[THIRTEENTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.]

HALL'S GRAVESEND, MILTON AND NORTHFLEET DIRECTORY, AND ADVERTISER.

1865.

BIBLIOTHECA BODLEIANA

Gravesend.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY THOMAS HALL, 4A, WINDMILL ST.

London.

WHITTAKER AND CO., AVE MARIA LANE, LUDGATE HILL.

[Entered at Stationers' Hall.]

Dei. Kent. e. 8.

4a, Windmill Street, Gravesend,
April 22*nd*, 1865.

The Compiler and Publisher of this Directory in issuing the edition for the present year, desires to call the attention of the Subscribers to the improvements made therein by the use of a New Type specially adapted for the purpose, and provided at some outlay; also by the addition of a considerable amount of matter,—the introduction of a Trades Directory being worthy of special mention. Further and extensive improvements are contemplated, and he feels it incumbent on him while acknowledging the support given by the Trading community generally to the Advertising portion of the Work, to remind Professional Persons, Merchants, Tradesmen and the public generally, that continued and increased support in this department is absolutely necessary to enable him to continue to issue this useful handbook at the present exceedingly moderate price.

The Publisher tenders his sincere thanks to the Subscribers to, as well as the Advertisers in this Work, and assures them that his best endeavours will be used to render it worthy of their continued patronage and support.

GRIEF SHOULD NOT BE FOSTERED.

TIME heals all griefs, even the bitterest, and it is well that it should be so. A long-indulged sorrow for the dead, or for any other hopeless loss, would deaden our sympathies for those still left, and thus make a sinful apathy steal over the soul, absorbing all its powers, and causing the many blessings of life to be felt as curses. As the bosom of earth blooms again and again, having buried out of sight the dead leaves of autumn, and loosed the frosty bands of winter; so does the heart feel many renewed springs and summers. It is a beautiful and a blessed world we live in, and whilst that life lasts, to lose the enjoyment of it is a sin.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

16.—Alex. Leopold, Prince of Hohenlohe, Bishop of Sardica, was born at Kupferzell, in 1794. He entered into holy orders at Olmutz, and in 1820 he became much interested in the cures which the prayers of a peasant were said to have effected on many distinguished invalids, and he determined to have recourse to the same means. It having been rumoured that Prince Hohenlohe had, by his prayers and intercessions, healed several nervous patients, he was very soon importuned by a host of invalids, who were exceedingly anxious to be cured of diseases which had baffled and perplexed all ordinary medical skill. In March, 1823, Prince Hohenlohe published a letter which, connected with events that followed, created a great sensation amongst those who believed that the power of working miracles still exists. Several remarkable stories are told respecting him, and amongst them the following:—Two or three years previous to the publication of the letter, Miss O'Connor, a nun in a convent near Chelmsford, began to be affected with swellings in one hand and arm, until they assumed an aggravated form. The local surgeons tried their skill, but to no purpose; and she was subsequently treated by a London practitioner, but with similiar results. At length, after more than three years of suffering, the poor nun resolved to try spiritual means, and Prince Hohenlohe was applied to, who directed that at a particular festival of the Catholic Church, the sufferer should make confession, partake of the sacrament, and offer up fervent prayers; the Prince stating that he would pray for her also, at the same hour. At the appointed time, Miss O'Connor did as he had directed, her pains left her, and she recovered. The fame of Prince Hohenlohe spread throughout England; and it is further stated, that in France, in the convent of St. Benoit, at Toulouse, one of the nuns, through an injury in the leg, had her foot twisted nearly round, and for six months had endured great suffering. Having heard of the Prince, she wrote to him imploring his aid. The Prince replied, giving certain instructions, which having been observed, it is asserted that twelve witnesses deposed to the fact that at the appointed time her foot resumed its proper position. Prince Hohenlohe was a young religious enthusiast, very fervent in his devotions; and there is no just ground to believe that he was an impostor, for he was doubtless sincere in believing that he possessed some kind of miraculous power. His fame, as a curer of diseases spread so rapidly, that very soon there were hundreds of believers in him, and even princesses came to him to solicit his prayers for their restoration to health and beauty. He died at Grosswaradin, in Hungary, in 1849.

