TABLES OF THE TIDES
AT GLASGOW AND GREENOCK FOR 1884.

OBSERVATIONS.

In the Tide Table, if a blank, such as .... occurs upon any day, there is high water only once that day. It is to be observed that morning is supposed to commence immediately after midnight, and evening immediately after noon. Noon is denoted by 0h 0m. Having assumed 12 hours 8 minutes as the time of full and change at Greenock, nothing more is necessary than to apply the time as under to the time given in the Greenock Table, and the result will be the time of High Water at each respective place.

GLASGOW CORPORATION TRAMWAYS.

These Tramways, which have been constructed by the Corporation under the Glasgow Street Tramways Act, 1870, and the Glasgow Corporation Tramways Act, 1875, and subsequent Acts, are leased to the Glasgow Tramway and Omnibus Company Limited for a term of 23 years from 1st July, 1871, and the agreement under which the lease is granted applies not only to the whole of the lines already authorised but also to any extension which may be made by the Corporation. By that agreement the Corporation are to borrow on their own security the capital required for construction and expenses, and the lessees are to pay the rate of interest actually paid by the Corporation, and their expenses of borrowing, management, &c., in addition to a sinking fund of three per cent. per annum. In lieu of any payment for pavement in streets not being turnpike roads, the lessees pay a fixed charge of £150 per annum per street mile. The lessees are also to set apart annually four per cent. on the monies spent on construction, as a fund for maintenance and renewals, the interest on which will be received by the lessees, and any balance at the end of the lease will revert to them. Under an agreement of date 6th and 8th March, 1879, the Corporation have leased to the said Company about 6½ miles of additional lines of Tramway, for payment only of interest, at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum, on the cost of construction, and £150 per annum for every mile of street occupied by the lines within the city, in so far as these are not turnpike roads. This agreement is coeval in duration with the lease above mentioned. The total length of the system is now 25 miles of double lines of Tramway.

THE MITCHELL LIBRARY,

Temporary Premises—7 Ingram Street, East.

Founded on a bequest of the late Stephen Mitchell, Esq. Mr Mitchell died in April, 1874, and the bequest was accepted by the Town Council in July of the same year.

The library was opened November 1, 1877, and is open daily from 9.30 a.m. till 10 p.m. uninterruptedly. It contains about 50,000 volumes, and is the largest public library in the West of Scotland. The books are not permitted to be taken away, but may be read in the library, which has been conveniently furnished for this purpose. There is a magazine room, where may be seen more than 200 of the principal weekly, monthly, and quarterly serials, including a number of American, German, and French periodicals. The admission is free, and no introduction or guarantee is required. In the selection of the books to form the Library, efforts have been made to give it a thoroughly representative character, so that students in every department of knowledge will derive advantage from its use. Collections of books relating to Scotland, and particularly to Glasgow and the West, are forming. "The Poets' Corner" is believed to contain the largest and most valuable library of Burns and Scottish Poets and Dramatists in existence.

The number of readers is large, frequently exceeding the accommodation provided. In 1881, the average number of volumes consulted daily was 1315; the total number from commencement to 1st November, 1883, being 2,062,620, exclusive of the reading of the periodicals in the magazine room.

The library is administered by a committee of the Town Council.

Convener, William Wilson Sub-Convener, T. A. Mathieson
Librarian, F. T. Barrett Sub-Librarian, John Ingram

BAILLIE'S INSTITUTION

Was founded by the late Mr George Baillie, writer in Glasgow, who divested himself in his lifetime of his whole fortune (£18,000), which, with its accumulations during twenty-one years from 11th Nov., 1863, he appointed to be applied to the erection and endowment of an Institution, to be called "Baillie's Institution," having for its objects, 1st, To aid the Self-culture of the operative classes in Glasgow, by means of Free Public Libraries and Reading Rooms; and 2nd, The Tuition and Training of their children in unsectarian schools. The former of these, however, is alone to be proceeded with, unless there is a sufficiency of funds for both. The Dean, Council, and Clerk of the Faculty of Procurators in Glasgow, are perpetual Preceptor, Patrons, and Directors of the Institution, which was incorporated by Royal Charter, dated 18th March, 1867.

HUTCHESONS' HOSPITAL AND SCHOOLS.

The Funds of the Hospital are designed for the aid of Citizens of Glasgow, or of persons who in the estimation of the Patrons may be considered deserving of aid, and who shall have carried on business or trade in Glasgow on their own account, or who shall have been the means of promoting the prosperity of the city, and have been reduced in circumstances; and also in favour of the Widows and Daughters of persons of the above description whose circumstances the Patrons may consider call for such assistance; a preference being given cæteris paribus to persons enrolled as Burgesses of Glasgow previously to 1871. Applicants must be 50 years of age; widows having two or more children dependent upon them, being eligible at 40 years.

Applicants for admission into the Schools as Foundationers, must be the children of persons who would themselves be qualified as pensioners, but without the age restrictions above mentioned.

The Schools were remodelled in 1876 as Public Schools, and called "Hutchesons' Grammar School," and "Hutchesons' Girls' School." Pupils are educated for commercial pursuits, the Civil Service, and the University.

In addition to fee-paying pupils and Foundationers, there are Scholarships, obtainable by competition, and tenable for threeyears. Successful competitors enjoy the privilege of free education, with books, in the Secondary Department of the School. There are likewise Bursaries, obtainable by competition, which entitle the holders to free education in the Secondary Department, books, and money grants.

Twelve University Hutcheson Bursaries have been instituted in the Grammar School, tenable at the University for four years. These are competed for yearly. Their value is £20, £25, and £30 respectively. The competition is restricted to boys who have completed the course in the Secondary Department of Hutchesons' Grammar School."

Eight Higher Education Bursaries have been instituted in the Girls' School, tenable for two years; four are competed for each year; their value is £10.

Preceptor, William Wilson

The object of the Society is to afford pecuniary or other relief to the natives and old inhabitants of the Barony of Gorbals, who are of respectable character; have been in better circumstances, but reduced to a decayed and indigent state; and who, not being otherwise sufficiently provided for, stand in need of the Society's aid; but no one receives assistance from its funds who is in receipt of parochial relief. Advanced age, urgent necessity, and respectability of character are indispensable. Length of residence, next to nativity preferred, but applicants must have one or other of these qualifications Non-residence at the time of making application will not exclude from the benefits of the society. No one is allowed to participate in the benefits of the Society who is under fifty years of age, unless labouring under permanent bodily infirmity. GLASGOW HOME FOR DESERTED MOTHERS, 308 Renfrew street.

Established in 1873, and supported by Voluntary Contribution

The aim and object of this Home is to supply a desideratum, the want of which has been long experienced in this city and the West of Scotland, viz., to afford temporary shelter and maintenance to destitute and houseless mothers, with their helpless infants. Those only who have for the first time deviated from the paths of virtue, or who have been led astray, are eligible for admission. While resident in the Home a vigilant supervision is exercised over them. Much attention is paid to their moral and religious welfare, and every effort made to procure suitable situations for them. The infants are placed under the care of proper and trustworthy nurses, all of whom are under the oversight and supervision of the Matron.

The Home is managed by a Committee of ladies, assisted by a Board of gentlemen, and is under the general superintendence of a Matron.

The object of this Institution is to afford assistance to natives, and widows, and families of natives of the City of Glasgow, who, from reverses of fortune or otherwise, have been reduced to necessitous circumstances; though not such casual or trivial relief, as is properly obtained from the funds destined by law for the support of the poor, but rather such more ample and efficient assistance, as may tend to secure comparative ease and independence to the parties on whom it is bestowed. The capital amounts to £16,636 8s 7d, producing an annual income of about £700; to this the Directors added £16 from the entry-monies of the previous year, making in all the sum of £726, which was distributed in the manner above indicated. During last year the number of recipients was 102, who received grants varying from £4 to £10. The annual expenditure is on an average only £8. The membership is composed of parties born within the Royalty or Parliamentary limits of the Burgh, though donations are received and invited from those who, though not natives, have been identified, by long residence or commercial connection with the interests and prosperity of the city, and who, though not members, are enrolled in a separate class, titled donors. Legacies and bequests will also be received, and are invited from the opulent and generous either at home or abroad, who approve of its objects. A payment of £3 3s, either in one sum at entry, or by five successive yearly instalments of £1 1s, constitutes membership. Members and widows and families of members, are entitled to a preference in the distribution of the funds.

PRISONERS' AID SOCIETY.

This Society was instituted in 1856, for the purpose of looking after and assisting, to employment or otherwise, discharged prisoners, chiefly those new to crime. Experience has taught that the only effectual mode of doing this is by dealing with each case individually, and since the adoption of this plan the results have been very satisfactory

EARLY BONUS SCHEME (E.B.)

