Mercian king, which was afterwards swept away by an extraordinary flood) that this name of Bedeford originated from the chapel; as it was not unfrequently the case, previous to the erection of bridges, for chapels to be erected in such places, in which persons might offer their prayers and oblations for the safe passage of the river.* This practice also continued long afterwards; and we find, subsequent to the erection of Bedford Bridge, a chapel standing on it dedicated to St. Thomas the Apostle, which probably was used for an exactly similar purpose."

The first authentic mention of it in history occurs in the Saxon Chronicle, of the year 571, as follows:—"This year Cuthwulf fought against the Britons at Bedicanford, and took four towns—Lygeanburg† and Eglesburg‡ and Bennington§ and Egonesham|| And in the very same year he died." According to Samuel Lewis, in his "Topographical Dictionary of England," the Britons, in this battle, were defeated by the West Saxons, under the command of Cuthwulf, brother of Ceawlin, third king of Wessex, with considerable loss.

The date of this encounter has therefore proved this town to be very ancient, and has given to it a highly respectable antiquity, which is not exceeded by many other places. The Saxons, about this period, were beginning to extend their conquests over Britain, six kingdoms being now founded, the last portion of the country which fell into their hands comprehended this county, and was established as the kingdom of Mercia, about twenty years afterwards. "No further mention occurs for 200 years. About the year 753, a battle was fought between Cuthred king of the East Angles, and Ethelbald, king of Mercia, which by one chronicler of note, Brompton, is placed at Bedford. But Ingulphus, Abbot of Croyland, who lived much earlier (1109, Brompton, 1330), and the Saxon Chronicle and other authorities, place it at Beorgford, now Burford in Oxfordshire; and this is the generally received reading. The account of this battle is given in very good Latin, and with much appearance of good feeling on the part of the author."—Parry.

* Hence the name of Alms or Bedehouses, in which prayers were offered for the founders.

† Considered by some to be Leighton Buzzard, by others (among whom is Ingram) as Lenbury.

Bedford, from some cause or other, seems to have occupied a very high position in the estimation of Offa, the celebrated king of Mercia. He designed for the monastery here several gifts in reversion, which it appears, by an extract from the proceedings of a council, taken from Sir Henry Spelmans' Concilia, vol. I, p. 379, they never received.

II. Provincial Council of Clovesho

Eirene Augustus, Emperor of Rome, Leo iii. Pope.

Cuthred, King of Kent, Athelard, Archbishop.

"At a council held at Clovesho, by Cenulf, king of Mercia, Athelard, Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishops, Commanders, Abbots, of the same province, enquiry was made concerning the monastery of Cotham, which Offa had taken from Cenulf, but which ought now to be restored to the metropolitan church of St. Saviour's. But then it pleased me, Athelard, by the grace of God, Archbishop, and the Abbes Cynedrytha, who at that time presided over the above-named monastery, and the Elders from either side of Kent, viz: those who were assembled here, from Bedford inasmuch as Cynedrytha herself should give to me in the county of Kent, for the exchange of the before-mentioned monastery, the land of one hundred and ten mansions, sixty cassatorum (complete—DU CANGE) in the place which is called Tenaham, but in the third place, which is called Creges Ænnelina, twenty; namely all the lands which King Offa caused to be assigned to her during her life, and her heirs after her; and after the course of their lives ordered to be assigned to the church, which is situated at Bedford."

Offa's regard for Bedford was also shown in his desire to be buried here, even in preference to his newly-erected Abbey of St. Albans. He died in 784 at Offley, in Hertfordshire, and, according to his wish, was brought to Bedford to be interred.

King Edward, son of Alfred, visited our town in the year 919, as it appears from the following extract from the Saxon Chronicle for that year:—"This year came King Edward with his army to Bedanford, before Matin-mass, and received that city in surrender, and to him returned nearly all the Burgesses who had before obeyed him, and having staid there four weeks he ordered a fortification to be erected on the south side of the river before he departed thence." It was he who annexed a village on the south side of the river, called Milksgate, which now forms part of the town of Bedford.

From the Saxon Chronicle, dated 921, we learn that:—"At the same time the Pagans from Huntandune and the East Angles having gone out, built that fortification at Temesford, which they inhabited and strengthened, for they had left the other at Huntingdon, thinking that from this (inde) by battle and contest they should hereafter recover a great portion of the land. They advanced, after that, till they came to Bedanford, but the men who were within came out to meet them, and fought with them, put to flight, and killed a good great part of them."

Bedford is mentioned no more in the Saxon Chronicle till the year 970, when, alluding to the Monastery here, it states that—"This year died the Archbishop Oskytel, who, at first had been consecrated diocesan bishop of Dorkeceastre* and afterwards, by the consent of King Edward and his nobles (or Council, according to Ingram), he was consecrated Archbishop of Eouerwic† He was 22 years (translated winters by Ingram) bishop, and died on the night of All Hallow-mas, 10 nights before Martin-mas, at Tame, And the abbot Thurkytel, his relation, conveyed the bishop's body to Bedanford, because he himself was the Abbot there at that time."

*Dorchester, in Oxfordshire, whence the see was transferred to Lincoln in 1070, by St. Remigius of Fischamp.

In 1010 our town seems to have been of such importance as to attract the devastating inroads of the Danes, who, having succeeded in making frequent and fatal invasions into every part of the kingdom, "burned Theodford (Thetford) and Grantabrycge (Cambridge); and afterwards they advanced south to the Thames, and the horsemen went to meet the ships (which had just been built by the Saxons); and, afterwards, having got out to the west, they went to Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire, and thence along the Use, until they came to Bedanford, from thence to Temesanford, burning whatever places they came to."

In 1016 another expedition was made by Canute, through Buckinghamshire into Bedfordshire, and thence to Huntingdon, Lincoln, &c.

In the reign of William II, Bedford Castle was erected by Pain (or Paganus) de Beauchamp, to whom the king had given several manors in Bedfordshire and Buckinghamshire, and upon whom he had conferred the title of Baron. The first siege that this castle sustained was in the year 1137, when Milo de Beauchamp, and his brother, hearing that King Stephen had bestowed their sister in marriage together with the whole Barony of Bedford, which had belonged to Simon de Beauchamp, their father, unto Hugh Pauper, brother to the Earl of Leicester, garrisoned Bedford Castle, which was then a fort of great strength, environed with a mighty rampier of earth, and a high wall, within which was an impregnable tower. The King, not being able to get it by assault, brought his army before it on Christmas Eve, and after a long and hard siege obtained it by surrender through the mediation of his brother, Henry de Blois, Bishop of Winchester: Milo de Beauchamp and his soldiers marching out on honourable terms. This is according to Dugdale's account. Camden, however, on the contrary, states that Stephen took the castle with great slaughter.

In 1190, the office of Governor of the Castle of Bedford was sold to Simon de Beauchamp for 100*l*.

In 1215, William de Beauchamp, who at that time possessed the Barony of Bedford, joined the insurgent barons against King John, in the support of the glorious struggle for Magna Charta. The Royal partizans, hearing that William de Beauchamp had received the insurgent rebels as friends in Bedford Castle, besieged it, and, after holding it for seven days without receiving relief, they surrendered it. After this the castle was granted to Fawkes de Brent (or more properly Falcs de Breaute) as a reward for his services ; who, it is stated, pulled down the Collegiate Church of St. Paul, Bedford, in order to enlarge and fortify his castle. This he seems to have done by order of the king, for a charter of the first of Henry III. grants the church of Tindene to the Monks of Newenham, as a compensation for his father having ordered St. Paul's Church to be pulled down to fortify the castle. An abbess of Elstow, however, hearing of the sacrilege, took the sword out of that saint's image, and would not replace it until justice had overtaken the offender.

In 1224, Falcs had no less than thirty-five actions at law against him at one time for violently displacing landholders and seizing their possessions. He seems to have been a brutal and rapacious person, and, presuming on the almost impregnable strength of the castle, now set all law at defiance, and began to seize the estates and take away the goods of his weak neighbours without consideration or mercy. For some of these offences he was fined 3000*l*. by the King's Justiciaries Itinerant at Dunstable ; but, in contempt, sent a body of soldiers, seized Henry de Braidbrock, the chief judge, and brought him to Bedford Castle, where he was kept a close prisoner with great severity. This so displeased King Henry III. that he himself besieged the castle in person, but it was not, as Matthiason says, "until sixty days of the most obstinate defence against all the machinery which the art of war could then produce, and having the outer and second ramparts carried by assault, that he was induced to surrender ; in the terms of which his life was to be shared by the king, on condition of giving various other castles into the hands of the monarch, and suffering the pain of banishment for life. His brother, who had violently seized the judge, was immediately hanged, with various others who were implicated in the rebellion. The greater part of the fortifications were demolished, the stones being used in the building of the bridge, and the remaining part restored to the possession of William de Beauchamp." The site of the castle, with the Swan Hotel, now belongs to His Grace the Duke of Bedford.

We said it was Pain de Beauchamp who erected Bedford Castle: it was his wife, Roisa, who founded that rich and extensive Monastery of Newnham, which formerly stood on the same side of the river as the castle, about a mile below Bedford. It was built in 1165 for Black or Regular Canons. There are now no remains of this building except the walls, but from these we can form no idea of the building. It appears, however, to have been endowed with large possessions, for we find that in the year 1291, when Pope Nicholas IV. taxed the English monasteries, the valuation of Newnham was 89*l.* 11*s.* 8½*d.*, which was considered a very large income in those days. Even the Priory Church (in which were interred the remains of one of the wives of Lord Latimer, and one of Edward Clynton, Esq., who married a Duchess of Norfolk) has long since been demolished.