THE USE AND VALUE OF TIME.

Time past and time to come are not;
Time present is our only lot.

CONSIDER time like the faculties of the mind, a precious estate, that every moment of it well applied is put out to an exorbitant interest. Practice the economy of time; the man who finds time for everything, for punctuality in all the relations of life, for the pleasures of society, and every rational amusement, is he who is most assiduous in the active pursuits of his profession.

Time is the old justice that examines all offenders.

THE proverbial oracles of our parsimonious ancestors have informed us, that the fatal waste of fortune is by small expenses, by the profusion of sums too little singly to alarm our caution, and which we never suffer ourselves to consider together. Of the same kind is prodigality of life: he that hopes to look back hereafter with satisfaction upon past years, must learn to know the present value of single minutes, and endeavour to let no particle of time fall useless to the ground. An Italian philosopher expressed in his motto that time was his estate: an estate, indeed, that will produce nothing without cultivation, but will always abundantly repay the labours of industry, and satisfy the most extensive desires, if no part of it be suffered to lie waste by negligence, to be overrun by noxious plants, or laid out for show rather than for use.—JOHNSON.

Nothing is more precious than time; never be prodigal of it.

OBSERVE a method in the distribution of your time. Every hour will then know its proper employment, and no time will be lost. Idleness will be shut out at every avenue, and with her that numerous body of vices that make up her train.—BISHOP HORNE.

Well-arranged time is the surest mark of a well-arranged mind.

Time is a commodity the value of which rises as long as we live.

TIME is like a creditor, who allows ample space to make up accounts, but is inexorable at last. Time is like a verb that can be used in the present tense. Time, well employed, gives that health and vigour to the soul, which rest and retirement give to the body. Time never sits heavily on us, but when it is badly employed. Time is a grateful friend—use it well, and it never fails to make a requital.

Time, with its mighty strides, will soon reach a future generation.

IF length of days be thy portion, make it not thy expectation: reckon not upon long life, but live always beyond thy account. He that so often surviveth his expectation, lives many lives, and will hardly complain of the shortness of his days. Time past is gone like a shadow; make times to come present; conceive that near which may be far off; approximate thy last times by present apprehensions of them; live like a neighbour unto death, and think there is but little to come. And since there is something in us which must still live on, join both lives together: unite them in thy thoughts and actions, and live in one but for the other. He who thus ordereth the purposes of his life, will never be far from the next, and is in some manner already in it, by a happy conformity, and close apprehension of it.—SIR THOMAS BROWNE.

On Time!

The bell strikes one! We take no note of time
But from its loss; to give it then a tongue
Is wise in man. As if an angel spoke,
I feel the solemn sound. If heard aright,
It is the knell of my departed hours.
Where are they? With the years beyond the flood.

YOUNG.

Time, whither dost thou flee?—
I travel to eternity!
Eternity, what art thou?—say—
Time past; time present; time to come—to-day!

As every thread of gold is valuable, so is every minute of time.

THE greatest loss of time is delay and expectation, which depends upon the future. We let go the present, which we have in our power, and look forward to that which depends upon chance—and so quit a certainty for an uncertainty.—SENECA.

Time destroys the speculations of man, but it confirms the judgment of Nature.

STUDY OF SELF.

Above all subjects study thine own self. For no knowledge that terminates in curiosity or speculation is comparable to that which is of use; and of all useful knowledge, that is most so, which consists in the due care and just notions of ourselves. This study is a debt which everyone owes himself. Let us not then be so lavish, so unjust, as not to pay this debt; be spending some time at least, if we cannot all, or most of our time and care, upon that which has the most indefeasible claim to it. Govern your passions, manage your actions with prudence, and where false steps have been made, correct them for the future. Let nothing be allowed to grow headstrong and disorderly; but bring all under discipline. Set all your faults before your eyes, and pass sentence upon yourself, with the same severity as you would do upon another, for whom no partiality hath biassed your judgment.—Bernard.