Besides the privileges which it has from the outset, an ordinary Policy of the Early Bonus Class, which has complied with the necessary conditions, will, at the end of Three Years, enjoy the following EXCEPTIONAL ADVANTAGES:—It will be Entitled to rank for Bonus Additions;

Indisputable on the ground of Errors or Omissions;

In short, it will be subject to no condition except payment of the original premium, and not to entire forfeiture even if that premium be not paid.

GEOMETRY FOR SCHOOLS. Comprising Books I. and II. of Euclid, with Additions and Numerous Exercises. By A. J. G. Barclay, M.A., Mathematical Master in George Watson's College, Edinburgh.

"Geometry for Schools is an edition of the first two books of Euclid, in which symbols and contractions are largely employed, with the consequent advantage of bringing the various steps of a proposition in closer connection with one another. The diagrams, by judicious use of thick and thin lines, are made very helpful to the beginner. A large number of easy deductions and exercises are appended to each proposition, whilst more difficult exercises are supplied at the end of each book. We regard this as a very valuable school edition of Euclid's first two books."—School Guardian.

"Mr Barclay understands not only his science, but the art of teaching it."—Daily Review.

For this purpose large reservoirs were formed at Craigluscar, about three miles from Dunfermline, covering about 37 acres. But the supply not being satisfactory, the town acquired the whole works in 1865, by agreeing to pay three per cent. on the share capital of £13,350, and relieving the Company of its debt of £7400. The Town, in 1868, expended about £10,000 in the construction of an additional store reservoir at Craigluscar, covering an area of about 12 acres, and in laying enlarged main pipes from the reservoirs to the town. In 1876 the Corporation got a new Water Bill passed, and decided to introduce a plentiful supply of water into the town from the Glensherup Burn, a tributary of the river Devon. The cost of obtaining the Bill was nearly £2000, and the expense of the new works, including extensions of piping within Burgh, has been about £70,000.

LOCHLEVEN.

This Loch (in extent 3406 acres) is the property of Sir Graham Montgomery. There are three islands in it. Queen Mary's Island, on which the Castle stands, is near the town of Kinross, and measures 8 acres. Close adjoining it is a small island of about an acre, called Reed Bower; and towards the eastern side there is the island of St Serfs, measuring about 80 acres. On the latter in ancient times stood the Priory of Lochleven, distinguished as the place where Prior Winton resided, and where he wrote his well-known chronicles. The waters find their outlet at the east end. Authorised by an Act of Parliament, passed in the year 1826, extensive works were undertaken, as well to reclaim land around the Loch as to enable the mill-owners situated on the banks of the river to regulate the flow of water. A new cut of above three miles in length was made at a very low level, at the mouth of which powerful sluices were erected. By these means the permanent level of the Loch has been reduced 4½ feet in height, while still another 4½ feet has been obtained by the mill-owners to form a large reservoir of water entirely under their control. Herein the rains of winter, which often ran down in devastating floods, are stored up and made useful as a power to drive machinery during the dry months of the year. The quantity of water thus stored up when the Loch is full is estimated at 600,000,000 cubic feet, equivalent to a supply of about 80 days. The experience of about forty years, however, has shown that, with the exception of extremely dry seasons, a regular supply of about 5000 cubic feet per minute has thus been given to the mill-owners. The works were executed under the superintendence of the late Mr Jardine, Civil Engineer, Edinburgh, who placed a rain gauge (the funnel being 7 inches in diameter) in the ground at the sluice house.

A register of the rain falling there has been kept since 1842, from which the following abstract has been prepared:—

LOCHLEVEN FISHINGS.

The Loch is open for fishing from the 1st of January to the end of August. Previously to 1811 the fishing season included the month of September, but that being considered an improper arrangement the present dates were fixed upon. There is an Act of Parliament (Charles I., 28th June 1633), for the protection of the fish spawning in the streams within five miles of the Loch (as an additional means of protection, advantage is now taken of the Act 23 and 24 Victoria, Cap. 45, 23d July 1860), but the length of the fishing season is fixed by the proprietor. The Lochleven Angling Association Limited, the lessees of the fishing, let out boats, with one man, for rod fishings at 2s 6d an hour. There are twenty boats.

THE LOCHLEVEN ANGLING ASSOCIATION (LIMITED).

Has been formed to lease from Sir Graham Montgomery, Bart., the fishings on the Loch, and to keep them open and unrestricted as hitherto to the angling community. Directors—Geo. Henderson, Esq. of Turfhills, Kinross (Chairman); James Hunt, Esq. of Pittencrieff, Dunfermline; Robert Greig, Esq., Gellybank, by Kinross; Thos. Aitken, Esq., 5 Grosvenor Crescent, Edinburgh; R. This prison is under the direction of four Commissioners, appointed under the Prisons (Scotland) Act (1877), who have also a superintendence of all prisons in Scotland. The expense of the establishment is defrayed from the public funds.

The penal department consisted of two wings at the opening of the prison, on 30th March, 1842. It has since been enlarged by the addition of a third wing in 1853, and of a fourth wing in 1859. It now contains separate accommodation for 734, and associated accommodation for 62, viz.—In the male department an hospital for sick to accommodate 10; as also hospitals for imbeciles and epileptics to accommodate 20; and in the female department hospitals for sick, for imbeciles, and for epileptics, to accommodate 32.

Male and female prisoners under sentence of imprisonment, and female convicts under sentence of penal servitude, are received for their whole sentence.

Imprisonment prisoners and convicts, while undergoing probationary confinement, are treated on the separate system; but in the case of female convicts over one year tried the discipline of the separate system is relaxed.

In 1859 a new prison was built to accommodate 53 juveniles on the associated system of Parkhurst.

The juvenile prison is not now required, and has been adapted for the accommodation of 58 male criminal lunatics.

A new hospital for the accomodation of 30 female lunatics was opened on 1st June, 1881. The total available accommodation of the prison is now 884.

The Office, 26 Tay Street, Perth, is open every day from 10 till 3 o'clock, except Saturday when it shuts at 12.

Open on Saturday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock for receiving deposits ONLY Object of the Institution.

It is established for the safe custody and increase of small savings belonging to the industrious classes of the County and City of Perth; and among its other advantages the following may be mentioned:—

1. Any sum from 1s up to £150 will be received from individual depositors, provided not more than £30 is deposited by each in one year. Societies and Charitable Institutions of any kind may deposit to the extent of £100 in the year, and £300 in all; while Friendly Societies duly enrolled may lodge their whole funds without any limitation.

2. The whole or any part of the sums deposited may be withdrawn whenever required.

3. Interest is secured at a comparatively high rate. It is calculated on the accounts once a year and added to the principal by which Depositors derive the benefit of compound interest. Every sum of 5s and upwards gets the benefit of it.

4. The whole funds deposited in this Bank are specially exempt from Income Tax; and those of deceased Depositors under £100 are also exempt from Stamp and Residue Duty.

NOTE.—At the Annual General Meeting of the Trustees and Managers, held on 21st February, 1883, there were reported to be then 19,239 individual depositors, having a capital at their credit of £499,074 3 11
Charitable Institutions or Societies 9,476 4 8

SHARP'S EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION—South Methven Street.

Mr John Sharp, late baker in Perth, bequeathed the residue of his estate as a fund for the promotion of education in connection with Perth and neighbourhood, leaving to his trustees to adopt such plan as seemed to them best adapted for the religious and intellectual upbringing of young children, and, in particular to make special provision for branches of education peculiar to girls.

The School Buildings, which are large and commodious, were opened on 10th September, 1860, and are capable of accommodating about 450 pupils. The Institution comprises five separate schools—Infant, Junior, Senior, Industrial (for girls), and Technical (for boys). The Technical School has been recently added, and has a well-appointed Lecture-room, Laboratory, & Workshop.

AUCHTERARDER

Was one of the Royal Burghs of Scotland. The earliest notice we have of it occurs in the foundation charter of the Abbey of Inchaffray, by which the Earl of Strathearn, A.D. 1200, appropriated the church of Auchterarder to that house. King Alexander II., by charter dated 13th August, 1227, granted the teinds of his rents of Auchterarder to the said Abbey. It was the head burgh of Strathearn, possessing a common seal, and as such is recognised in two ordinances of Edward I. of England, issued during his usurpation of Scotland. The largest market was held on the 6th December (25th Nov. o.s.), in terms of statute of 1581; now on the first Wednesday of December.

To educate those children whose parents are unable to do so. 5. To aid the unemployed of both sexes in obtaining employment. 6. BISHOP'S HOSPITAL (1531), Founded by Bishop Dunbar, "For the maintenance of twelve poor men, where they may say prayers and count their beads without molestation." For many years past in lieu of residence in the Hospital, a money payment (at present 12s. monthly) is given to each of the Beadsmen, who are now 18 in number, in consequence of additional funds having been acquired by the Hospital.