About the year 1200, Simon Barescot (or Basket), Alderman of Bedford, founded the Cauldwell Priory, about a quarter of a mile west of Bedford, on the south bank of the Ouse, for the brethren of the order of the Holy Cross or Holy Sepulchre. The site was given by Robert de Houghton, and the priory was dedicated to the Virgin Mary. In course of time the order of the Holy Sepulchre falling to decay, it seems to have been occupied by Austin Canons; for, at the time of its suppression by Henry VIII., it was stated to be a priory of the last order, and dedicated to St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist. Its clear income was stated to be 109*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.*

About 1290, Mabel de Pateshull, Lady of Bletnesho (now Bletsoe), whose family was connected by marriage with the Beauchamps, founded the Priory which formerly stood on the north-west of Bedford, for the Franciscan or Grey Friars. Only a very imperfect idea can one form from its present appearance, of the sanctity and great estimation in which the priory was held. The revenues of this monastery, when suppressed, were estimated only at 3*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, clear annual value. The endowment was therefore by no means rich ; and it was chiefly dependent on the prebends of Bedford and Caldwell Priory. On the south side of the church, which is said to have been large and handsome, the Foundress was interred in an arched tomb, in the middle. In front of the high altar Queen Eleanor was buried under a flat stone, on which was a crowned (?) brass image ; on the north side, one of the Lords Mowbray, a descendant of the Beauchamps, was interred ; and in the choir, Richard Hastings, Chamberlain to King Edward III.

The Elstow Abbey, the ruins of which stand south-west of Bedford, about a mile distant, formerly an Abbey of Benedictine nuns, was founded by Juditha, Countess of Huntingdon (the wife of Waltheof, Earl of Huntingdon), in the reign of her uncle William the Conqueror, and dedicated to the Holy Trinity, the Virgin Mary, and St. Helena, the mother of Constantine the Great, in honor of whom it was first called Helenstow Abbey. Notwithstanding the considerable rights and possessions which it held, it was endowed by Malcolm, King of Scotland, and Earl of Huntingdon, with the third penny of certain tolls collected from the town of Bedford. The Barony of Bedford, it appears from Matthiason, was about this time held feudatory to the Earldom of Huntingdon. At the dissolution the revenues of this Abbey (we are told by Cooke) were valued at 284*l.* 12*s.* 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. Matthiason states that its income was estimated at 325*l.* 1*s.* 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ d.

POPULATION OF THE TOWN.

The population of this town has very much increased of late years, as may be seen from the following figures. In 1801 it was 3,948 ; 1811, 4,605 ; 1821, 5,466 ; 1831, 6,959 ; 1841, 9,178 ; 1851, 11,693 ; 1861 (the last return) 13,412 ; The present number of inhabitants is about 15,000. The number of houses in 1851 was 2,472 ; 1861, 2,934. Number of males in 1851, 5,402 ; Females, 6,291 ; Males in 1861, 6,223 ; Females, 7,189.

The following Table shows the number of Residents in each Parish, in the years 1851 and 1861, with the increase during the ten years :—

THE BOROUGH AND ITS REPRESENTATION.

Bedford is a very ancient Borough and Corporation by prescription, its first charter on record being that of Henry II. His son Richard, who succeeded him as king, confirmed their mercantile guild and ancient privileges ; and by him new privileges and immunities were granted, similar to those enjoyed by the burgesses of Oxford. The Borough has returned two representatives to the House of Commons since the twenty-third year of Edward I.'s reign. But in the reign of King James II. the mayor and aldermen were removed from their respective offices by royal mandate, for having neglected to elect two Burgesses to serve in Parliament : because of this neglect the members were chosen by his majesty's ministers. In the year 1690, the right of election was determined to be in the freemen burgesses (whether resident or not), and inhabitants (householders not receiving alms) ; but by an act of the 2nd of William IV. cap. 45, the former non-resident electors, except within seven miles, have been disfranchised, but the constituency has not otherwise been altered, nor have the limits of the borough (containing 2164 acres) undergone any change. At the first general election, under the above mentioned act, the number of 10*l.* householders registered was 975, and of freemen 579, of whom 961 polled. The present number of electors (including freemen) is about 1140.

THE CHURCHES OF BEDFORD.

The Church of St. Paul.

This very ancient and fine old edifice, which is a spacious and handsome Gothic structure of the fifteenth century, is the principal church in the town. History informs us that there was, long before the Norman Conquest, a collegiate church in Bedford, dedicated to St. Paul; and Parry tells us that the "Canonici de Bedforde" are mentioned in Doomesday Book next to the "Canonici de Lundun," but whether it stood on or near the spot occupied by the present church, cannot now be ascertained. Turner states that it does not stand upon the same site as the former; he evidently believed that the church was adjacent to the castle. But the general opinion maintained by those who have investigated the subject is that the old church did stand, or at least might have stood, in St. Paul's Square. Faukes no doubt wanted the materials, and not the site of the church.

The south chancel contains an altar tomb erected to the memory of Sir William Harpur, the founder of the Bedford Schools, with the effigies of himself and his last wife. The floor of the north chancel is nearly paved with the tombs of vicars of the church, some of the inscriptions upon which are very elegant. The tower contains a fine peal of eight bells, the tenor bell weighing 28 cwt.

Hours of Divine Service:—Sundays, 11 a.m., 3, and 6.30 p.m. Daily Service at 10.30 a.m. Wednesday evenings, 7.30. Rev. M. F. Sadler, M.A., Prebendary of Wells, vicar. Organist, Mr. Robert Rose.

The Church of Holy Trinity,

The Trinity Church was opened in 1841. It is a very neat building, and is a Chapel of Ease belonging to St. Paul's from which it was separated for ecclesiastical purposes in 1860. The tower, which stands at the north, contains the clock and only one bell. The interior of this church is very elegant: the gallery occupies the east, north, and west sides; the northern portion contains the organ. The communion table is situated at the north side of the church.

Hours of Divine Service:—Sundays, 11 a.m., 3 and 6.30 p.m.; Wednesday, 10.30 a.m.; Friday, 7 p.m. Lecture at the School Room, Roise street, on Wednesdays and Fridays, at 7 p.m.; Rev. R. W. Fitzpatrick, M.A. incumbent; Rev. Arthur Kaye, curate; Mr. P. H. Diemer, M.R.A.M., organist.

The Church of St. Peter.

This ancient edifice, though certainly inferior in architecture to St. Paul's, is worthy of notice, particularly as it retains a fine Saxon arch at the south entrance. Its low square tower, which stands between the church and the chancel, is rather too massive for the size of the building; it contains the clock and five small bells: the lower part of the tower is used as part of the church. The chancel contains a mural tablet to the memory of Susanna, the wife of Thomas Knight, who died in the year 1754, about nineteen years of age, with a poetical inscription relating to her beauty and virtues. The octagonal font is one of considerable antiquity, in a state of rather good preservation. It has very handsome tracery of two kinds of roses, which, as some suppose, represented the Houses of York and Lancaster. There are also roses in lozenges, quatrefoils, and the arms of the Hazeldines, of Goldington, a Cross fleury. The windows in the chancel are tastefully decorated with stained glass. The east window contains Ecce Homo (by Guido) St. Peter, the Supper at Emmaus, and the Scourging of Christ. It likewise contains an ancient figure of a chalice with the Host, taken from the ruins at Radwell Hall. On the north side of the chancel there is a small lancette window, containing St. Paul, a Porticullis, an Eagle and Child, a Falcon, the Arms of the Isle of Man, and other designs.

During the last twenty-two years this church has been enlarged twice: it was enlarged in 1846, at the cost of 1100*l.*; and in 1859 at 700*l.*

Hours of Divine Service:—Sundays, 11 a.m. and 3, and 6.30 p.m. Rev. S. Rolleston, rector; Mr. Rose, organist.

The Church of St. Mary.

The parish of St. Mary was inclosed by an Act of Parliament passed in 1797, when an allotment of land was made to the rector in lieu of tithes. The total amount of land, which then belonged to this parish, lying in open fields, was computed at 400 acres: the rector of St. John's was entitled to the tithes of about twelve acres, for which an allotment was also made. St. Mary's Church is in the perpendicular style of architecture. Its tower, an old Norman structure, containing six small musical bells and a clock with chimes, stands between the nave and chancel, supported on arches. The north transept is of the same date. There is a gallery at the west end, in which the boy's school is seated. The organ is on the floor at the east end of the north aisle. On the floor of the nave is the brass effigy of Robert Hawes, Alderman, and thrice Mayor of Bedford, dressed in his robes: it bears the date of 1627. The principal monuments in the chancel are those of Dr. Giles Thorne, rector of this church and St. Peter's,* Archdeacon of Buckingham, and chaplain to Charles II.; Rev. William Cummings; and the Rev. William Done, Archdeacon of Bedford, and Prebend of Lincoln. A new south aisle was added in 1853.

A new parochial school has recently been erected on a site presented by the rector, formerly a portion of the churchyard of St. Peter Dunstable. The school is dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin and St. Peter Dunstable.

* St. Peter Dunstable:—Before the year 1400, it was a separate parish; it was afterwards consolidated with St. Mary's, the service being performed at each on alternate weeks, and the books and ornaments removed from one to the other. In 1545, the parishioners were permitted by Sir Edward North, Chancellor of the Augmentations, to pull down St. Peter's Church, on condition of applying the materials for the repair of St. Mary's (to which they had lately added a new aisle), in repairing the bridge and mending the streets."—PARRY.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 11 a.m., 3 and 6.30 p.m. Rev. T. Bouwens, rector ; Rev. C. Brereton, curates. Miss H. W. Barker, organist.

The Church of St. Cuthbert.

This cruciform structure is said to have been originally founded by King Offa, about A.D. 772. The former building (according to Parry) was a small and mean structure, having a low nave and chancel under one roof, and a wooden turret in the centre, with a clock and bell. Its interior was extremely humble, and contained nothing remarkable, except the remains of a Saxon font. The present edifice, which is a very good specimen of the Anglo-Norman and Latin crucifix styles of architecture, with open seats, was erected on the site of the above mentioned structure, and was consecrated on the 8th of July, in 1847, by the Bishop of Ely. It cost 2000 guineas, and held 450 persons. The communion plate was given by the late Thomas Wooldridge, Esq., and the organ, the books for the reading desk and communion service, as well as the painted window, were presented by gentlemen living in the neighbourhood.

The enlargement of the church consists of north and south aisle, the latter, on account of its close proximity to the street, having an apsidal termination to the west, in which the font is placed. The effect of this, both internally and externally, is very pleasing. Each aisle opens to the nave by two wide arches, resting upon slight granite columns of great strength. The columns, which abut on the north-west and south-west angles of the tower, being detached from the solid piers supporting it, the obstruction to sight and sound usually occurring in the case of a central tower is much diminished ; and the skill exercised by Mr. Penrose, in making the additional space available for the purposes of public worship, is recognised by every one who was acquainted with the church in its original form. The cost of the enlargement, together with a new organ built by Mr. Hadfield, Hackney-road, London, amounted to between 1600*l.* and 1700*l.*

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m. ; Wednesdays, during Lent, at 7 p.m., in the church. Rev. S. R. Waller, M.A., rector.