Do you want to know the man against whom you have the most reason to guard yourself? Your looking-glass will give you a very fair likeness of his face.—Whateley.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

2.—In by-gone times the use of hair-powder was carried to a great excess, but we need scarcely inform our readers that it has now become almost obsolete. The hair has, in all times and countries, been ruled by fashion; and during the Protectorate of Cromwell, it was usual to wear short, or cropped hair, and hence the term Roundheads. After this period long hair became fashionable; but in the reign of George II. and III. it was customary to wear wigs; this fashion, however, during the latter monarch's reign, began to decline, as we learn from the following petition:—"On the 11th of February, 1765, the master peruke-makers of London presented a petition to King George III., setting forth their distresses, and the distress of others who were depending on them, arising from the decline of their trade in consequence of so many gentlemen beginning to wear their own hair. They also complained of having to work on Sunday, which they would much rather have spent in religious duties, 'learning to fear God and honour the king.'"—The king, although he must have found it difficult to maintain his gravity, returned a gracious answer. But the public, considering such protection to industry unnecessary, regarded the petition as a subject for mirth, and followed it by another from the Body Carpenters, imploring his majesty to wear a wooden leg, and to command all his servants to appear in his presence with a similar graceful decoration.

6.—The vicissitudes of the career of Charles II. have formed a fitting theme for the pen of the moralist, as well as that of the novelist, and the many extraordinary events of his life will ever be prominent in history; the death of his father on the scaffold—the battle of Worcester—his romantic escape and residence for many years in France—the death of Cromwell—his restoration to the throne—his marriage with the Infante of Portugal for her dowry of 500,000*l.*—the Plague of London, followed by the Great Fire—insurrections—plots—and wars. This monarch's life was one of profusion, extravagance, and pleasure, and the scenes around his death-bed, during his last days, were in harmony with his whole life; for as Evelyn, the historian, informs us, he could "never forget the inexpressible luxury and profaneness, gaming, and all dissoluteness, and, as it were, a total forgetfulness of God (it being Sunday evening), which he witnessed: the king sitting and toying with his concubines, Portsmouth, Cleveland, Mazarine, &c., a French boy singing love-songs in that glorious gallery, whilst about twenty courtiers, and other dissolute persons, were at basset, round a large table, a bank of at least 2,000*l.* in gold before them. Six days after, all was in the dust!"

GOLDEN MAXIMS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

In all our acts, be our words but true,
No matter then how many, or how few.

BAD company is like a nail driven into a post, which after the first and second blow, may be drawn out with little difficulty; but being once driven up to the head, the pincers cannot take hold to draw it out, but which can only be done by the destruction of the wood.

No man can be provident of his time, who is not prudent in the choice of his company.

Wrong is twice wrong against those who never wronged us.

To catch Dame Fortune's golden smile,
Assiduous wait upon her,
And gather gear by ev'ry wile
That's justified by honour.

He who cannot live well to-day, will be less qualified to live well to-morrow.

If men have no care for the future, they will soon have sorrow for the past.

Money employed in doing good, is money put out at the best interest.

WHO'S RICH?

Who seeks not to increase his store.

Be just to others. This is the first step towards becoming better than you are yourself.

Produce much, consume little; labour diligently, spend cautiously—the way to get rich.

Money possessed by any one
A thousand friends will make;
Reverse the picture—money gone,
Your friends their leave will take.

An irritable man lies like a hedgehog rolled up the wrong way, tormenting himself with his own prickles.

He who attends to his business diligently, but not carefully, throws away with one hand what he gains with the other.

Who by aspersions throw a stone
At the head of others, hit their own.