From the foundation of the Hospital to the Reformation, the Hospital was governed by a Director named by the Bishop, under the superintendence of the Dean and Chapter; from the Reformation to the Revolution, by a Director or Master named by the Bishop while Episcopacy was established, or by the Kirk-Session of Old Machar. At the Revolution, the new Sovereigns, William and Mary, exercised the right of nomination to the office of Master, and in some respects altered the management of the Hospital, nominating the Principal and Sub-Principal of the University, and the Minister of the First Charge of Old Machar as overseers of the Hospital and Auditors of the Master's Accounts. Since the union of Marischal and King's Colleges the management has been vested in the Principal of the University and the Senior Minister of Old Machar. Factor —Thomas Youngson, Advocate.

MILNE FUND (1880),

Instituted in 1803 for the benefit of the labouring poor of the parish of Old Machar who have spent the best of their days in the service of the citizens, and are entitled to look to them for protection and support when overtaken by poverty and old age.

The fund amounts to £1000, and was originated by Mr James Calder, wine merchant in Aberdeen, giving a donation of £500 for the purpose, and by a bequest of £500 from his son, Alexander Calder, of 22 Woburn Place, London, in terms of deed of settlement, dated 20th September, 1862.

A wish was expressed by the original founder of the fund that, in the annual distribution, not less than 20s shall be given to any individual, and, where there is a family of young children, not less than 40s.

The number of persons who receive benefit from the fund at present is 20, one half being selected from those belonging to the north district, and one half to the south district of the parish—the recipients not being on the poor's roll.

The sum of £90 was divided equally at Christmas of 1882 among 180 recipients, one half being in the north district, and the other half in the south district of the parish.

VII.—GUILDS, TRADE INCORPORATIONS, BURIAL, BENEFIT, AND DEPOSIT SOCIETIES.

ABERDEEN GUILDRY AND INCORPORATED TRADES.

These two bodies, one a genuine Merchant Guild of the 13th century, the other a Confederation of Craft Guilds of the 16th, by their old historic connection with the city, and by the amount they annually distribute, take the first place among the benevolent and charitable institutions of Aberdeen. Any commercial privileges which were of old enjoyed by either have long since ceased, but the Mutual Benefit Society advantages of both remain intact, and it is with these that we have here to do. In grants to aged members, their widows, and daughters, these two institutions give over £10,000 a-year, and this large sum would have been more than doubled if the Guild Brethren had been as chary of their confidence as the Craftsmen were. The accumulated Funds of the Guildry were lent to the city from the very earliest times. They had grown by slow degrees, were mixed inextricably with the funds proper belonging to the Corporation, and were managed by the Guildry as Town Councillors up to the passing of the first Reform Bill. These funds a century ago yielded an annual revenue of about £800 on a capital stock of £25,000. The funds are now valued at £48,000, yielding over £1800 a-year, being rather more than 3½ per cent. on the accumulated capital of the Guild, still, as of old, in the hands of the Town Council. The Charter of Incorporation gave to the Trades the power to hold, invest, and manage their funds. These, which were at one time, less in amount than those of the Guildry, are now worth fully £180,000, and yield rather more than £8000 a year.

Entrance to the Guildry, is by formal petition, signed by two Brethren, to the Dean of Guild and Assessors. These have the right to refuse or accept applicants. The present entry money is for Sons, £16 6s. 8d.

Extraneans, £26 6s. 7d. To the Seven Incorporated Trades, Craftsmen only are admitted. The rate is different in the different Trades, Sons, Sons-in-law, and Apprentices have one scale of payment, Extraneans another. The Deacon or Boxmaster of any individual trade will give all information connected with their craft, and the Town Clerk will give full particulars about the Guildry.

THE GUILDS AND THE CONVENER COURT OF OLD ABERDEEN.

In Old Aberdeen, with but little alteration, the entry, management, and distribution of the revenues of the Merchant Guild, the Trades, and the Convener Court continue as they were 250 years ago. Their accumulated capital is not large. Their revenues are wholly devoted to the aid of Members, Widows, or Orphan Daughters. The Entrance to Membership of Sons, Sons-in-law, and Apprentices is made light, but the numbers entering are few. The Town Council grant a sum to the Merchant Guild, and the office-bearers in the Crafts grant entry to the various Trade's Guilds. The revenue of the accumulated capital of the Convener Court is divided among the annuitants of the various Crafts, who had become members of the Convener Court. These allowances are all regulated by the number of yearly payments made, and no member or members' dependants has a right to claim who has not made, prior to claiming, at least ten separate yearly payments.

Only those who, by payment of the entry money, were already members of the Merchant Guild, could become members of this Society, and, into its fund, they have to make, at least, ten yearly payments before their right to aid for Self, Widow, or Orphan is admitted.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY

Was originated in 1788, chiefly for the purpose of social intercourse, with a charge for membership of half-a-crown. In 1797 its object was turned to a more practical purpose, with a materially increased charge upon new entrants, and the revenue from funds thus derived fell to be annually divided amongst decayed members, and Widows, or Children of Members. From this fresh start when the entry money was £2 2s., and 4s. of annual payment, the charge for admission into membership of the Society has gradually increased till entrants have now to pay £15 if unmarried, and £50 if married. The revenue from accumulated funds continues to be divided, according to original arrangement, into sums of about £20 per annum, but varying with the number of beneficiaries.

The affairs of the Society are under the management of 15 members periodically elected. Office-bearers—President, A. Edmond, Garthdee House; Vice-President, P. Duguid, advocate; Treasurer, J. M. Garden; Secretary, W. Williamson. Factor, James Duguid, advocate, Aberdeen.

ODDFELLOW SOCIETIES.

About the middle of last century Oddfellows' Lodges existed in various places, but they seem to have been little more than clubs instituted for social and convivial purposes, adopting a similar system with Free Masonry, of initiatory rites, phraseology, and organisation, and only occasionally extending charitable assistance to members.

At Manchester, in 1812, the Order was placed on its present basis; the main purpose of Oddfellowship being, as declared by its laws:—"To render assistance to every brother who may apply through sickness, distress, or otherwise, if he be well attached to the Queen, and Government, and faithful to the Order."

Oddfellowship still retains some of the characteristics of Free Masonry in possessing pass-words and peculiar "grips." The Order is now one of the most extensive self-governed provident associations in the world. A few years ago the annual income was about £350,000, and its expenditure, £300,000. Many of the Lodges are enrolled under the Friendly Societies' Act, but each Lodge is left free to enrol or not as they think fit.

BANFFSHIRE.

This County, which lies on the south of the Moray Firth, is bounded on the west by Moray and Inverness-shires, and on the east and south by Aberdeenshire. Its greatest length is 57 miles, and its greatest width (along the coast) is 34 miles, but its average width only 12 miles. Area, 686 square miles, or 439,040 acres. Population in 1881, 62,731. Parliamentary constituency, 2777. Valued rental for 1877-8, £217,316 12s 8d; 1878-9, £221,123 4s 5d; 1879-80, £222,759 8s 2d; 1880-81, £224,587 7s 0d (exclusive of railways, £14,711); 1881-2 (including railways), £240,114 8s 5d; 1882-3, £227,415 9s 6d (exclusive of railways), and including railways, £241,624 9s 6d; 1883-4 (exclusive of railways), £228,152 15s, and railways, £13,187.

Banffshire comprehends the districts of Boyne, Enzie, the greater part of Strathdeveron, Strathisla, Glenfiddich, Glenrinnes, Glenlivet, and Strathavon; and the civic parishes of Aberlour, Alva, Banff, Botriphnie, Boyndie, Cullen, Deskford, St. Fergus, Fordyce, Forglen, Gamrie, Grange, Inverkeithny, Marnoch, Mortlach, Ordiquhill, Rathven, Rothiemay. It contains also almost the whole of the parishes of Keith and Inveravon, and parts of Bellie, Boharm, Cabrach, and Gartly; and also very small parts of Dairney, Glass, Oldmachar, Newmachar, and Rothes.

The South of Banffshire is very mountainous, being enclosed, and partly occupied, by the highest group of mountains in Britain. Here the scenery is exceedingly wild, and often sublime in its loneliness and grandeur. The middle and northern parts of the county are very hilly, but frequent glens and wide straths occur, especially in the north; and these, being cultivated with the utmost care and skill, amply repay the labours of the husbandman. The principal crops are oats, barley, turnips, and potatoes. Great attention is paid to the breeding and rearing of cattle. The towns and villages of the inland districts of the county are Keith, Fife-Keith, Newmill, Aberchirder, Dufftown, Charlestown, and Tomintoul.