The Church of St. John.

The ancient monastic institution, known as "The Church and Hospital of St. John (the Baptist)," is said to have been founded in the tenth century by Robert de Parys, and endowed for a master and two or more co-brethren, or priests, who were to pray for the founder's soul. Matthiason tells us that "the earliest date of this institution is 980; but that of the register of Lincoln being evidently a mistake or interpolation (A.D. Millo Nono Centesimo LXXX), a great deal of difference has arisen relative to its real date. It is most probable that the different dates refer to separate endowments; and that about the year 1820, which Lysons gives for its origin, it was considerably enlarged for the reception and support of the poor freemen of Bedford, by the munificence of one of the St. John family; and that previous to that period it was merely a Bede-house or oratory; the conditions of its enlargement being that the inmates were to pray for the soul of this benefactor, John St. John, his family, and descendants. From this provision for the poor freemen of the town, it would appear that from this period the hospital was under the protection of the Corporation, as the church and hospital had been united long before the Reformation, about which time an attempt was made to deprive it of its ancient character, and to seize the church as parochial into the king's hands. On this occasion, according to a MS. in the British Museum, it sets forth its title and claim to be exempted from confiscation; showing that for 400 years it had been an hospital, and the church used as the hospital church; that it had a common seal of which no other church was possessed; and that many of its donations and legacies had been made prior to Edward the First. This date established its existence previous to the endowment of the St. Johns; it is therefore probable that the date of 980 is the correct one. An ancient manuscript is also mentioned, prescribing the 'co-piers' to be of the order of St. Augustine, and alms-men to wear red crosses.”

The church has only one aisle, with pews on each side, about the middle of which, on one side, stands the pulpit, and on the other, the desk. It has likewise a small open chancel at the east end; and a neat tower of comparatively large dimensions at the west end. The entire length of the church from east to west, is 117 feet: the height of the tower is 67 feet. The tower contains only one bell, towards the purchase of which the Duke of Bedford presented the parish with a very liberal subscription, in 1826. The windows of the church are all on the south side, excepting that of the chancel: they are plain, but light in their appearance; and the latter is large and fine for the size of the church. The living is a rectory in the gift of the Corporation.

Hours of divine service.—Sundays, 11 a.m., and 6.30 p.m., Rev. Henry Pearse, M.A., rector.

THE CHAPELS OF BEDFORD.

Bunyan Meeting, Mill Street.

From the records of the church, which has, for so many years past, assembled in this chapel, it appears that the Church was first formed by John Grew, John Eston, Anthony Harrington, and nine others, who, “dissatisfied with the superstitions and persecuting practices of the Prelates in that day, were earnestly concerned to edify themselves and propagate the truth.” Amongst these was the celebrated John Gifford, who was chosen to be their pastor, or elder, in 1650, but died Sept. 21st, 1656. It was by this remarkable man that a communion was formed, which was to be open to all believers, without any restriction as to name or sect: such is the constitution of the church at the present day, He was succeeded by Mr. Burton, who, like Mr. Gifford, was a baptist, but he died in June or July, 1660. It appears that during his time, Bunyan was a deacon of the church, for at a meeting held by it on June 27, 1657, this office was transferred from him to John Fernie, because he could no longer discharge its duties aright, in consequence of his being much employed in preaching. In November, 1660, Bunyan's long imprisonment commenced.

In October, 1663, the Rev. Samuel Fenn and the Rev. Benjamin Whiteman, both of whom were members of the church, and of the baptist denomination, were ordained joint pastors.

In the year 1672, John Bunyan, brazier, and his friends, purchased a dilapidated "Barn" with a piece of ground adjoining it, somewhere near the site of the present chapel, of Josiah Ruffhead, for 50*l*. "This barn," said the Rev. John Jukes, when preaching one of his last sermons in the Old Meeting before it was pulled down, "was doubtless the building for which the license was granted, and which was afterwards permanently occupied by this church as its place of meeting until the present structure was erected: it was in fact the real Bunyan Meeting." It is said to have been licensed (on the 9th of May, 1672,) to be a place for the use of such as did not conform to the Church of England, who were of the persuasion commonly called Congregational; license was also given on the same day to "John Bunyan" to be a teacher of the congregation allowed to worship in that place, or in any other, licensed according to the Royal Declaration. And these, it is supposed, were the first instances, in which such licenses had been given to any dissenter from the Established Church in this country. According to the stone, situated in the porch of the present building, exactly opposite to the large entrance, Whiteman, the colleague of Samuel Fenn, died in 1671. John Bunyan was appointed to occupy his place on the 21st of October of that year. From the time of his release from prison, until his death, Bunyan appears to have labored uninterruptedly, and with much zeal, diligence, and success. Branches of the church were evidently established at Cotton End, Kempston, Gamlingay, and Hawnes. John Bunyan died on the 31st August, 1688, at the age of 60. He ministered at Bedford 32 years, and during that period suffered 12 years imprisonment.

The Rev. Ebenezer Chandler succeeded Bunyan on the 18th of December, 1691. He died June 24th, 1747. It was in his time that the building called the "Old Meeting" was erected: It was built in May and June, 1707, by subscription, at a cost of 400*l*. It was plainly built of brick it had a triple ridge roof abutting towards the street, a small porched entrance at the front which faced the north, (as the present building,) and a vestry at the back, which reached to Castle Lane. The pulpit was situated on the eastern side of the building, which was not occupied by the gallery, and had two windows of good form and considerable dimensions, one on each side of it. The chapel was densely furnished with pews, which faced the pulpit, and formed right angles with the entrance, and had an extensive gallery on three sides, but so near the ceiling, on account of the lowness of the roof, as to be not very pleasing to the eye of the spectator, and doubtless not very beneficial to the health of the congregation. The building contained 120 pews, and was capable of accommodating 800 persons.

Mr. Chandler was succeeded by the Rev. Samuel Sander-son, who had come as his assistant in 1737, and had been ordained as his co-pastor in 1740. He died on the 24th of January, 1760, and was succeeded by the Rev. Joshua Symonds. A separation took place during the pastorate of Mr. Symonds, and the separating party built Howard Chapel. In 1770, the late Samuel Whitbread, Esq., M.P., presented to the congregation two handsome chandeliers and six score guineas and a half towards the restoration of the chapel, and John Howard, Esq., the Philanthropist, (who was formerly a member of the church) gave a new pulpit and seventy pounds; and the people raised 177*l*. Mr. Symonds died November 23, 1788. The church then consisted of 127 members.

Mr. Samuel Hillyard, was ordained June 12th, 1792: he died March 4, 1839. At a special meeting of the church, held on December 5th, 1839, the Rev. John Jukes was unanimously elected pastor.

In the year 1849 it was found necessary for the safety of the congregation to pull down the chapel, and to build a new one. The present edifice was built upon the same site, at the cost of 4300*l*., and was first opened for divine worship February 20th, 1850. Thomas Jobson Jackson, Esq., was the architect, and the first stone was laid by Mr.

Hindley, M.P., May 2nd, 1849. It is a strong, well-built, spacious, and handsome building. It contains about 125 pews, and is capable of seating 1150 persons. The pulpit is placed on the south side of the chapel, instead of the east, as in the former building, and the roof is very high. The first gallery occupies the east, the north, and the west sides of the building; a portion of the north side is set apart for the accommodation of the female scholars belonging to the school, while the entire upper gallery which occupies only the north side of the chapel is appropriated to the use of the boys. The eastern and western sides have each six fine looking windows upstairs, and six smaller windows downstairs. The large chandelier, which is suspended from the ceiling, aided by about 18 or 20 smaller lights in different parts of the chapel, affords sufficient light at night. Bunyan's chair is preserved by the church. The Rev. John Brown, B.A., and Mr. R. Maxwell, are the present pastors. Mr. Brown was elected on the 31st of March, 1864, in the place of the late Rev. Joseph James Insull, and Mr. Maxwell after the death of the late Rev. John Jukes.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays at 7 p.m.

The Wesleyan Chapel, St. Paul's.

The illustrious John Wesley first visited Bedford, on Monday, October 15th, 1753, and preached on St. Peter's Green, on the following day, at 7 a.m. and at 5 p.m. On Saturday, July 20th, 1754, he paid his second visit, and on the following day preached near St. Peter's Green. His third visit was on Tuesday, April 12th, 1757; and in his journal he states that there was "no open wickedness of any kind to be seen in Bedford." On Friday, March 10th, 1758, he preached the assize sermon at St. Paul's Church, to a "very large and attentive" congregation. Sir Edward Clive was the Judge, and the text on which the sermon was founded was from Romans xiv., 10,—“We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ.” On Friday, November 23rd, 1759, he preached in a corn chamber lent by Mr. Alderman Parker: in this building, and on this day, it may therefore be said that the first Methodist congregation assembled for worship. On March 16th, 1762, a piece of freehold ground, originally vested in the churchwardens and overseers of St. Paul, was purchased for Mr. Wesley and his followers, and on Monday, October 10th, 1763, Mr. Wesley preached in the New Room, at Bedford, for the purpose of raising subscriptions towards the erection of a chapel. He visited our town many times afterwards, and the first Wesleyan Chapel in Bedford was built in Angel lane (now called Harpur street), in 1766. The next was erected in 1805 in its place; and the present chapel was built in 1832, and enlarged in 1842.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2 and 6 p.m.; Wednesday, 7 p.m. Revs. John Relph, superintendent; J. Pogson, J. Smith, and C. Winters. Organist, Mr. John Pinny.

Wesleyan Chapel, St. Mary's.

The foundation stone of this chapel was laid in the presence of an immense assembly, by John Howard, Esq., J.P., Alderman of Bedford. Mr. Robert Palgrave, 11, Pall Mall, East, was the architect. Opened Wednesday, June 20th, 1866.

The Moravian Chapel, St. Peter's Street.