How much pain have those evils cost us that never happened.

Every earthly evil but death and dishonour may become a blessing by comparison.

Never open the door to a little vice, lest a great one should enter also.

When an error is committed, good advice is remembered—too late!

Never sit down to nurse a grief,
But in life's duties seek relief.

Take for truth this maxim old—
"All that glitters is not gold."

The more a man denies himself, the more he shall obtain from God

May I govern my passions with absolute sway,
And grow wiser and better as life wears away.

Time is a commodity of which the value rises as long as we live.

Time and place give best advice,
Out of season, out of price.

A man would do well to carry a pencil in his pocket, and write down the thoughts of the moment. Those that come unsought for are commonly the most valuable, and should be secured because they seldom return.

For Meditation.

WHAT are riches? Hoarded treasures
May, indeed, the coffers fill;
Yet, like earth's most fleeting pleasures.
Leave thee poor and heartless still.

What is Truth? Too stern a preacher
For the prosperous and gay;
But a safe and wholesome teacher
In adversity's dark day.

What is Time? A river, flowing
To Eternity's dark sea,
Forward, whither all are going,—
On its bosom bearing thee.

What is Life? A bubble, floating
On that clear and rapid stream;
Few, too few, its progress noting,
Till it bursts into a dream.

What is Death? Asunder rending
Every tie we love so well:
But the gate of life unending—
Joy in heaven! or woe in hell!

BERNARD BARTON.

Don't let your children learn good and bad things indiscriminately. To be sure, the bad might be eradicated in after years, but it is easier to sow clean seed than to cleanse dirty wheat.

Think what is just—'tis not enough to do,
Unless thy very thoughts are upright too.

Hope is the last thing that dies in man; and though it be exceeding deceitful, yet it is of this good use to us, that while we are travelling through this life, it conducts us through an easier and more pleasant path to our journey's end.

Thy credit wary keep, 'tis quickly gone;
By many actions won, 'tis lost by one!

He wisest is who has a way
To rule the will, and will a way.

It is as easy to deceive ourselves without our perceiving it, as it is difficult to deceive others without their perceiving it.

If you wish success in life make Perseverance your bosom friend, Experience your wise counsellor, Caution your elder brother, and Hope your guardian genius.

Steadfastness is a noble quality, but, unguided by knowledge or humility, it becomes rashness.

Sorrow seems sent for our instruction, as we darken the cages of birds when we would teach them to sing.

Trip lightly over trouble,
Trip lightly over wrong;
We only make grief double,
By dwelling on it long.

If you are looking at a picture, you try to give it the advantage of a good light. Be as courteous to your fellow-creatures as you are to a picture.

He who is slow in making a promise, is ofttimes the most faithful in the performance of it.

WHO'S POOR?

Who having much yet longs for more.

He that would pass the latter part of his life with honour and respect, must, when he is young, consider that he will one day be old; and remember when he is old that he has once been young.

Only the riches of the mind,
A firm support remain;
All other riches, you will find,
Bring greater loss than gain.

Spite is a little word, but it represents as strange a jumble of feelings and compound of discords, as any polysyllable in the language.

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well; and doing well whatever you do, without a thought of fame.

He who by evil makes his gains,
Shall have his labour for his pains.

It is a melancholy consideration, indeed, that our chief comforts often produce our greatest anxieties; and that an increase of our possessions is but an inlet to new disquietudes.

The setting of a great hope is like the setting of the sun. The brightness of our life is gone. Shadows of evening fall around us, and the world seems but a dim reflection—itself a broader shadow.

Whate'er you do, in your mind let dwell,
If done at all, should be done well.

RETROSPECTION A GOOD MONITOR.