The great body of the population is, however, distributed along the coast, and chiefly in towns and villages, all more or less engaged in, and dependent upon, the valuable white, herring, and salmon fisheries on the coast. Banff herrings are highly esteemed in the foreign market. The coast towns are the Royal burghs of Banff and Cullen; the towns of Macduff, Portsoy, and Buckie; and the villages of Crovie, Gardenstown, Whitehills, Sandend, Portknockie, Findochty, Portessie, and Portgordon. The shipping and trade of these ports are considerable. The imports are chiefly coals, timber, manures, iron, and salt; and the exports, grain, cattle, fish, and whisky, &c.

THE ROYAL BURGH OF BANFF.

Situated by rail 50 miles N. by W. of Aberdeen, and 38½ E. of Elgin, occupies the slop of a hill descending gradually towards the Deveron and the Moray Firth. From the sea, and from the east, more especially from the Banff (Bridge) Station, it presents a very interesting and picturesque appearance. Internally the town comprises several well built streets, which are adorned with many large and elegant modern buildings. It has always borne, and deservedly, the highest character for cleanliness and salubrity. Banff and its neighbourhood are associated with many historical events. It is probable that it possessed the privileges of a Royal Burgh before the time of William the Lion, and these privileges were confirmed by Robert Bruce and Robert II. The population in 1881 was 4203, showing a considerable increase during the ten years. The Municipal Constituency is 660 (including 183 females). The valuation of the Burgh to Whitsunday, 1883, including railways, is £12,487 14s 0d, showing a large increase in the annual value within the last few years. The Earls of Fife and Seafield have lately granted very eligible feus upon their lands adjoining the town. Plans of the proposed extension have been prepared by order of their Lordships, and already advantage has been taken of the facilities thus afforded for building towards the west; and at present there is an extension of villas towards the south, along the Sandyhill Road. The society is good, and the educational institutions are not surpassed by those of any town in the north. The Library of the Literary Society is extensive and well selected, while the Museum belonging to the burgh is stored with articles of vertu from all parts of the world. Recently there has been added to the attractions of the burgh a Bath House with all the newest appliances, which, along with the natural amenities of the place, has had the effect of largely increasing the number of summer visitors. A handsome drinking fountain, designated the "Biggar Memorial," has also been erected on the site of the ancient Cross in Low Street. Tourists have of late years discovered that there are objects of interest and beauty in Banff and its neighbourhood worthy of being visited, and the railways from both north and south render the locality of easy access. Duff House, the principal seat of the Earl of Fife, is in the immediate neighbourhood. The hotel accommodation is excellent. Banff as a seaport has a good harbour and considerable shipping. The chief industries are the manufacture of woollen goods, leather, and tobacco; shipbuilding, ironfounding, distilling, brewing and printing. The fisheries also are important.

The Parliamentary burgh of Banff includes Macduff, a burgh of Barony, distant about half a mile on the east side of the Deveron, and with a population of 3638. Banff is one of the Elgin district of burghs, and its Parliamentary constituency is 972.

Alexander Asher, Solicitor-General for Scotland, is M.P. for the Burgh.

MORAYSHIRE.

This county may be considered as that part forming what may have been the home district of the ancient and extensive "Province of Moray." It is about 40 miles north and south, and 20 east and west. On the east it is bounded by Banffshire, and on the west by Inverness and Nairn shires; on the north it is washed by the Moray Firth.

The whole area is estimated at 531 square miles, or 340,000 acres. The rural population in 1881 was 45,052, the total population, including burghs of Elgin and Forres, being 56,471. The parliamentary constituency in 1881 was 1746. The value of property within the County, for the year 1882-83 is, including railways, but excluding Royal Burghs of Elgin and Forres, £183,729.

The county is divided into the parishes of Alves, St. Andrews-Lhanbryd, Birnie, Cromdale, Dallas, Drainie, Duffus, Dyke, Edinkillie, Elgin, Forres, Kinloss, Knockando, Rafford, Rothes, Speymouth, New Spynie, Urquhart, and part of Bellie, Boharm, Keith, and Inveravon.

The lower part of Morayshire is exceedingly fertile, and in no district is farming better understood, or more successfully prosecuted. The rivers in the shire are the Spey, the Findhorn, and the Lossie. The scenery is varied, embracing every character of sylvan, marine, alpine, and champaign. It boasts of two royal burghs—Elgin, which is the head burgh, and Forres—besides the important villages of Findhorn, Lhanbryd, Burghead, Lossiemouth, Hopeman, Branderburgh, Rothes, Fochabers, Garmouth, Kingston, Grantown, Archiestown, New Elgin, Dallas, &c.

CITY AND BURGH OF ELGIN.

This city is beautifully situated in the lower district of the county. It was made a royal burgh by William the Lion. The scenery around the town is in many points of view exquisitely fine, and internally the town relatively presents an appearance of wealth. The buildings—which of late years have been considerably added to—are generally tasteful, and throughout there is a considerable air of cleanliness. The parish church is conspicuous from its position and style of architecture. Gray's Hospital occupies a healthy site. The institutions of the place are varied and important, while the Morayshire branch of the Great North of Scotland Railway has the effect of virtually making it a seaport. Population in 1881 was 7388; parliamentary constituency in 1883, 919. Elgin is the head of the Elgin District of Burghs, and is justly famed for the ruins of its once magnificent cathedral. The value of property, exclusive of railways, within the parliamentary boundaries for the year 1883-84 was £31,212 18s 1d.

ROYAL BURGH OF FORRES.

Forres was enfranchised by William I., and consists of several streets, the two principal extending from east to west. In the centre of these stands a handsome market-cross, much in the style of Sir Walter Scott's monument in Edinburgh. Forres has no resident sheriff-substitute; but courts by the sheriff, justices of the peace, and baillies of the burgh, are regularly held in the court-house. There is a prison connected with the public buildings, and the whole is surmounted by an elegant spire, with clock, which is supplied with illuminated glass dials. It is in Forres, which is the centre of the combined counties of Elgin or Moray and Nairnshires, that the member for these counties is elected. The scenery around Forres can scarcely be surpassed, from the variety of prospect afforded by the neighbouring ground, the windings of the Findhorn, &c.; and Forres, now so easy of access by the Highland Railway, from Perth to this burgh, is fast becoming one of the loved spots of Scotland. From its sweet and genial climate, the Forres district has long been known as the Montpelier of Scotland. This has been the cause of its being selected for the erection of a Hydropathic Establishment, which is one of the most complete and well conducted in the kingdom. To the east of the town is a storied obelisk, hitherto the reproach of antiquarian lore. Population at last census was 4562. Constituency, 553; Revenue of Burgh taken from town's account of year 1882-83, £2,073 9s 9d. Distance from Inverness by upper Nairn road, 26½ miles; by lower 23½. Forres forms one of the Inverness District of Burghs. By rail the distance is 24¾ miles to Inverness. The Perth and Inverness section of the Highland Railway, opened in September 1863, has its junction with the Main Line at Forres; and the great traffic, which has even surpassed the expectations of its Directors, has considerably increased the trade and importance of the town.

ANDERSON'S INSTITUTION,

For the Free Education of Poor Children of the Parishes of Forres, Rafford, and Kinloss.

Trustees, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council. R. Urquhart, treas. John Sutherland, master of the school

The property of this Institution consists of a school and teachers' houses in one handsome building, surmounted by an elegant spire, and ground, together with £4996 invested. The proceeds of this investment, after answering the scholastic expenditure of the Institution, are divided amongst decayed householders of the town of Forres. The building has recently been remodelled to meet the requirements of the Education Act in order to secure the Government Grant—upwards of £3000, including £2500 by an unknown donor, having been subscribed for that purpose.

NAIRNSHIRE.

This county is bounded on the west by Inverness-shire, south by Banffshire, north by the Moray Firth, and east by Morayshire, of which it anciently formed a part. It extends north and south 22 miles, and 15 east and west. Its area is 200 square miles, or 129,000 acres; 70,000 of these are tilled, 30,000 untilled, and 28,000 are unproductive. The following are the parishes into which the county is divided, viz.: Ardclach, Auldearn, Nairn, and part of Cawdor, Croy, Daviot, Dyke, Moy, Petty, and Urquhart.

The population in 1881 was 10,454. The constituency is 300. The valued rental in 1674 was £15,162 Scots; according to the Valuation Roll of 1883-84, it is £37,142 19s 4d, including the railway valuation. Nairn is the only royal burgh in the county; but there are the villages of Cawdor and Auldearn. The county is under the same sheriff as Inverness and Elgin. It also joins Moray in sending a member to Parliament; and is municipally and otherwise perfectly independent.

BURGH OF NAIRN.