The Moravian, or United Brethren, have had an establishment in Bedford ever since the year 1740. They at first met for Divine worship in a small chapel fitted up on the premises of Mrs. Okely, in High street, who, together with the late Mr T. Pearson, bore the chief part of the expense. This chapel was succeeded in the year 1751 by a larger building, erected in the parish of St. Peters. In May, 1864, it was found necessary for the accommodation of the rapidly increasing congregation to pull down this building, and to erect a more commodious one upon its site. The foundation stone of the present building was laid June 20th, 1864, by the Rev. W. Mallalieu, and it was opened for divine worship on the 9th of March, 1865.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 3, and 6. p.m., Tuesdays, 8 p.m. ; Thursdays, 7 p.m. Revs. John Lang and Mr. Thompson, pastors.

Howard Chapel, Mill Street.

This substantial-looking building was formerly called the New Meeting, to distinguish it from the Old Meeting, or Bunyan Chapel : it was erected in 1775, and enlarged in 1849. The church worshipping here owes its origin to a change of sentiment which took place in the Rev. Joshua Symonds, the minister of Bunyan's Church, with respect to baptism ; he having been previously a pædo-baptist. A division in the church followed, and the disapproving party erected a separate place of worship, and received much assistance from the benevolent Mr. John Howard, well-known as "The Philanthopist." It is only right that we should add that, though a separation took place from the mother congregation, a very friendly feeling has always existed between the two churches. The chapel has a simple quadrangular form, the four sides of the roof verging to a point, the apex being mounted with a ball. The interior is very neat, having a gallery to three of its sides, and the pulpit on the fourth, facing the front entrance. The chapel stands back a short distance from the street, having a small burial ground in front, with an open iron gateway, and a school-room, erected in 1862, at the back.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., and 6 p.m. ; Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 p.m., the Rev. W. P. Irving, B. Sc., is the present pastor.

Baptist Chapel, Mill Street.

This chapel was erected in the year 1723, by a party from Bunyan Meeting. Several ministers occupied the pulpit up to the year 1815, when the Rev. Thomas King was elected to the pastorate ; he died October 13th, 1847, having held the office for a period of 32 years. In 1849, the Rev. Hugh Killen was chosen to the vacant pulpit, and during his ministry the chapel was twice enlarged. In the month of August, 1865, the Rev. R. Speed (of the Metropolitan Tabernacle College,) was unanimously elected pastor. This chapel will seat 700 persons. The entrance is down a narrow passage, adjoining Messrs. Page & Co.'s Works. For a long time past the congregation worshipping here have felt this inconvenience, and a few months ago possession was obtained of the premises fronting the chapel, and the necessary steps are being taken to erect a more convenient and suitable place for worship.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m.; Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 p.m. Rev. R. Speed, pastor.

St. Mary's Baptist Chapel.

About the year 1852, the congregation worshipping here, who are Particular Baptists, assembled for Divine service at a house in Castle-lane, after which they removed to Matthews' Chapel, Conduit-street. In 1861, subscriptions were raised towards the erection of a place of worship, and the present elegant little structure, designed by Mr. John Usher, and which cost 900*l.*, was opened for public worship, June 13, 1862.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m.; Mondays, 7 p.m.

Providence Baptist Chapel, Castle Lane.

Erected in 1833. Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m.; Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 p.m. Mr. John Thornber, minister.

The Primitive Methodist Chapel is situated in Hassett-street, Priory-terrace. Bedford was missioned by the Hull Circuit in the year 1839, when a small chapel was taken, built by Mr. Clements. In 1849, during the ministry of the Rev. J. Parrott, the chapel was enlarged to its present size. Bedford continued a mission station until the year 1855, when it was formed into an independent circuit. It now contains nine chapels, in the surrounding villages, and 450 members.

Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m.; Tuesdays, 7 p.m. Ministers : Rev. James Langham and Edwin Young.

Matthews' Chapel, Baptist, Conduit Street,

Opened in October, 1864. Hours of Divine Service :—Sundays, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m.; Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 p.m.

ZION CHAPEL, LURKE LANE.—Erected in 1854. Service, 10.30 a.m., 2, and 6 p.m. Thursdays, 7 p.m. Huntingdonians. Congregation exceedingly small. No minister. Services usually conducted by members of the congregation.

19, ADELAIDE SQUARE.—Service on Sundays at 11 a.m., at Mrs. Godfrey's. Those who worship here are known by the name of Plymouth Brethren.

APOSTOLIC CHURCH, GWYN STREET.—This place was rebuilt in 1862. Service on Sundays at 10 a.m., 3, and 6 p.m.; Mondays, 5 p.m.; Tuesdays, 7.30 p.m.; Thursdays, 6 a.m.; Fridays, 5 p.m.; and Saturdays 5 p.m. Rev. D. Cartwright.

ROMAN CATHOLIC, MIDLAND ROAD, Holy Child Jesus and St. Joseph.—Mass on Sunday at 10 a.m., Cat. at 3 p.m., Bened. at 7 p.m. Mass on Holidays at 9 a.m., on Wednesdays at 8 a.m. Bened. on Thursdays at 7.33 p.m. Rev. John Priestley Warmoll.

THE HARPUR SCHOOLS.

Sir William Harpur, Knight, the founder of these noble institutions, was the son of one William Harpur, a man in very humble circumstances, and was born in Bedford in 1496.

At an early age he was sent to London to learn the business of a tailor: and such were his perseverance and behaviour, that he rose step by step in society and wealth, until he became one of the chief officers of the Merchant 'Taylors' Company—one of the most wealthy of the London guilds. We learn from Henry Machyn, also a "marchand-tayller" of that guild, in his Diary, published by the Camden Society, that on June 15, 1556, "master Harper, altherman, marchand-tayller, was chosen shreyff." The same writer informs us that "In 1561, on the xxix day of September was nuw mayre electyd master Harper, marchand-tayler, on Myghellmas day." Sir William was twice married. His first wife, Dame Alice, who was buried in St. Paul's Church, Bedford, was, it is stated by some, the daughter of the Cæsar Adelmare, doctor of medicine of the University of Padua, a member of a distinguished family at Treviso, twelve miles from Venice, and the father of Sir Julius Cæsar, the eminent Judge of the High Court of Admiralty, Master of the Rolls, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Privy Councillor in the reign of James I. and Charles I. Others maintain, however, that Dame Alice was not the daughter of Dr. Adelmare, through she was doubtless related to him, for he had three daughters, named Margaret, Elizabeth, and Annie, and they were married to Mr. Nicholas Wright, Mr. Hunt, and Mr. Pecke. Sir William Harpur's second wife, Dame Margaret, was a native of Bedford, but very unlike his former kind, affectionate, and noble-hearted wife for she proved to be very obstinate, selfish, and even unjust. Sir William died February 27th, 1573, aged 70 years. His remains were taken to Bedford, and deposited, in accordance with his dying request, in the chancel of St. Paul's Church, where his widow, Dame Margaret, was afterwards buried.

"The Mayor, Bailiffs, Burgesses, and Commonality of the town of Bedford," finding that certain towns had received grants of Free Schools, petitioned King Edward VI, in the 6th year of his reign, 1557, for licence to erect and establish a free and perpetual Grammar School in this town: to this request the king readily complied, and granted, by the "Letters Patent," bearing the date of August 15th, the licence desired; but it was not until 1566, the 8th year of Queen Elizabeth's reign, that the first steps were taken to carry out the provisions of the Letters Patent. In that year Sir William Harpur, who was Alderman of the City of London, and Dame Alice, his wife, founded a Free Grammar School at Bedford, and conveyed it by an indenture, styled "The Deed of Gift," to the "Mayre, Baylyfes, Burgesses, and Commonaltye of the towne of Bedford, in the county of Bedford;" which indenture is dated "the too and twentyth daye of Aprell in the eighth yere of the raygne of our soveraygne Ladye Elizabeth by the grace of God of England, France and Ireland quene defendor of the faythe, xc." Hence we see that the property was given by Sir William Harpur to the Mayor and Corporation of Bedford by "The Deed of Gift," during his life, and not by will at his death, as some persons believe. At that period the yearly value of the entire property in London and Bedford was 40*l.*, which sum was sufficient in those days for the purposes of such a school. In the very year in which the Deed of Gift was made, the whole of the "thyrtene acres and one roode of meadow wythe other appurtenances of the sayd Syr Wyllyam Harpar and dame Alyce lyinge in the parysshes of seynt Androw in Holborne in the county of Myddl," was leased to Richard Barron for 12*l.* a-year. In 1668, some encroachments having been made upon the property, it was found to consist of only 12 acres, 1 rood, 13 poles, the whole of which land, which formerly belonged to the monastery of Charter House (then dissolved), was leased by the Mayor and Corporation of Bedford for the term of 41 years, at the yearly rent of 99*l.* A reversionary lease of the same property was granted in 1684 to Dr. Nicholas Barbon, for 51 years, at the increased rent of 150*l.* per annum, to take place at the expiration of the former lease. The annual income of this property at the expiration of the reversionary lease, which took place in 1760, was found to have increased to about 3,000*l.*

In consequence of the granting of these leases, a great number of houses and buildings were erected, forming the following streets, courts, &c. :—Bedford Street, Bedford Row, Bedford Court, Princes Street, Theobald's Row, North Street, East Street, Lamb's Conduit Street, Queen Street, Eagle Street, Boswell Court, Green Street, Harpur Street, Rishbell Court, Hand Court, Grey's Inn Passage, Featherstone Buildings, Three Cups Yard, East Mews, Harpur Mews, &c. In 1763 the royal assent of King George III, was given to an Act of Parliament for extending the objects of the charity. In 1792, the act was repealed and another passed.

In the year 1767, the trustees found it necessary to rebuild the Grammar School (the original having become much dilapidated). The present building (minus the portion added in 1861) was erected. This portion of the school, previous to the enlargement, consisted of two rooms, one above the other, each of which are about 40 feet in length, and 20 in breadth. It is formed of stone with wrought quoins, and a pediment in the centre. The windows, which are rather fine, are in the Elizabethan style. Over the door, in a niche, is a statute of the founder, carved in marble: he is depicted in the robes of an alderman, and on the pedestal beneath the statute, is the following inscription:—

“Ecce viator! CORPOREA Effigies
GULIELMI HARPUR Equitis Aurati;
Scholæ istius
Quam cernis amplam et ornatam;
Munificentissimi Fundatoris.
Si ANIMÆ Picturam spectare velis,
In Chartâ Beneficiorum invenias
Delineatum.”