"When I look upon the tombs of the great, every motion of envy dies; when I read the epitaphs of the beautiful, every inordinate desire forsakes me; when I meet with the grief of parents upon a tombstone, my heart melts with compassion; when I see the tombs of the parents themselves, I reflect how vain it is to grieve for those whom we must quickly follow; when I see kings lying beside those who deposed them, or the holy men who divided the world with their contests and disputes, I reflect, with sorrow and astonishment, on the frivolous competitions, factions, and debates of mankind."—Addison.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

2.—Sir Samuel Romilly, one of England's celebrated advocates, was born in London. After leaving the French Protestant School, he applied himself to self-culture, and his diligence in the acquisition of learning was largely rewarded in after life. At his outset in life, after a great deal of deliberation by his father, he was placed with a solicitor, whom he left for a merchant's office, and this he also resigned, with an idea of pursuing his father's business—that of a jeweller, but eventually he was articled to one of the sworn clerks of Chancery. At the expiration of his articles, he qualified himself for the Bar, but had to wait long and patiently ere he was rewarded with any practice; but he gradually rose to distinction in the Court of Chancery, where he was distinguished for his "profound learning and forcible eloquence;" and to him one of England's greatest statesmen paid the following tribute:— "Romilly, by the force of his learning and talents, and the most spotless integrity, rose to the very height of professional ambition. He was beyond question or pretence of rivalry the first man in the courts in this country." Nor was he distinguished professionally only, but during his political career he was listened to with rapt attention, and a passage in one of his speeches in favour of the abolition of the slave trade, "received the singular honour of three distinct rounds of applause from the House of Commons." In his forty-first year he married Miss Garbett, (a protege of the Marquis of Lansdowne) a lady of rare talents and moral excellence. But after twenty years of happy married life, her health began to decline, and on the 29th October, 1818, she died. This was a dreadful shock to Romilly, and produced such great mental anguish, that delirium followed, and in an unwatched moment he sprang from his bed, cut his throat, and expired almost instantly—and this at a time when worldly honours were being heaped upon him! Amongst others, the electors of Westminster had returned him to parliament without the expenditure of a shilling on his part—a great thing in those days of bribery and corruption. It is related, that the following morning, when Lord Eldon took his seat on the bench, and Romilly's place was vacant, iron man though he was, he exclaimed—"I cannot stay here!" and rising in great agitation, broke up the court.—The bodies of husband and wife were buried in one grave, at Knill, in Herefordshire. [It is a rather singular circumstance, that in the church of St. Bride's, Fleet-street, London, there is a tablet on the wall with an inscription "To the memory of Isaac Romilly, F.R.S., who died in 1759, of a broken heart, seven days after the decease of a beloved wife."]

THE ART OF BEING CHEERFUL.

In one of his clever essays, HAIN FRISWELL makes the following sensible observations upon the happy art of being cheerful:—

CHEERFULNESS arises from many causes, chiefly from health, but it is not entirely dependent upon health, but is rather the result of a brave habit of the mind, and is capable of being acquired. A cheerful man is pre-eminently a useful man. He does not 'cramp his mind, nor take half views of men and things.' He knows that there is much misery, but that misery is not the rule of life. He sees that in every state people may be cheerful; the lambs skip, birds sing and fly joyously, puppies play, kittens are full of joyance, the whole air full of careering and rejoicing insects, that everywhere the good outbalances the bad, and that every evil that there is has its compensating balm. Then the brave man, as our German cousins say, possesses the world, whereas the melancholy man does not even possess his own share of it. Exercise, or continued employment of some kind, will make a man cheerful; but sitting at home, brooding and thinking, or doing little, will bring gloom. The reaction of this feeling is wonderful. It arises from a sense of duty done, and it also enables us to do our duty. Shakspeare, himself a very cheerful man—'God rest his heart,' quoth his old nurse, 'he was a merry man,'—repeats the burden of an old song with the truth that

"A merry heart goes all the day,
But your sad one tires a mile a!"

and what he says, anyone may notice, not only in ourselves, but in the inferior animals also. A sulky dog, and a bad-tempered horse, wear themselves out with half the labour that kindly creatures do. An unkindly cow will not give down her milk, and a sour sheep will not fatten; nay, even certain fowls and geese, to those who observe, will evidence temper—good or bad.