Nairn is most pleasantly situated, and is generally considered as very healthy. It is much frequented by invalids and others on account of its pure air and advantages of sea-bathing, while it is provided with the best artificial baths in the North, whether taken cold, tepid, or hot. Nairn was regalised by William the Lion. Many of the inhabitants are fishermen, but it cannot be called a fishing-station in the larger sense of that term. It stands on the north bank of the river from which it derives its name, within a very short distance of its junction with the sea. For this reason it was anciently called Invernairn. Population in 1881, of Parliamentary Burgh, 4161; of Royal Burgh, 4678; and of the Parish of Nairn, 5364. Constituency of Burgh, 1883-84—Males, 359; Females, 135; total, 494. Rental per Valuation Roll of 1883-84, £13,710 0s 10d, including railway valuation. Distance from Inverness by Campbelltown, seventeen and a-half miles; by the new or upper road, fifteen and a half miles; by Culloden Moor, Croy, and Cawdor, seventeen; and by railway, fifteen.

INVERNESS-SHIRE.

This is the largest county in Scotland. From east to west it extends 85 miles, and 55 from north to south. It includes the extensive districts of Badenoch, Lochaber, Strathglass, Glenelg, Arisaig, the Aird, Lovat country, and Moidart, besides the most important of the Western Isles, including Skye, North and South Uist, Barra, Raasay, Harris, &c. St. Kilda is also part of Inverness-shire.

The face of the country is generally mountainous, and contains the highest eminences in Scotland. Among these are Ben Nevis, 4406 feet above the level of the sea, upon the summit of which a Meteorological Observatory was opened on the 17th October, 1883; Scarsough, 3414; Mealfourvonie, 3060; and the Abriachan granite hills. The principal rivers are the Ness, the Nairn, the Findhorn, the Spey, the Lochy, the Oich, the Garry, the Glass, the Farrar, and the Beauly. The principal lakes are Loch Ness, Loch Oich, and Loch Lochy. These rivers and lakes abound in fish; and the districts, chiefly consisting of moor, yield abundance of the several sorts of game. The scenery almost everywhere is beautiful, and in many places grand. Of these descriptions are especially the parts between Beauly Bridge and Aigas, along the line of the Caledonian Canal, the Falls of Foyers, the Pass of Inverfarigaig, &c.

Inverness-shire is well traversed with roads; while the Caledonian Canal, and the safe and convenient navigation afforded by the east and west seas, renders communication easy between it and all other parts of the world.

It contains the following parishes, and parts of parishes, viz.:—Alvie, Ardersier, Ardnamurchan, Barra, Boleskine and Abertarff, Bracadale, Daviot and Dunlichity, Dores, Durinish, Rothiemurchus, Glenelg, Harris, Inverness, Kilmonivaig, Kilmorack, Kilmuir, Kiltarlity, Kingussie, Kirkhill, Laggan, Moy, Petty, Portree, Sleat, Snizort, Strath, N. Uist, S. Uist, Urquhart and Glenmorriston, Abernethy, Cawdor, Inverallan, Croy, Duthill, Kilmailie, and Small Isles. These occupy an area of 4,255 square miles, or 2,723,501 acres.

The population in 1881 was 90,414. The old valued rental of the year 1690 was 53,888 pounds Scots. The ordinary rental of the County for the year 1883-84 is £329,155 9s 1d. Highland Railway, £17,511; Great North of Scotland Railway Company, £1,984; and Caledonian Canal, £873. Gross annual value of County, exclusive of Burgh, £349,523 9s 1d. The constituency—County, 1962; Burgh, 2707.

There is but one Royal Burgh in the shire; but there are the villages of Campbelltown, Beauly, Kingussie, Fort-Augustus, Fort-William, Portree, Broadford, Lochmaddy, &c. All matters connected with its government are conducted at Inverness, and the officials there have jurisdiction over the whole county; but for the better administration of justice, the shire is divided into the districts of Inverness, Fort-William, Skye, and the Long Island, each being under the separate jurisdiction of a Sheriff-Substitute; and the three former, with Kingussie and Lochmaddy, are the polling places for county elections.

CALEDONIAN CANAL—(ORIGINALLY OPENED IN 1822.)

The line of this grand national work passes through the Great Glen of Scotland, in which the extensive lochs—Ness, Oich, and Lochy—lie embedded, presenting to the tourist some of the most magnificent scenery in the world. Since the late improvements were executed, the route has become a favourite one with large craft passing westward from the Baltic, &c.

The Canal is sixty miles in length, of which thirty-eight are lake water, and twenty-two are cutting. There are twenty-nine locks on the line—the rise to the summit level in Loch Oich being about 100 feet above high water of ordinary neap tides. It can accommodate vessels not exceeding in dimensions, over all, viz.—Length, 160 feet—width, 38 feet—draught of water when at the standard level, 17 feet. Steam tugboats have been put on for tugging vessels through the lakes and estuaries on the line of the navigation.

The toll for passing along the Canal from sea to sea is rated the dead weight of cargo on the rates varying from 6d. to 1s. 6d. per ton, according to the nature of the cargo, the same rates applying to the first 100 tons of larger vessels, but being only 1s per ton on so much of the tonnage as exceeds 100 tons; on unladen vessels, or vessels in ballast, the dues for passing wholly through the canal are 1s. per ton of the registered tonnage of the vessel, B.M. For less distances they are rated proportionally. Screw steamers are charged 1s 9d per ton; paddle steamers, 2s per ton reg.

The above is exclusive of a moderate charge for steam tugboats when they are used. Special duties are levied on steam passage boats and vessels loading or discharging cargoes in the Canal basin or Harbours.

The Canal Charge.—Through rates on Herrings, and Timber (not manufactured), are one shilling per ton of herring, or load of timber. Coals and salt, 6d per ton. Slates, 9d per ton.

Since 1st August, 1861, by Act of Parliament the following Duties have been levied on Passengers passing through the Caledonian and Crinan Canals:—

PER SWIFT PASSAGE STEAMERS.

30 and under 60 miles, 1st class, 1s, 2nd class, 6d; 30 and under — miles, 1st class, 6d, 2nd class, 3d.

PER LUGGAGE STEAMER.

For each Cabin Passenger, above 30 and under 60 miles, 6d.; do., 30 miles and under, 3d. For each Steerage Passenger, above 30 and under 60 miles, 4d; do., 30 miles and under, 2d.

BURGH OF INVERNESS.

This ancient Royal Burgh, once solely on the south-east, now occupies considerable space on both sides of the Ness. The communication between these two natural divisions, previous to 1808, was carried on by means of a handsome stone bridge, erected in 1685, which, however, was borne down by the memorable flood of 24th January, 1849. Since 1808, with the exception of short interruptions, the town rejoices in the convenience of two bridges, and to these are now added a handsome foot bridge, which crosses the river at the upper end of Ness Bank, and a second, and equally handsome foot bridge (iron suspension), which crosses the river from Greig Street to Church Lane. An elegant iron suspension bridge, opened in 1856, has been erected on the site of the old stone bridge. The south-east is still the business side of the town. Great improvements have taken place in Inverness within the last thirty years, in new buildings, upon the roads and walks along the banks of the Ness and principal thoroughfares of the town, and in providing formore efficient sewerage. In 1874 the Lindsay Act in its entirety was introduced into the burgh. The Gas and Water Company has proved of considerable utility. In the Parliament of 1875 a Bill was passed empowering the Corporation to buy up the Gas and Water Co., and to introduce water by gravitation from Loch Ashie. The stock of Gas and Water Co. was bought. At the head of the institutions may be placed the Caledonian Bank, and the several Railway Companies—Highland, Sutherland, Duke of Sutherland, and Sutherland and Caithness—under one working management at Inverness. There are several handsome buildings—the Caledonian Bank, the Railway Station, the Castle and County Prison, the Highland Club, Station Hotel, the Free High Church, Lombard Street, St. Andrew's Cathedral, Young Men's Christian Association Buildings, Workmen's Club, Town Hall, the Hotels, Royal Tartan Warehouse, Free Library, School of Art, and Museum, &c. The Highland Railway Company have an elegant building for offices, &c., which cost about £12,000, besides extensive new workshops, and in 1881 spent £6000 on the extension of the Station Hotel. The new Town Hall was completed in November, 1880, at a cost of £10,000. Private villas are constantly springing up in the town and suburbs. There are several public walks in the neighbourhood. The Ness Islands form the principal walk in the summer months, but they are very badly kept. Neither labour nor money is ever expended in attending to those delightful walks which are the admiration of all visitors.

The principal streets on the south-east side of the river are High Street, Bridge Street, Petty Street, Inglis Street, Church Street, Union Street, Academy Street, Chapel Street, Shore Street, Douglas Row, Bank Street, Rose Street, Castle Street, Drummond Street, and Lombard Street; and on the north-west, Huntly Street, Telford Street, Celt Street, Grant Street, Queen Street, Kessock Street, Telford Road, &c.