Translation.—Behold traveller! the BODILY Resemblance of SIR WILLIAM HARPUR, Knight; the very munificent Founder of this School, which you perceive is spacious and adorned. If you wish to behold the picture of his MIND, you may find it delineated in the Record of his Benefactions.

In the 7th year of King George IV.'s reign, on the 26th of May, 1826,—“An Act for the better Management and Disposition of the Estates given by Sir William Harpur, Knight, and Dame Alice, his wife, for a free and perpetual School in the town of Bedford, and other purposes, and of the Rents and Profits thereof”—was passed; and according to this Act is the Foundation managed at the present day.

In 1831, that very handsome range of buildings, in the Tudor style of architecture, situated in Harpur street, Bedford, and, consisting of the Commercial (and formerly the Preparatory Commercial,) the General Preparatory, and the Girls' Schools, as well as a Blue-Coat Hospital for the board and education of poor boys and girls, the Tower, a Committee Room, and the Clerk's Office and House, were erected at a cost of upwards of 25,000*l*.

About the year 1860, the Grammar School having been for some years totally insufficient for the requirements of the masters and pupils, some alterations in the arrangements became absolutely necessary. The new school, according to the plans of Mr. James Horsford, was erected in 1860-61, and the building having been formally handed over by the Mayor, John Howard, Esq., to the Rev. F. Fanshawe, M.A., the Head-Master, the school was opened with a public ceremony on Wednesday, April 17, 1861. The new building cost 6,753*l*. 2*s*. 8*d*.

In 1861, a new building was erected for the Preparatory Commercial School, at a cost, including fencing and diversion of Horne Lane, of 1,541*l*.

The rights of admission to these schools is thus stated in the 5th clause of the "Schedule to the Scheme": "Admission to any of the said schools, other than the General Preparatory or Girls' and Infant Schools, shall be and the same is hereby limited to the children of inhabitant householders, or deceased inhabitant householders, of the said town, whose settlement (not being a settlement acquired for purchase by pecuniary consideration) shall be in either of the parishes of the said town: that the children of inhabitant householders in the said town, not having resided in the said town for one year, shall also be admissible, on payment to the trustees of such sum or sums, not exceeding the sum of ten guineas, as the trustees from time to time, by any general rule or regulation, may determine for admission of the child or children (whether one or more) of such inhabitant householders, in addition to any other sums already made payable in respect of such admission to and continuance in the school for one year of the child or children in respect of whom, or for whose admission such payment shall be made as aforesaid: that the children of all persons permanently residing in the said town shall be admissible to the Girls', Infant, and General Preparatory Schools; that no boys shall be admitted into any of the said schools for the first time who shall be under the age of eight years, or have attained the age of fifteen years (except in any Preparatory or Girls' School, in which the children may be admitted at any age which the trustees in their discretion shall from time to time adjudge proper and appoint), nor shall the respective masters or mistresses be obliged to admit any child, into either of the schools, after he or she shall have quitted the same, or been removed therefrom, for the purpose of being placed out in the world, without the discretion of the said trustees."

In addition to the Schools the Charity also provides a Hospital for twenty-six poor boys and Girls; sixty-five Almshouses for decayed housekeepers; Marriage Portions for poor maidens; and Apprentice Fees for poor boys of the age of fourteen years.

THE BRITANNIA IRON WORKS.

A hundred years ago, there resided at Cardington, Bedford, a man who, living in advance of his age, achieved, without seeking or desiring them, a world-wide reputation and imperishable fame as an enlightened and literally self-sacrificing philanthropist. "John Howard of Bedford" are familiar household words throughout the civilized world, In this year of grace 1868, Bedford has still its Howards, distinguished public benefactors, although of quite another order, who are known to fame both at home and abroad, and not undeservedly, they are none the less public benefactors and entitled to credit as effective agents in promoting civilization, in that the persevering action of their enterprising spirit and the application of their eminent talents have created and diffused wealth amongst others without impoverishing themselves. We refer to James and Frederick Howard, proprietors of the Britannia Works, Bedford, which have been specially designed for, and are exclusively devoted to the manufacture of agricultural machinery and implements.—"The Farmer."

This very extensive and magnificent block of buildings, which for utility and beauty, are, perhaps as a manufactory unsurpassed in England, were designed by Robert Palgrave, of Pall Mall. They were commenced in 1857, and completed in 1859. It has been stated, that they are the largest works in the world, devoted to the manufacture of tillage implements; one of the shops alone occupies an acre of ground, and such is the extent of the whole works, that they have been pronounced, not only the largest, but also the most complete agricultural implement manufactory in the world. Some idea of the work executed in these buildings, may be formed, when we state that upwards of 10,000 finished implements of various kinds, besides many thousand tons of castings, are sent out annually from this establishment, in which upwards of 600 men are employed.

Travelling northward from London by the Midland, the works burst upon the view to the left quite suddenly after passing under a bridge on the highway to Woburn. The Midland Railway and the lines of rail which belong to the Britannia Works constitute the boundary of the premises on that side. All that is seen in passing—but that is quite sufficient to arrest attention and excite interest—is the end elevation of the great area of contiguous covered workshops. There is only time to take an impression of the magnitude of the works, and to notice that the end façade shews the wall of a great area roofed in six bays (each of 52 feet span) and that although the building is “only brick” the architect and builder have made the very most of their material in producing an example upon a large scale of as sound and sightly brick-work as one could expect or desire to see. The walls, of good red stock brick, are relieved by the introduction, in the best taste, of white and blue bricks in combination with red, in the archivolt, friezes, string-courses, &c.

The buildings are entirely on the ground floor; the roofs of the workshops, of which there are six, being each 52 feet span; they are covered with buff tiles, which have been found to secure an agreeably cool temperature during the summer months; and are on that account preferable to those of the ordinary red colour. Light is admitted into the shops through the roof, in which are inserted 30,000 glass tiles with light cast-iron frames. The whole range of buildings, comprising workshops, offices, stores, sheds, and lodges, together with implement yard and wharf, occupy a space of 15 acres. These works were raised at a cost (including the purchase of the land upon which they stand, which is certainly one of the most convenient and picturesque sites that could have been selected) of about 35,000*l*. The grounds are bounded on the north by the river Ouse, which is navigable to the sea; on the south by the Kempston Road; on the west by Caldwell Priory; and on the east by the Midland Railway, a branch of which, as well as one from the London and North-Western and Cambridge Railway, runs into the works. A line of railway is laid down the middle of each of the shops, from east to west, with turntables in the centre, which connects the line of each shop with one running through the whole of the works from north to south. Besides these, there are lines to the coal, coke, and iron warehouses on the river side, to the painting shop, and to the forwarding warehouse. The entire works are also surrounded by a tramway.

From the railway, these works form a conspicuous object; and when beheld at a distance they have a very imposing appearance. Their frontage, entrance, and chief offices, are even worthy consideration on the score of design. They are in the form of a square, and as the visitor will readily admit, have been constructed with considerable architectural skill. The foundry department contains four large cylindrical iron erections, which form the melting furnaces. They have a platform to which the iron and fuel, required for feeding them, are hoisted by steam power. Below is a spout or trough through which the liquid metal runs, in a glowing stream, into a ladle mounted on wheels and running on the tramway. Everything is as manageable, too, as if pouring milk from the pail into the coolers of the dairy. Standing beside a dozen ranges of about twelve moulds, or chills, for casting ploughshares, you may see a man and boy at each set or range, working as if for life and death, when—quick as thought—out spring dozens of shares of the well-known and clearly outlined form, lettered, and complete. Man and boy appear to have a separate job for either hand, and, as you stand musing on the sight of activity, the same scene is repeated. The arrangement for making and hardening the ploughshares has been patented by Mr. Jas. Howard, and certainly nothing can be more complete and efficient. Of a more noisy character is another job going on close at hand, the shaping and fitting of steel mould-boards on large iron blocks, so as to obtain perfect exactitude among all the turn furrows of the pattern or patterns in hand. The dressing department consists of a row of massive grindstones, six feet in diameter. From them sparks are flying as the mould-boards are being smoothed against their rapidly revolving discs. The motive power of the works—a very powerful and massive compound (high and low pressure) engine—is worthy of more than a passing glance. Securely bedded on a foundation of solid masonry, you may stand within an inch of the basement and hardly recognise the fact of such a force beside you; and, being wholly enclosed in a room of plate glass, the internal arrangements of which are kept in a drawing-room style of neatness, the whole effect is as fine as can be imagined. The steam has to be conveyed some distance from the boilers, one or both of which can be used at the same time. Just over the boilers is a 10,000 gallon cistern, for supplying the wants of the boilers, forges, grindstones, foundry, and offices with water, as well as a resource in case of fire. Beyond the engine and under the same span, are lathes of every description, fitted to cope with the largest steam windlass appurtenances, or the smallest wants of the common plough. The forging-house has large steam hammers and rows of forges. One steam-driven fan-blast, revolving five thousand times a minute, supplies the whole lot, and the workman has only to open or shut off the wind according as his heating requires. The fitting-house completes the range, and is adjacent to the painting-shed, so that no plough, or part of a plough, or implement, has to go over the same ground twice. Here are plough-frames, mould-boards, and other fittings stacked up by the hundred, all ready for “making-up.” The floor of the forwarding-house is paved with irregularly shaped blocks of wood, making a pleasant, soft, and springy floor, on which fractures, or accidents to castings would not be likely to happen. Here the export packing is managed, the shares and smaller articles going in barrels, and the larger parts in oblong boxes or cases. Then there are the pattern stores, in which duplicates of all castings made here are kept alphabetically arranged in endless multiplicity; the paint stores, the paint grinding, &c., the fire engine, stabling, general store-shop, and others. The Offices are admirably arranged. From the door-step to the iron safes there is the same easy and artistic proportion of parts and adaptation of means to an end. Separate offices for separate clerks, with private access for each, gives an amount of effective elbow-room not often seen.