"We can all cultivate our tempers, and one of the employments of some poor mortals is to cultivate, cherish, and bring to perfection, a thoroughly bad one; but we may be certain that to do so is a very gross error and sin, which, like all others, brings it own punishment, though. unfortunately, it does not punish itself only. If he 'to whom God is pleasant, is pleasant to God,' the reverse also holds good; and certainly the major proposition is true with regard to man. Addison says of cheerfulness that it lightens sickness, poverty, affliction; converts ignorance into an amiable simplicity, and renders deformity itself agreeable; and he says no more than the truth. 'Give us, therefore, oh! give us'—let us cry with Carlyle—'the man who sings at his work!' Be his occupation what it may, he is equal to any of those who follow the same pursuit in silent sullenness. He will do more in the same time: he will do it better; he will persevere longer. One is scarcely sensible of fatigue whilst he marches to music. The very stars are said to make harmony as they revolve in their appointed skies.

"Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness! altogether past calculation the powers of its endurance. Efforts, to be permanently useful, must be uniformly joyous—a spirit all sunshine—graceful from very gladness—beautiful because bright. Such a spirit is within everybody's reach. Let us get but out into the light of things. The morbid man cries out that there is always enough wrong in the world to make a man miserable. Conceded; but wrong is ever being righted: there is always enough that is good and right to make us joyful. There is ever sunshine somewhere: and the brave man will go on his way rejoicing, content to look forward, if under a cloud, not bating one jot of heart or hope if for a moment cast down; honouring his occupation, whatever it may be; rendering even rags respectable by the way he wears them; and not only being happy himself, but causing the happiness of others."

"NIL DESPERANDUM!"

When adversity overtakes us, and all around seems dark, we are frequently down-cast and disheartened, but it would be wiser then, were we to summon all our energies, and meet it with cheerfulness. "Work instead of weep" should be our watch-word, and engaging in the conflict with a cheerful spirit, we may soon repel the unwelcome invader. On this subject that excellent writer, HELPS, in one of his useful essays, has given us the following valuable advice:—

"BE cheerful, no matter what obstruct your pathway, or what plagues follow in your trail to annoy you. Ask yourself what is to be gained by looking or feeling sad when troubles throng around you, or how your condition is to be alleviated by abandoning yourself to despondency? If you are a young man, nature designed you 'to be of good cheer;' and should you find your road to fortune, fame, or respectability, or any other boon to which your young heart aspires, a little thorny, consider it all for the best, and that these impediments are only thrown in your way to induce greater efforts and more patient endurance on your part. Far better spend a whole life in diligent, aye, cheerful and unremitting toil, though you never attain the pinnacle of your ambitious desires, than to turn back at the first appearance of misfortune, and allow despair to unnerve your energies, or sour your naturally sweet and cheerful disposition. If you are of the softer, fairer portion of humanity, be cheerful, though we know full well that most afflictions are sweet to you when compared with disappointment and neglect; yet let hope banish despair and ill-forebodings. Be cheerful; do not brood over fond hopes unrealised, until a chain, link after link, is fastened on each thought, and wound around the heart. Nature intended you to be the fountain-spring of cheerfulness and social life, and not the travelling mounment of despair and melancholy."

RESTLESSNESS OF TEMPER.