Inverness was erected into a Royal burgh by William the Lion. The old Royalty did not include many important parts of the town, the one side of some streets being within, and the other without the liberties—thus affording to violators of the law protection from the jurisdiction of the magistrates. By the Burgh Act, 1847, this is obviated, by extending the boundaries to the parliamentary royalty, as fixed at the passing of the Reform Bill in 1832. This extends from the Clachnaharry pier in a straight line to the upper angle of the Ness Islands. Crossing the Ness the line runs along Aultnaskiah burn, and across the Muirfield, to a point near the Poorhouse, thence in a line drawn due North to the sea, and thence to the first-mentioned point at Clachnaharry pier. For municipal purposes the royalty is divided into three different wards—1st, the west side of the river Ness, returning alternately two and three councillors annually; 2d, all south of a line drawn along the centre of Bridge Street, High Street, Petty Street, and the Millburn Road, returning alternately two and three councillors annually; 3d, all north of the line drawn along centre of Bridge Street, &c., returning alternately two and three councillors annually. The population of the burgh in 1881 was 17,366. The burghal constituency is 2707; and the valuation in 1883-84 is £85,501 2s 3d.

For choosing persons to represent proprietors of heritages below the annual value of £20, at the Parochial Board, the town and parish are also very simply divided into the same number of wards.

The old Castle of Inverness—destroyed by the Highland army in 1746—occupied the present site of the Castle and County Prison. Cromwell's Fort—now called "the Citadel"—is close by the harbour, the moat being filled up. On the west side of the town are the vitrified fort of Craig Phadraig, and the well-wooded and singularly-shaped hill of Tomnahurich, on the summit and west side of which is a tastefully laid-out cemetery. At a distance of four miles south-east of the town lies the battlefield of Culloden, where ended the hopes of the Stuart line, and closed the opposition to the present reigning dynasty. At Clachnaharry, a monument is erected, commemorating a sanguinary affray between the Mackintoshes and Munroes in 1454.

STEAMBOATS.

INVERNESS, THE WESTERN ISLES, AND GLASGOW.

The steamers of Mr David MacBrayne, Glasgow, ply regularly during the year between Inverness and Glasgow, via Caledonian and Crinan Canals. In the summer months, there is daily communication, each way, by swift steamers. In connection with these, from Oban, Mr MacBrayne's steamers ply to Staffa and Iona, Glencoe, Skye and Gairloch, Stornoway, &c. A steamer, carrying the mails, leaves Inverness every afternoon (except Sunday) at 3, for all Loch-ness Piers and Fort-Augustus. Returning from Fort-Augustus every morning (Sunday excepted) at 6, in connection with the limited mail train for the south. Steamers carrying goods, as well as passengers, leave Inverness and Glasgow twice a-week (Mondays and Thursdays), during the whole year. Steamers likewise ply regularly (twice a-week in summer, and once a-week in winter) from Glasgow to Oban, Tobermory, Portree, and Stornoway, calling at the various intermediate ports in Mull and Skye: also, fortnightly at Gairloch, Ullapool, Lochinver, Lochmaddy, and Tarbert (Harris). Passengers and Goods from Inverness for these places change steamers at Oban. BEAULY.

This village, a Burgh of Barony, is situated on the north bank of the river of that name. It is, on the whole, a clean, regularly laid out, well-built little place, with a population of 950 souls. The road to it lies by Clachnaharry, Bunchrew, Phopachy, and Bogroy, and thence by Moniack and Beauly Bridge, or by Kirkhill and Beauly Ferry. The ferry is impassable by horses or carriages, but a boat plies for the use of foot passengers. In Beauly are the ruins of a Priory, founded by John Bisset of Lovat in 1230. At the Reformation, it reverted in trust to the Lovat family, but now forms part of the jurisdiction of "Woods and Forests." Beauly rejoices in several inns, which are much frequented by tourists visiting the unsurpassed scenery of the Falls of Kilmorack, the Dreim, Strathglass, the Chisholm's Pass, Prince Charlie's Cave in Glenstrathfarrar, and the ruins of Castle Spynie, and the vitrified forts, Dunmore, Dunaver, and Dunfion, besides Beaufort Castle, Belladrum, and the ruins of Kilchrist, the scene of the Macdonells burning the M'Kenzies alive; the beautiful Burn of Teanassie, Dunmore of Breachachy, anciently the stronghold of the M'Leans of Kilmorack; Reelig Burn, where thirty-six different varieties of ferns are to be found, besides other rare plants and trees; Tarradale House, the birthplace of Sir Roderick J. Murchison; Redcastle, the oldest inhabited house perhaps in all Scotland; the Ruins of Kilcoy Castle. At Culbirnie there is a Druid Circle in a complete state of preservation. Beauly is traversed by the great north road to Dingwall, Tain, and Wick. There is an Established, Free, and Roman Catholic, Church in the village. Divine service in the Established Church every Sunday at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., and in the Free Church every Sunday at 2 p.m. and 6.30 p.m. The evening service in the Free Church is held alternately in English and Gaelic. Distance from Inverness by Moniack and Beauly Bridge, twelve miles; by Kirkhill and Beauly Ferry, nine and a-half miles. The Highland Railway Station is within half a mile of the village.

CAMPBELLTOWN.

The village of Campbelltown lies about a mile and a-half south of Fort-George. It is built without any regard to regularity, and affords qualifications for about twenty voters at the county election. Partly it is a fishing village, and is resorted to during the summer months as a bathing place, and by invalids in search of health, for its chalybeate waters. There are several hotels, and the Fort-George station of the Highland Railway is about a mile and a-half from the village, while its proximity to Fort-George brings it no inconsiderable number of visitors. Distance from Inverness, ten miles.

The route eastward to it lies by Culloden, Castle-Stuart, the Church of Petty, Connage, and the village of Campbelltown. The ramparts are bomb-proof. The casemates are fitted as large barrack-rooms, and it is said that within the walls is accommodation for nearly 2000 men and officers. Distance from Inverness about twelve miles. FORT-WILLIAM.

Fort-William situated at the head of Loch Linne, was built shortly after the Revolution, by the revolutionary general, Mackay. Like others of the same line of strongholds, it has outlived its original purpose. It is a small place, approaching the triangular rather than any other form. It is now dismounted, and has become the property of Mrs. Cameron Campbell, of Monzie, by purchase from the Government. The principal features in the works are a ditch, ravelin, and glacis. It contains a bomb-proof magazine, and accommodation for a limited garrison. It was assailed in 1745 by a part of Prince Charles Edward's army; but Cumberland's march on Inverness obliged the siege to be raised. As it has its name from King William III., the adjoining village was called Maryburgh, in honour of his consort, but this is a distinction practically laid aside. The town consists principally of three parallel lines of buildings, forming two streets, in which are several good hotels and shops. It contains about 1700 inhabitants. Immediately on the south-east, Ben Nevis, the highest mountain in Scotland—ascertained, by recent Government survey, (1869) to be 4406 feet above the level of the sea, and its circumference at the base is supposed to exceed 24 miles—towers into the clouds. There is now a Meteorological Observatory established upon Ben Nevis, under the superintendence of R. T. Omond of Edinburgh, assisted by Angus Rankin, who, with a servant, reside in the Observatory and take hourly observations. A road has been constructed and telegraph communication provided. The Observatory was formally opened on 17th October, 1883. There is also a station at the sea level, where observations are taken daily by Mr Livingston, of the Public School—all being under the direction of the Scottish Meteorological Society.

KINGUSSIE.

This is the capital of the once renowned lordship of Badenoch. It is exactly by rail half-way between Inverness and Perth. It was all but inaccessible to the general public until that great undertaking, the "Inverness and Perth Junction Railway," now the "Highland Railway," opened up the Highlands through and through. This railway is turning out a good investment for the Shareholders, and it is having a great and lasting effect on the Highlands for good. It is not unlikely Kingussie may largely share in its benefits, from its position, nestled among the highest mountains in Scotland, and about fifty miles removed from the sea on all sides. It has already become a favourite resort for parties from the sea-side, in quest of change of air. The inhabitants, who seem anxious to encourage the residence of strangers among them, seem to be doing all they can to make the place as inviting as possible. They have unanimously adopted the necessary clauses of the Police Act, for the purpose of getting the village thoroughly drained, and pure spring water from the hills introduced, for both of which there are rare facilities. These movements are in the right direction, and, if properly carried out, ought to make Kingussie as healthy a little village as any in the kingdom. Evan Baillie, Esq. of Dochfour, Glenelg, &c., is the Superior, and much depends on the encouragement he gives to these efforts of the inhabitants; but if fairly followed up, this village, beautifully situated on the banks of the Spey, and the centre of an extensive district of country, may yet become a place of considerable importance.

SKYE—PORTREE.