The rule of the firm is "piece-work;" the iron is melted, the ploughs made and painted, and even the goods are packed by this system of measurement. As regards this system, Mr. James Howard said, in a lecture which he delivered first in the Working Men's Institute, Bedford, and afterwards to the shoemakers on strike, at Northampton:—"I like the system of piece-work, as it enables the workmen to earn higher wages, and the master pays for no more and no less than is done. I never had any difficulty in getting work done by the piece. I hear there are difficulties in other trades; but I think they would vanish when the system came into operation. 'Tis worthy of remark and consideration, that those trades have made the greatest progress where piece-work has been the rule. It gives the industrious and skilful man a great advantage over the lazy and unskilful man. It also sets the energies of the mind to work to find out readier and quicker methods of getting over work. Over-time may do with your slow day workmen; but 'tis no advantage to men by the piece. I have had a somewhat extensive experience, and have invariably found as the result of over-time, continued for any lengthened period, a large number of men on the sick list. I believe if men work ten hours a day, they will do more in a year than if worked twelve hours."

More than fifty thousand of Messrs. James and Frederick Howard's Patent Champion Ploughs are now in use. Their New Patent Champion Ploughs are improved forms of their original Prize Ploughs, and have been brought out with the greatest care, every improvement having been adopted which has suggested itself during a long experience in the manufacture of Iron Ploughs. The improvements consist in a more perfect form of the moving and cutting parts, increased simplicity, and greater strength with less weight. For many years the Messrs. Howard's have made the subject of improvements in Ploughs their principal study, and they have invariably kept in view the following objects:—

1. To make a plough that will cut and turn the work in the best manner, and suitable to the greatest variety of soil.
2. To obtain a form, the lightest in draught, and that will work the cleanest on sticky soils.
3. To substitute wrought iron for cast wherever practicable, so as to render every part strong and durable, without unnecessary weight.
4. To make every part free from complication, and to fit those parts subject to wear or breakage in the most simple manner, so that an ordinary ploughman shall have no difficulty in replacing them when in the field.
5. To make the plough that can be kept in order at the least expense, to which end J. and F. Howard have paid great attention to the quality of their shares and other wearing parts.

The Messrs. Howard were sagacious enough to see that steam power would eventually be brought to bear upon the tillage of the soil, and, accordingly, were among the Pioneers in this important department; their enterprise has been abundantly rewarded in this branch, they have manufactured and sold upwards of five hundred sets of steam cultivating apparatus, they have acquired much experience in cultivating their own farms by steam power, and have likewise made themselves acquainted with the opinions and experience of Farmers who have adopted steam cultivation, under various circumstances, and in different parts of the country. Their farms are therefore resorted to by agriculturists from all parts of the world.

The Prizes awarded to James and Frederick Howard, are far too numerous to mention, besides many from English Scotch, Irish, Continental, Colonial, and other Societies.—From the Royal Agricultural Society of England they have received Thirty-five First Prizes for the best ploughs for light land, best ploughs for heavy land, best ploughs for general purposes, best ridging ploughs, best subsoil ploughs, best harrows, best horse rakes, best haymakers, and best horse hoes; also the Gold Medal, and a prize of 25*l.* for steam cultivating apparatus. At the Great Exhibition of all nations, they obtained the Prize Medal for ploughs and horse rakes. At the Austrian International Exhibition at Vienna, the Gold Medal of honour for the best ploughs. At the Hungarian International Exhibition at Pesth, the first-class diploma for the best ploughs. At the Paris Universal Exhibition, the Gold Medal of honour for the best ploughs, best harrows, and best horse rakes. At the Paris Agricultural Exhibition, seven First Prizes, and eight Gold and Silver Medals, for the best ploughs, best harrows, and best horse rakes. At the Russian International Exhibition at St. Petersburg, the large Gold Medal for the best plough. At the International Exhibition, 1862, the Prize Medal for ploughs, harrows, horse rakes, hay-making machines, and steam cultivating apparatus. The crowning victory of this successful firm was, however, at the Great Paris Exhibition of 1867, at which their names appeared at the head of the list of all countries, in addition to this Gold Medal, the further distinction of a Grand Prize was conferred upon them, this was to have been received from the hands of the Emperor Napoleon, but as the grand distribution of these special awards was fixed to take place on a Sunday, Messrs Howard . . . . . declined to attend, and assigned their reason for doing so.

For the following we are indebted to "The Farmer."—

The front of the premises faces the Woburn and Bedford high road, and is such in design and appearance as might lead to the supposition, if the spectator had not a glimpse of the interior, and did not know otherwise, that the principal entrance to the works was the portal to some sybaritic castle of indolence, or some luxurious seat of learning, or anything indeed, other than a temple of industry, in which upwards of 600 workpeople are to be seen, busy as bees, daily, with hands and faces smirched by the dust and grime of honest and honourable toil.

The principal building on the front boundary of the works is a handsome and lofty arched entrance, surmounted by a clock tower and campanile, and flanked by recessed wings. Carts and wagons passing inwards or outwards by the principal entrance have to cross a weigh bridge, and, loaded or empty as tare, are weighed, if necessary, by a machine of improved construction. The buildings at the entrance, contain, the gas meter room, and time-keeper's room and weigh-house, and a watchman's room. The front boundary has a belt of shrubbery extending from this central entrance to each extremity, the premises being enclosed by an ornamental upright iron railing. Between the entrance and the workshops is a spacious open yard, which extends also along the end of the works to the left—that is, the end opposite to that seen from the railway. Entering by the front, and passing onwards through the works, we are inverting the order of progress as compared with the processes of manufacture. If we were to come in with the raw material, and to follow it through these processes, we should enter from the river boundary, or near it, and immerge near the front, with the finished machinery or implements.

Meantime we take a rapid survey of what is to be seen from the yards before entering the buildings. Turning sharp round to the right we come upon a commodious goods station, the exclusive property of the firm, and constructed as its outwards and inwards lines of rails and sidings are laid, upon their property. The station has its packing sheds and loading shed and forwarding clerk's offices, and is amply manned as occasion requires. In the station and on the premises immediately adjoining are constantly to be seen piles of finished machinery, ploughs and harrows complete, plough beams, handles, frames, slades, breasts, wheels, and shares, horse rake and harrow frames in scores, and horse rake and harrow teeth in hundreds, all in process of being packed for shipment, or waiting their turn. From this goods station used exclusively by this single firm, about 300 trucks per month are dispatched laden with agricultural machines or implements, or parts of implements. Nearly as many trucks, laden with raw material, are received inwards per month. At the station, and all over the works indeed, are powerful cranes for lifting and moving rapidly and easily the heavy materials and articles dealt with. Before leaving this model goods station it may be mentioned that Messrs. Howard have from it direct connexion with the Midland, and also the London and North Western Railways, and have consequently continuous railway communication with every inland town and seaport of any importance in Great Britain; their connexion with the seaports giving them, moreover, an outlet to all parts of the civilized world. The river Ouse again furnishes means for water carriage to Lynn and Wisbech, and by its connexion with inland navigation, to various localities in the interior of England. Crossing the wide front yard to the handsome pile of buildings, with its ornamental front and pretty roof of colored slate in bands, at the opposite corner of the premises near the front, we find, on entering the building, that it includes private rooms for each of the partners, a well-furnished and comfortable waiting and reading room, invoice and correspondence offices, cashier's, designing, and pay offices, ironmongery stores, with other conveniences; and near by a fire-engine house. In the rear of these are the stable and stable yard, gig house, loose boxes, harness room, &c. Alongside the principal offices, extending towards the river, are a large painting shed and paint shop, a carpenter's shop, and timber yard. The end of this range of shops brings us to near the river and the broad wharves, that extend the whole width of the premises, exclusive of the dock constructed at the end of the range. The vessels delivering the different kinds of raw material for the works, have each their respective berths—this for coal, that for timber, the next for pig-iron, and the next for coke, which has its own appropriated store. The wharves are at the rear of the great covered area, which is 650 feet long by 400 feet wide, and is divided into the foundry, grinding and glazing shop, lath and machine shop, screw and drilling shop, erecting shop, an immense smithy, and to the front two plough-fitting shops, and harrow and rake fitting shops. These various departments are surrounded on three sides by store-rooms for various kinds of goods and materials, by model-room, pattern-makers' shops and pattern stores, and to the front by foremen's offices.

But much more ought to be said concerning these works, and the operations conducted in them, than is done in giving a mere catalogue of the departments. Returning to the wharf, the stately chimney, 130 feet in height, built of Portland stone and red brick, and surmounted by a crown of iron trellis work, reminds us that there are others powers in operation in this great establishment, in addition to the thews and sinews of the workmen—powers that multiply the production tenfold or more—the steam engines. There is one single engine to give the power required in the wood department, and a pair of compound engines for the metal department. The steam is supplied by three boilers of 40 horse-power each. The water-tank which supplies the works contains 10,000 gallons, and is kept replenished by steam power applied to the pumps, which lift it from the river Ouse. The pair of engines which supply power in the metal department, are fixed near the centre of the main building, and fenced off with handsome glazed framework. Economy is the order in the works throughout; and to utilize what would otherwise be wasted heat, a drying-room for timber is constructed over the boiler-house.

Before re-entering the foundry, one of the many time, money, and labour-saving arrangements in the works, should be noticed—namely, the tramways that run in all directions, and the turn-tables that are placed wherever they can be of use. The various heavy materials and the parts of machines and implements in different stages of manufacture, are passed on by the tramways from one department to another with the greatest ease and celerity. And now, to peep into the foundry, which looks a pandemonium, others of the specialties of these works present themselves. The two large cupolas in the centre of the foundry are constantly charged with molten metal all the day through, the fresh supplies of pig being raised by a steam lift. Wherever it is possible, payment for labour in the works is by the piece; and in the foundry, accordingly, the moulders are served with metal at a price per ton. Machinery, upon the patented invention of Mr. James Howard, is extensively employed in moulding, with great success, and to a great saving. About 10 tons of light castings are turned out per day, the greater part of the work being done by labourers and youths. The ladle or shank, from which the moulders are supplied with molten metal, contains about a ton. It is mounted upon four wheels, and even when full can be moved with ease along the tramways, laid in the centre of the foundry. It is so constructed that it can be emptied either to the right hand or the left, so that the moulders can be supplied without leaving their work, causing confusion, and losing time.

Beyond the foundry are four departments in which a number of beautiful machine tools are at work, and very interesting processes carried on in the turning, drilling screwing, engine-fitting, &c.; but we are fain to escape the roaring din, and pass forward to the great smithy, not, however, to find quiet amid the clamour made by these sons of Vulcan. This is the largest smith's shop, clear within four walls, that we are acquainted with. Its dimensions are 250 in length by 160 feet in width, and, in common with the other departments of the general structure, it is 40 feet in height. The smithy and foundry, with the erecting and machine shops intervening, cover about 3 acres of ground.