Skye is a judicial division of Inverness-shire, and Portree is the seat of court. It is reached by steamer from Oban, or by rail by Dingwall, Contin, Garve, Auchinault, Luib, Craig, & Lochcarron, to Strome Ferry, and thence by railway steamer. It is called Portree—a contraction and corruption of "Port-an-Righ"—the king's haven or harbour—because James V. dropped anchor there, while making a progress round his kingdom. The bay is beautifully picturesque, and the town has lately rapidly risen in importance. Distance from Inverness, by Oban, about 210 miles; by Beauly, Dingwall, and Strome Ferry, 131; by Invermorriston and Sheil House, 109 miles.

FORT-AUGUSTUS, OR KILCUMMIN.

Fort-Augustus stands on the western extremity of Lochness. The land routes to it from Inverness are, on the south of Lochness by Dores, 8 miles, the famous fall of Foyers, 16, and thence through Stratherrick—and on the north by Lochend, 7 miles, Drumnadrochit, in the beautiful Glen of Urquhart, 14, and Invermoriston, 27; and by steam through the Canal, which is lined by the most magnificent scenery imaginable. There is a small village here, formerly called Kilcummin, to which the name of the Fort is now common. It has long been famous for the salubriousness of the climate, and being situated in the middle of the great Glen of Scotland, and on the line of frequent steam communication between Glasgow and Inverness, it is one of the most convenient centres in the Highlands. It possesses a first-class hotel; and a mail steamer now plies every day between Fort-Augustus and Inverness—distance 33½ miles—in connection with the mail trains to and from the south. The fort, which was built in 1734, was of square construction, bastioned at the angles, and protected by a ditch, a covered way, and glacis. In 1876 the Fort and glacis, which had previously been purchased from the Government, was given by Lord Lovat to the Monks of the Benedictine Order, who, though suppressed in Scotland at the Reformation, were still maintained at the Scotch Abbey of St James, at Ratisbon, and who have now converted the old barracks into a large Monastery, and a commodious college for the sons of Catholic gentry and nobility. The students are prepared for the army, navy, and civil service. The college has been constituted into a "Local Centre" for the Glasgow University examinations, and is also associated with the London University. The Monastic staff of teachers is supplemented by Professors from the English Universities. Of the four blocks of buildings between the bastions the northern has been changed into the College, the eastern into the Monastery, the western into the Hospitium, or Guest-house, and the southern has been removed to make way for a large church. The interior quadrangle is surrounded by very fine cloisters. The new buildings are in the Early English style, whilst the bastions and other features connected with the associations of the place have not been destroyed. By a Papal Brief, dated December 12, 1883, the Monastery was raised to the dignity of an Abbey, and made independent of the jurisdiction of the Benedictines in England.

The village and lands are now the property of the Right Hon. Simon Lord Lovat.

The Parishes of North and South Uist, Harris and Barra, form a judicial district of the County, Lochmaddy being the seat of the Court, where there are County Buildings, Prison, &c. Mails are despatched daily at 6 A.M. to the south end of South Uist, and thence three times a week to Barra. The Kelp manufacture, which was formerly extensively carried on in these islands, is fast declining. The lobster fisheries afford employment to a great number of the native boats, and there are also extensive cod and ling fisheries. The herring fishing is also an important one in its season during May and June, but is extensively carried on by boats from the east and Argyleshire coasts.

ROSS-SHIRE.

This county is of great extent, stretching from the shores of the Moray Firth on the east to the Atlantic on the west. The island of The Lewis forms part of the county. On the south the county is bounded by Inverness-shire, and on the north by Sutherland. For judicial purposes the counties of Cromarty and Sutherland are joined to Ross, the sheriffdom bearing the title of Ross, Cromarty, and Sutherland. The same sheriff-depute presides over all; but each county is distinct in jurisdiction, except in regard to such parts of the county of Cromarty as are locally situate in Ross, which are subject to the jurisdiction of the officials of the sheriff courts at Dingwall and Tain. For other purposes they are separate.

Its length is 67 miles, and its breadth, 58; its area is 2774 miles, or 1,775,830 acres. Of these, 301,000 are productive, 545,000 are untilled, and 929,830 are irreclaimable. The valuation, exclusive of railways, amounts to £283,588 11s 8d; including railways, £311,568 11s 8d. This includes, likewise, the Burghs of Dingwall, Tain, and Fortrose.

The population in 1881 was 78,539. The constituency of the county in 1880-81 was 1646. It is jointly represented with Cromarty by Sir Alexander Matheson of Lochalsh, Bart.

Ross is popularly divided into districts, such as Ardross, Ardmeanach (Lord of Ardmeanach was a title of the old Earls of Ross, and was conferred by Mary Queen of Scots on Darnley, on the day of their marriage) or Black Isle, Kintail, Strathconon, Lochcarron, Lochalsh, Lochbroom, and The Lewis. The parishes of the two counties are—Alness, Applecross, Avoch, Barvas, Contin, Cromarty, Dingwall, Edderton, Fearn, Fodderty, Gairloch, Glenshiel, Killearnan, Kilmuir Wester, and Suddy, Kilmuir Easter, Kiltearn, Kintail, Kincardine, Knockbain, Lochalsh, Lochbroom, Lochcarron, Lochs, Logie Easter, Nigg, Resolis, Rosemarkie, Rosskeen, Stornoway, Tain, Tarbat, Uig, Urquhart, and Logie Wester, and part of Urray.

Ross-shire has four royal burghs. Formerly it had five. Cromarty, once a royal burgh, resigned its charter and renounced its privileges. The remaining burghs are—Dingwall, Tain, Fortrose, and Rosemarkie—the last two, although under the same municipal government, are distinct burghs, each constituted by royal charter—besides the town of Stornoway, and the villages of Invergordon, Ullapool, Jeantown, Plocktown, Shieldaig, Alness, Cononbridge, Avoch, Maryburgh, Contin, Redcastle, Charlestown, Munlochy, Evantown, Ballintraid, Barbaraville, Dornie, Poolewe, &c.

By Act of Parliament, 8 and 9 Vict., cap. 99, Dingwall is declared the head burgh of the shire; but for the better and more expeditious administration of justice it is divided into the Easter, Wester, and Lewis districts, at the head of which respectively are the towns of Tain, Dingwall, and Stornoway, each having a sheriff-court.

BURGH OF FORTROSE.

Fortrose—of old the "Chanonry of Ross," and an Episcopal See of considerable importance, as well as the seat of law, divinity, and learning in these parts—was erected into a "free burgh" in favour of the reverend father in Christ, Thomas, Bishop of Ross, and united to the adjoining elder burgh of Rosemarkie, by James II., in 1455. Being a Bishop's Burgh, Fortrose, along with other ecclesiastical lands and villas, reverted to the Crown at the Reformation, and was, in consequence, enfranchised anew, and erected into an independent Royal Burgh in 1590, and again annexed to Rosemarkie in 1592, under the united name of the Royal Burgh of Fortrose. The Bishoprick of Ross was formed by King David I. between the years 1124 and 1128, at which period Macbeth, its first Bishop, appears on record. The Cathedral or Diocesan seal of Fortrose, now used as that of the united Burghs, is circumscribed in Saxon characters—Scapituli Scom Petri et Bonifacii de Rosemarkin. The cathedral church, dedicated to Saint Peter and Saint Boniface, stood at the Chanonry, now Fortrose. When entire, it consisted of choir and nave with aisles, eastern Lady Chapel and Chapter House at the north-east end. Its remains consist of the south aisle to chancel and nave and the detached Chapter House—all in the middle-pointed style. A large bell now hung on a wooden spire bears the name of Thomas Tulloch, Bishop of Ross, 1460, and an inscription intimating its dedication to the Virgin Mary and Saint Boniface. Rosemarkie was enfranchised by Alexander II., in or about 1216. The ancient Burgh seal of Rosemarkie has inscribed on it the figure of Saint Peter mitered in a shield. The circumscription is Sigillum est munæ Burge de Rosemarkiyn. The original church of Rosemarkie is ascribed to Saint Boniface, surnamed Queretinus an Italian, who, in the seventh or eighth century, is said to have come into Scotland for the purpose of inducing the church there to conform with the practices of the Church of Rome, and after founding churches in many parts of the country, to have settled in Rosemarkie and to have built there a church in which he was afterwards buried. The church was dedicated to him, and stood on the same site as the new church built in 1821. The town is regularly built, well lighted, and abundantly supplied with water. It is romantically situated on the shores of the Moray Firth, and, from the salubrity of the climate, and the beautiful walks in the neighbourhood and along the shore, possesses great attractions as summer and sea-bathing quarters. From the ridge of the hill, at the foot of which the burgh lies, a wide and varied panorama of mountain, hill, and sea stretches out before the eye. Within a wide grassy enclosure, in the centre of Fortrose, there are the remains of a once grand and imposing Cathedral—the see of the Bishops of Ross. Between the two towns, which are distant about half-a-mile from each other, a long tongue of land, having a beautiful sandy beach, and fine level lawn—the public links—on both sides, terminated by a lighthouse of the second order, runs out into the Firth. A ferry connects the peninsula at this point with Fort-George and the Inverness-shire coast. The Burgh having an independent revenue, besides a considerable income from various mortifications, left for the benefit of the poor, taxation is almost nominal. Living is cheap, and there is an excellent endowed Academy, besides several good schools. There is also a comfortable hotel, and sea-bathing quarters can easily be had. Fortrose likewise possesses a safe and convenient harbour. Distance from Inverness, about eleven miles, from Dingwall about fifteen, and from Cromarty about 9 miles. The fishing village of Avoch is within a mile and a-half. The population of the burgh by the census of 1881 is 869. Constituency—males 136, females 43—179. The annual value of real property within the Parliamentary boundary for the year 1883-84 is £3572 4s. The comparative revenue for the same period is £222. Part of Royal Burgh of Fortrose beyond Parliamentary boundary, 117. Landward part of Rosemarkie Parish, 366. Total population of do., including Fortrose, 1352.