The plough, harrow, and rake-fitting shops, and the great painting shed, with the implement yard, bring distinctly before the visitor the specialties of the firm, in the highly improved implements for which they have been long known and highly celebrated, as they now are in addition for their steam ploughs and cultivators. The more prominent, although by no means the sole and exclusive objects of interest at the Britannia Works, are unquestionable the machines and implements relating to tillage, and foremost among these, their portable engines and steam-cultivating apparatus on the single and on the double engine systems. We believe that the firm has manufactured and sold above five hundred steam ploughs and cultivators, and that ample experience of their action has demonstrated that, simple in construction, they are easily managed by ordinary farm labourers, and that they are economical in wear, and in their work go deeper and pulverize the soil more thoroughly than in cultivation by horse-power. Messrs. Howard have added an effective harrow to the steam cultivating apparatus. The more generally attractive, although less imposing objects, are probably the horse ploughs on many different models, and adapted to every variety of use as regards the inclination of the land and the character of the soil to be operated upon, and the particular effect intended to be produced in the respective field operations to which the implements are to be applied. The celebrated "Champion Plough" is, as may be supposed, at the head of the class, having won fifteen first prizes of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, sixty-eight All-England prizes, and fifteen hundred local prizes. This plough, with almost all the others, is remarkable for its light and graceful form and proportions, and the beauty of its curves in the handles, beam, and especially the mould-board, sections of which would give an infinite series of beautiful variations upon Hogarth's line of beauty. The merits of this plough include, we believe, lightness of draught, suitability for both light and heavy land, its combining the advantages of the high-cutting plough with those of the rectangular or low-cutting plough. The other tillage implements manufactured are various and interesting, including numerous modifications of the harrow, turnip harrows, scarifiers, horse hoes, press-wheel and other field rollers, with horse rakes and haymaking machines that have attained extensive and well-earned fame. The firm have added a new machine to those enumerated—namely, a new mowing and reaping machine upon a plan brought from America by Mr. James Howard. This machine is so contrived as to cut lodged as cleanly as standing crops.

In addition to the machinery and implements connected with agriculture and agricultural operations manufactured at the Britannia Works, there is much about them and their management, economy, and processes, of interest to mechanics and engineers, as for instance their extensive use of machinery in moulding. They have above 100 of these machines in operation, and effect by their use an estimated saving of from 1000*l.* to 1200*l.* per annum. By these machines the most complicated patterns can be moulded by unskilled labourers: no trowels or water brushes are used, and there is no sleeking or jointing. The machines are extensively used by a number of other large firms under license from Messrs. Howard.

The firm have also patented recently a safety steam-boiler and super-heater, which is exciting considerable interest in the engineering world. The new boiler is constructed by a skilful arrangement of wrought-iron tubes, the bursting pressure of each of which is at least 2,000lb. to the square inch. The bursting of a boiler on this new construction is, we believe, a physical impossibility. It also offers important advantages in economizing fuel; in producing super-heated high-pressure steam; in the perfect circulation of the water, and consequent prevention of bursting or fouling of the tubes; in the simplicity of its parts and its durability; and in being portable, compact, and easily set. One of these new patent boilers was selected by the Royal Commissioners to drive the machinery at the late Paris Exhibition. The patents which Messrs. J. & F. Howard have secured for improvements in steam cultivating machinery, horse ploughs, harrows, rakes, hay-makers, and other implements are also numerous and valuable. The Britannia Works, which now cover in all, with the spacious implement and other yards about 16 acres, and give employment to 600 or 700 workpeople, are as favourably situated as they are spacious. Their construction and arrangement is upon an admirably simple plan, and free from the inconveniences which often attach to piecemeal enlargements of works. Essential features in the processes of manufacture are the immediate contiguity of the premises in which the consecutive stages of the work are carried on and in the facilities with which the respective portions of the work are forwarded from one department to another. No article, as a rule, passes over the same ground twice, but entering at one end of the works as raw material, passes through successive stages, and comes out at the other as finished goods. The division of labour is also carried out to the fullest extent, and results in perfection of manufacture. A plough for instance, passes through 120 pairs of hands in the course of making and finishing. It may be mentioned that as many as 200 ploughs have been despatched from the Britannia Works railway station in a single day.

The Messrs. Howard are eminently practical as well as scientific men, and in the exercise of their profession combine functions analogous to those of the architect and builder. They are for the greater part the designers and perfecters, as well as the constructors, of the machines and implements made at their works.

The farms belonging to the firm may almost be regarded in one sense an adjunct of the Britannia Works. These farms, chiefly of strong clay lands, are about 600 acres in extent, and are situated within a mile of the Bedford railway station. On these, and on the adjoining light land farm of about 500 acres, in the occupation of Mr. Charles Howard, the celebrated short-horn sheep-breeder, a brother of the partners, every facility is furnished for trying steam and horse ploughs, and other implements, and there they are improved as the result of continuous experiments and careful observation.

By applying at the offices the visitor may obtain admittance into this world-renowned agricultural implement manufactory.

The works have attracted large numbers of the most distinguished agriculturists of the United Kingdom and of Europe to visit them, as also celebrities from more distant parts of the world.

Amongst the many illustrious men who have visited the Britannia Works and Farms may be mentioned General Garibaldi, who, accompanied by his eldest son, Menotti Garibaldi, the Duke of Sutherland, Lord Alfred Paget (Equerry to the Queen), General Eber, Alderman Mechi, Col. Peard ("Garibaldi's Englishman"), and several other English and Italian friends of the General, paid a visit on the 15th of April, 1864, a day long to be remembered by the inhabitants of Bedford; and more recently a party of twenty Japanese, representatives of Prince Satsuma, of Kagosima, honoured them by an inspection. The late Prince Consort, just before his lamented death, had arranged with his Steward to pay the Messrs. Howard a visit.

THE BRIDGE.

The former bridge, the predecessor of the present one, which was considered by Dr. Boarde, physician to Henry VIII., as one of the "fayre stone bridges" of England, was built in the beginning of the 13th century, on the same site, it is supposed, as a more ancient one. It was 330 feet long, and only  $13\frac{1}{2}$  wide and had a parapet  $3\frac{1}{2}$  feet high, which was rebuilt with the materials of St. Peter's Dunstable. Some have affirmed that this bridge was built with the stones of the demolished castle. It consisted of five arches, and on each side of the centre arch was a tower or gateway. That on the north side projected on the west over the river on arch, and had stairs desending to the water, this was used as the Town Jail.

In this jail did the immortal Bunyan suffer twelve long years of imprisonment; and with him were confined no less than sixty others, including two baptist ministers, named Wheeler and Dunn, who were suffering for the same cause.

It was this jail in which the hands of the Illustrious Dreamer ministered to his own and his family's wants, by making long-tagged thread laces, which employment, it is said, he learned after he was shut up in prison, for that very purpose. It was this jail, the management of which the jailer committed to Bunyan, knowing how entirely he might be trusted.

It was this jail in which he was a prisoner, when Gifford's Church elected him as their pastor, he having been allowed, through the kindness of the jailer, to regularly attend the meetings of the church and congregation during the three previous years. It was this jail in which he wrote many valuable works, which have directed, reprov'd, instructed, and comforted many thousands; and, as an anonymous writer observes, "will leave a fragrance on his name to the end of time;" the chief of which were his "Holy City," "Christian Behaviour," "The Resurrection of the Dead," "Grace Abounding to the Chief of Sinners," and his most highly and justly celebrated work, entitled "The Pilgrim's Progress."

And it was this dungeon, the discovery of whose abominations, even a century afterwards, first started the benevolent John Howard, in his "circumnavigation of charity."

The south gate-house was used as a magazine and storehouse for the arms of the county militia, and any troops that happened to be quartered in the town. These gate-houses were pulled down in 1765, and with them the town jail; after which a temporary jail was fitted up under the town-hall. The Messrs. Lysons tells us that "a new jail was afterwards built in St. Lloyd's (St. Loyes'), near the almshouses; but being found inconvenient, was taken down and another erected to the N.W. of the town, near the road to Kettering, where a new county jail also was completed in the year 1801, towards the building of which the late Mr. Whitbread left a legacy of 500*l*."

From what we can now ascertain, it appears that on one side of this bridge and adjoining it, was the free Chapel of St. Thomas, which was founded by the townsmen in the beginning of the 14th century, for a priest who united in his person the offices of Chaplain and Bridge-Ward, enjoying the endowment, with probably other offerings and perquisites. He was to repair the bridge at his own expense. From an old record, dated 1343, it seems that the appointment of the Warder was disputed in that year between the Corporation and the Crown. It was then endowed with "2 messuages, 17 shops (shopæ), 3 acres of land, and 7*s*. rent in Bedford." Parry informs us that this chapel is supposed to have ceased to exist before the Reformation.

In 1813, the present bridge, which stands on five elliptical arches, was erected on nearly the same site as the former, at the cost of 15,137*l*., towards which liberal donations were made, particularly by the late Duke of Bedford and the late Samuel Whitbread, Esq.; the remainder was defrayed chiefly by public tolls, which were levied until the year 1834. It was built of stone, from Bramley Fell, in Yorkshire, and the arches are both faced and lined with Portland; the upper part has a lofty parapet, supported with an open balustrade, or pilasters, of the same material. It is 306 feet long and 30 broad.

THE GENERAL INFIRMARY.

The General Infirmary was instituted in the year 1801, and the neat, spacious, and substantial building, on the Ampthill road, was erected in 1803, from funds principally bequeathed by the late Samuel Whitbread, Esq., M.P., in 1797, who left no less than 8000*l.* (which with interest in 1801 amounted to 9436*l.*) towards its first establishment. The sum of 1000*l.* was given to this institution by Lord Hampden; and in 1826 the Marquis of Tavistock presented 2000*l.* towards the enlargement of the building. Besides these, 60*l.* were given annually to this institution by the most noble Francis, late Duke of Bedford, which subscription is still annually paid by the present Duke. The expenses incurred in the erection of the building in 1803, amounted to 6,150*l.*; and it was then intended to accommodate 50 patients. In 1826, however, it was found necessary to considerably enlarge the building, so as to accommodate 30 additional patients, which was done at an expense of 4000*l.* In 1848, the Fever Hospital was added, which was opened on the 24th of June of that year.