THE ISLAND OF LEWIS.

This Island, next to Ireland, is the largest of the British isles, being 45 miles in length, 15 in average breadth, and 30 in extreme breadth. It has an area of 417,460 acres, and the population, according to last census, was about 25,876. The Island is divided into four parishes, viz., Stornoway, Lochs, Barvas, and Uig. It was acquired by the late Sir J. Matheson of Achany, Bart., Lord Lieutenant for Ross-shire, in 1844, from the representatives of the late Earl of Seaforth, to whom he paid £190,000 for it, and since then he has expended large sums in improvements. On a height overlooking the town, and surrounded by tastefully laid out grounds, is Lewis Castle—a modern building in the Tudor style. There is a glass Conservatory, with a colonnade communicating with the Castle, erected by Mr Cranston, Birmingham, who has patenteed the plan. Generally the grounds about the Castle have been changed from rugged nature, to the most enchanting walks during summer, and over which tourists and the Stornowegians have free access to perambulate. The works about the Castle Grounds, peat works, and elsewhere, afford employment to the natives, who have vastly benefited by the proprietor's continued outlay in various parts of the Island. In no place is this more conspicuous than in the Town of Stornoway, where there is a commodious wooden wharf and stone pier, built by the Pier and Harbour Commission with money supplied by him at interest. A first class patent slip capable of drawing vessels of 1000 tons was also erected by the late proprietor at a large cost, and he munificently contracted with the post-office to carry the mails from Ullapool to the Lewis five times a-week, for six months in summer, and three times a week during the rest of the year, although at a considerable loss to himself; and through his untiring exertions and sacrifices telegraphic communication was obtained to Stornoway. The town has in other respects undergone great changes; the principal streets are paved with Caithness flags; gas and water have long ago been introduced, through the instrumentality, mainly, of the proprietor; and there are three water fountains, erected by the late Mrs Percival, Lady Matheson's mother, whose good deeds are wide spread. The fisheries are prosecuted with much success; and the annual exports, comprising fish, cattle, horses, sheep, and wool, are estimated at £150,000. The imports amount to an equal if not greater sum. The Island abounds in interesting remains of antiquity — the most remarkable being the Druidical or sepulchral circles at Callernish, about 16 miles from Stornoway and two miles from Prince Arthur's Hotel, Garynahine — the duns or burgs of Bragor, and Carloway, and a number of ancient chapels. At Gress, about six miles from Stornoway, there is a cave upwards of 200 yards in length partially covered with stalactites, like the sparr cave of Strathaird, in Skye.

The constituency, including the Stornoway votes, which count with those of the shires of Ross and Cromarty, is about 200.

CROMARTYSHIRE.

This is a county of small extent, comprising the eastern part of the Black Isle, or Ardmeanach, part of the district generally called Easter Ross, Coigach on the west coast, most part of the northern acclivity of Strathpeffer, and several detached pendicles widely distant from each other, but all locally situated within the county of Ross, in which, though claiming some institutions peculiar to other counties, it is municipally sunk. It has no sheriff of its own, nor even a substitute, but forming little more than a circuit in the itinerancies of the sheriff-substitute of Dingwall.

Owing to the strange intermixture of territory alluded to, it was impossible to give a list of parishes altogether distinct from those of the dominant shire. They are therefore included in that of the county of Ross. This is also the case as to the population. The area, but perhaps only of Cromarty proper, is computed at sixty-two square miles, or 39,696 acres. It has a joint parliamentary representation with Ross—the present representative being Alexander Matheson of Ardross and Lochalsh

ORKNEY.

The Islands forming this County lie off the North Coast of Caithness, from which they are separated by the Pentland Firth, which is from 5½ to about 7 miles broad. They are 67 in number, of which 29 are inhabited. The principal inhabited Islands are:—The Mainland or Pomona, South Ronaldsay, Sanday, Stronsay, Westray, Shapinsay, Walls and Hoy, Eday, Rousay, Papa Westray, Burray, Græmsay, Egilsay, North Ronaldsay, Gairsay, Flottay, Veira, and Papa Stronsay.

The area of the Islands is about 244 geographical miles; the population in 1881 was 32,037; the Parliamentary constituency for 1881-82 was 1379. The old valued rent of Orkney, made in 1653-71, was £57,149 Scots, and the new rental for 1882-83 was over £69,950 stg., exclusive of the burgh of Kirkwall. The county is now under the same Sheriff as Caithness and Shetland, and unites with the latter in sending a member to Parliament; but is otherwise entirely independent.

Kirkwall is the only Royal Burgh in Orkney; but Stromness is a Burgh of Barony, with a population of about 2000, and it has an excellent harbour, which was formerly much frequented by shipping.

There has been steam communication between Orkney, Aberdeen, and Granton for the last 36 years, now changed to Leith, between which and Kirkwall two fast vessels ply weekly. A small steamer now plies twice a week between Kirkwall and Rousay, calling at Evie and Rendall on the Mainland. The traffic has now so much increased that two steamers weekly are found insufficient in the summer months to carry all the stock and goods from Kirkwall and Lerwick. One of the steamers runs weekly on the passage during the winter. There is, besides, a daily mail steamer between Scapa Pier (about a mile and a-half south of Kirkwall) and Scrabster Roads in Caithness, which also carries passengers, cattle, and goods, and for a number of years past there has been steam communication twice a-week, 'twixt Kirkwall and the North Isles, viz., Sanday, Stronsay, Westray, and Eday. Under the new "Orkney Piers and Harbour Act," a pier for the accommodation of steamers and sailing vessels has been erected at Scapa Bay; and to meet the ever-increasing traffic in fish and farm produce at Holm, a new pier has also been erected at the village of St. Mary's there on the estate of Graemeshall. An excellent stone pier has also been built in the Island of Eday, and others are being projected both in the South and North Isles.

KIRKWALL

was a place of much importance during the Scandinavian dominion in the islands, and, on their annexation to the Scottish Crown in 1468, it was erected into a Royal Burgh by James III. It possesses some very interesting ancient structures. The Cathedral of St Magnus, founded by Ronald, Earl of Orkney, in 1137, in honour of Earl Magnus, and subsequently enlarged from time to time, is the most complete building of the kind in Scotland, and, together with the ruins of the Bishop's Palace, in which King Hakon of Norway died in 1263, and the ruins of the Earl's Palace, both in close proximity, forms a picturesque group, unsurpassed by anything of the kind in Scotland.

A Gas Company was started and the town lighted with gas upwards of thirty years ago, and many improvements have lately been made in and around the Burgh. Tasteful and commodious houses are now springing up on its outskirts, and there is a handsome pier to which the steamers can come at all tides. A large fleet can ride at anchor, in complete security, in Kirkwall Bay, which is sheltered from the ocean on all sides.

The valuation of the burgh for 1882-83 is £11,062 16s 10d, and the burghal constituency is 401, and the population in 1881 was 3923. Kirkwall is one of the Wick district of burghs represented by John Pender, M.P.

Cromwell's Fort is now used as a battery by the Kirkwall Volunteers. In the vicinity of the town there are several ruins of buildings belonging to the early inhabitants of the islands. Close to the farm house of Quanterness is a large "Picts' house," and not far from it, on the western slope of Wideford Hill, one of a smaller size. Remains of large buildings and subterranean chambers, exist at the old house of Saverock; and, in the summer of 1870, the ruins of a large "Brough" or circular tower, surrounded by numerous smaller structures, in the form of chambers and connecting passages, was discovered at Lingrow, and excavated, and, being within half-an-hour's walk of Kirkwall, can easily be visited by tourists.