Grand Visitor, the Duke of Bedford: President, Samuel Charles Whitbread, Esq.; Treasurer, Thomas Barnard, Esq.; Chaplain, Rev. Henry Pearse; Physican, George Wharton; Surgeons, Henry Wilson Sharpin and George P. Goldsmith, Dentist, Mr. Kirby; House Surgeon and Secretary, William Greaves Johnson; Matron, Mrs. Musselwhite; Dispenser, Mr. Dixon.

THE HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

It was about the year 1790, that under a local Act of Parliament, this land was purchased for the erection of a suitable structure; the rest of the land to be appropriated for the employment of the poor in agriculture, gardening, and manufactures. The very large and neat brick building, which has since been erected, was commenced in 1794 and completed in 1796. On the right is a chapel for the inmates of the house. The outbuildings on the left consists of wash-houses, &c. The main building is 136 feet long, and is capable of accommodating about 200 persons.

BEDFORD GAOL.

This gaol, which we have already noticed in describing the bridge, was built in 1801, and an enlargement took place a few years ago in order to introduce the separate system. The prisoners are employed in oakum picking, mat making, &c.

Governor, Robert Evan Roberts ; Chaplain, Rev. George Maclear ; Surgeon, Robert Couchman ; Matron, Mrs. Anderson, Chief Warder and Storekeeper, John Paton Hillhouse.

THE ASSEMBLY ROOMS.

These handsome Rooms which were erected by a company of shareholders in the year 1835, are generally used for concerts, balls, lectures, and other public entertainments. Being situated in the heart of the town, they are admirably adapted for these purposes. They are sometimes called "The Bedford Rooms." Various societies hold their meetings here ; the chief of these is

The whole management of this institution is vested in a committee of sixteen members. The library contains about 10,000 volumes, embracing nearly all the most valuable modern works in science, history, fiction, and general literature. There is also a handsome reading-room, which is well supplied with the leading newspapers, magazines, and reviews; the collection of folios and quartos, which originally belonged to St. John's Church, and were afterwards kept in St. Paul's Church are deposited here. Annual subscriptions of one guinea entitle members to the use of the newsroom and library throughout the day; subscriptions of ten shillings, paid yearly or quarterly, to the use of the newsroom daily from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., and of the library on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. The present number of subscribers is about 300.

President, George Hurst, Esq., J.P.; Honorary Secs., Dr. H. Steinmetz and Mr. Rudge; Librarian, Mr. Thomas Poole.

Occupy the first room on the right. This society was established in 1847 for the promotion of a pure and enlightened taste in Ecclesiastical Architecture—for the correct restoration of our churches—for the preservation of the monuments and remains of former ages—and for the diffusion of information on the subjects of architecture and archæology generally. Meetings are held on the third Tuesday in every month, at half-past 2 o'clock. Subscriptions (10s. 6d. per annum) are due on the 1st of January in each year, and are received at the bank of Messrs. Barnard, Bedford. Hon. Secs., Rev. H. J. Rose, Houghton Conquest, and the Rev. J. W. Haddock, Bedford; Curator, G. Hurst, Esq.; Agent, Mr. F. Thompsom.

The Savings Bank

Connected with these rooms, and open for the reception of deposits every Saturday from 12 to 1, and on Wednesdays from 6 to 7, was established on the 4th of May, 1816. It is under the control of twelve trustees, fifty-two managers, a treasurer (Thomas Barnard, Esq.), and a secretary (Mr. F. Trapp).

WORKING MEN'S INSTITUTE.

The Working Men's Institute, an Elegant Gothic structure, situated in Harpur street, was erected in 1856, at the cost of about 1383*l.* It is open daily from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. Visitors are admitted to the reading room on payment of one penny. The library connected with this institute contains upwards of 2,000 volumes, and is open for exchange and renewal of books every Wednesday evening, between the hours of 8 and 10.

The subscriptions are :—labouring men, 4d. per month ; mechanics, 6d. per month ; honorary subscriptions, £1 1s. ; yearly tickets, admitting to reading room, library, lectures, &c., 10s. ; half-yearly tickets, 5s,

President, Rev. R. W. Fitzpatrick, M.A. ; Treasurer, Mr. J. E. Cutcliffe ; Hon. Sec., P. S. Fry, Esq. ; Secretary and Librarian, George Gilbert ; Assistant Secretary, Mr. Moore.

 THE CORN EXCHANGE.

This building, situated in St. Paul's square, was erected in the year 1849, by a body of shareholders, at a cost of 2,000*l.* It is open every Saturday from 12 to 2. Admission, 2d ; annual tickets, 5s.

 THE CEMETERY.

The Cemetery, which is very pleasantly situated at a short distance from the town, on rising ground, known as Foster's Hill, was formed under the power of the following Acts :—15 & 16 Vict., cap. 85, and 16 & 17 Vict., cap. 134. It occupies about 18 acres of land, and has been laid out with great taste, under the superintendence of Thomas Jobson Jackson, Esq., architect and surveyor. The chapels are well built of stone, under one roof, in the Gothic style of architecture, and divides the consecrated from the unconsecrated part of the ground. The Cemetery was opened to the public, on Tuesday, June 5th, 1855, by the Bishop of the Diocese, in the presence of the Clergy, Corporation, and a large number of the inhabitants of Bedford. The entire cost was 5,397*l*. In the year 1854, a board was elected representing the several parishes of the town. The names of the present board are given in another page. Total number of interments up to August 1st, 1868, 3337. Full particulars can be obtained of Mr. T. W. Pearse, clerk to the board ; or of Mr. Dann, registrar, at the Cemetary.

THE SHIRE HALL.

The Shire Hall, known also as the Town Hall or Sessions House, is a large and neat, though rather heavy-looking structure, situated in St. Paul's square. It was erected in the year 1753. The Assizes, Quarter Sessions, Petty Sessions, County Court, and public Meetings are held here.

EKINS' COUGH BALSAM.

A speedy, safe, and effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Hooping Coughs, &c. It is well known in this neighbourhood; and in many cases has proved of the greatest service when all other means have failed to afford relief, so that one trial only will be sufficient to establish its reputation in any family.

Sold in Bottles at 7½d., 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. each.

NEROLINE

FOR SOFTENING & BEAUTIFYING THE SKIN

This preparation has been proved to be invaluable in preventing sunburn, and removing irritation or roughness of the skin in any part, but more particularly of the face, hands, and neck.

For CHAPPED HANDS it will be found peculiarly efficacious; one night's application being sufficient to entirely remove the painful soreness and smarting of an excoriated surface.

This Lotion does not contain any poisonous ingredient, and may be used with confidence to the skin of an infant.

Sold in Bottles 6d. and 1s. each.

LITRE BOTTLE CONTAINS 25 PER CENT. MORE THAN REPUTED QUART.

COMPANY.

DEPOT FOR THE DISTRICT,

THOMAS PAYNE'S,

(Late Bradley),

FAMILY GROCER AND TEA DEALER,

Hop and Provision Merchant,

16, ST. MARY'S STREET, BEDFORD.

FOREIGN PORTS OF SHIPMENT.

Bordeaux, Boulogne, S./M., Havre, Rotterdam, Cadiz, Oporto.

The Litre Bottle Wine Company, introduces to this country the real and certain Wine measure as used abroad, which contains about 25 per cent. more in quantity than the Reputed Quart. The LITRE BOTTLE is the standard measure in the Wine Districts, and the substitution of it in this country for the old and uncertain measure now in use, will be a great benefit to the consumer.

THE LITRE BOTTLE MEASURE.—It may be remembered that a short time ago, the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce had under their consideration the subject of the ordinary bottle measure, in consequence of complaints, that quart and pint bottles were in many cases deficient. They petitioned Parliament on the subject, and in their petition they remarked that "great frauds are practised in Scotland by certain dealers in potable liquors---selling wines, spirits, and malt liquors in bottles professedly containing quantities which they do not contain;" and the Chamber suggested that the bottles should be stamped with the quantities they were made to hold. There is no doubt that bottles sometimes vary as much as a gill, to the loss of the purchaser.---"Edinburgh Evening Courant," August 6th, 1867.

Everybody knows to his cost and mortification that between a pint of draught beer (or wine), which must be sold by Imperial measure, and a (reputed) pint of precisely the same beverage, there is a difference of some 30 per cent.---"Economist," 1866.

The Litre Bottle contains 25 per cent. more than the Reputed Quart.

The Litre Bottle contains 25 per cent. more than the Reputed Quart.

THE QUEEN OF ALL INKS.

PATENTED IN ENGLAND, FRANCE, BELGIUM, SPAIN. REGISTERED.

"THE QUEEN OF ALL INKS," WRITING INK is composed of Vegetable substances and pure colorants, without Oxide of Iron. It is a remarkable fluid, of a fine bright color; being of a beautiful purple, when written with, and turning to a jet black, the blackness increasing every day. It does not OXIDIZE or CORRODE the PENS. It never gets THICK, STICKY, or GREASY, like ordinary Inks. Although sold at the same price as other Inks, yet they will be found 50 per cent. cheaper than any other Ink manufactured, as it does not waste or get thick, having no sediment.

This Ink will be found of great service where writings must be preserved for a length of time. For BANKS, MERCHANTS, and other COMPANIES, INSTITUTIONS, COLLEGES, SCHOOLS, PRIVATE FAMILIES, this Ink will be found the best and most economical.

"THE QUEEN OF ALL INKS," COPYING INK is incomparable. It is a beautiful fluid of fine color. Letters will copy well after being written several days. No copy will fade in color like those written with other Inks, but will increase in depth of tone the longer it remains. From one letter several copies can be taken. This COPYING INK not being GREASY or STICKY, can also be used for BOOK-KEEPING, ACCOUNTS, and LETTER WRITING, and will be found a great desideratum to BANKERS, MERCHANTS, and OTHERS, as the same Ink can be used both for Copying and for ordinary correspondence.

These INKS are especially recommended to MERCHANTS, EXPORTERS, and others, for use in INDIA, CHINA, AUSTRALIA, and other hot countries, as neither climate nor weather has any effect on them. They will be found the cheapest and best Inks, ever manufactured.