An anxious, restless temper, that runs to meet care on its way, that regrets lost opportunities too much, and that is over-painstaking in contrivances for happiness, is foolish and should not be indulged. If you cannot be happy in one way, be happy in another; and this facility of disposition wants but little aid from philosophy: for health and good humour are almost the whole affair. Many run after felicity like an absent man hunting for his hat, while it is on his head or in his hand. Though sometimes, small evils, like invisible insects, inflict great pain, yet the chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex us, and in prudently cultivating an undergrowth of small pleasures, since very few great ones, alas! are let on long leases.—Sharpe.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

23.—The order of the Garter owes its origin to Edward III. in 1346, in commemoration of his numerous victories by sea and land. The garter is of blue velvet bordered with gold, bearing the well-known incription, "Honi soit qui mal y pense," "Evil be to him who evil thinks." The knights were always installed at Windsor, and were styled "Equites aureæ Periscelidis," "Knights of the golden garter." [This honour was conferred on the sultan of Turkey in 1856.] At the coronation of George IV., it was remarked as a curious coincidence, that the decorations of the Order of the Garter, which then returned to the king from his deceased father, had only been worn by two persons since the reign of Charles II. They had been conferred by that monarch upon the Duke of Somerset, and by him they had been retained until his death in 1748, when they were conferred upon the young Prince of Wales, afterwards George III. The whole of the time embraced by the two tenures of the honour was about a hundred and forty years.—It was remarkable of the Duke of Somerset, that he figured in the pageants and politics of six reigns. At the funeral of Charles II. he was one of the supporters of the chief mourner, Prince George of Denmark; he carried the orb at the coronation of James II.; at the coronation of William and Mary, he bore the Queen's crown; at the funeral of King William, he was again one of the supporters of the chief mourner, Prince George; and at the coronations of Queen Anne, George I., and George II., he carried the orb.

28.—Even in the present day the name of the "Cruel Duke of Alva," as he is called, is never mentioned without feelings of horror. He was undoubtedly a clever general, and performed many deeds of valour under the emperors Charles V. and Philip II. When sent by Philip to take the government of Holland, and landing with 10,000 men, he immediately commenced a series of almost unparalleled cruelties, and in his endeavours to preserve the Low Countries for Spain, it is estimated that he put no less than 18,000 of the citizens to death! such were the extremities to which fanaticism, during the controversies of the last two centuries, could carry men! One of his characteristics was extreme caution, and when asked by Charles V. his opinion about attacking the Turks, he advised that monarch to build them a golden bridge to escape by, rather than offer battle. When at Cologne, and urged by the Archbishop to have a precipitate engagement with the Dutch troops, he replied—"The object of a general is not to fight, but to conquer." During his career it is stated that he never lost a battle. He died in 1583.

INDUSTRY AND IDLENESS CONTRASTED.

WORK, AND YOUR WORK THE SUN WILL SHARE,
FOR NATURE WORKETH EVERYWHERE.

THAT astute prelate, the Bishop of Oxford, speaking at a recent examination, said:—"Every one of us has in his constitution, more or less, a love of ease, a love of idleness and of happiness. This works differently with different people, but it comes to the same point at last. It is a kind of attempt to draw the shoulder from the collar when the collar pinches, and it becomes uphill work. Some boys draw the shoulder back, just when it comes to the point that will make their characters better and brighter. They are fond of doing what they can do easily, but they are thrown back if any difficulty rises."—[This advice was addressed by the bishop to young men, but the principles enunciated therein are none the less applicable to all those who are engaged in the great battle of life.]

ABSENCE OF OCCUPATION IS NOT REST,
A MIND QUITE VACANT IS A MIND DISTRESSED.

A CHILD is never so happy as when it is busy. It is for ever imitative: its very voice, and the motion of its tongue, are to be learnt; and gradually, and by much practice, are these mysteries to be acquired and understood. A child is seldom a heavy sleeper; it will awake with the sun; and the chief thing which it dislikes is to go to bed. It shuns sleep as grown people endeavour to avoid Sleep's image and elder brother, Death. Waking with the sun in the morning, ready to be out and about, to commence the day with refreshed strength and a re-invigorated appetite, it is too often chid into indolence, and taught to be lazy, until from repeated lessons it gains a bad habit, and "custom lies upon it with a weight, heavy as frost, and deep almost as life."—Hain Friswell.

The Effects of Industry.

—o—

THE bread earned by the sweat of the brow is thrice blessed, and is far sweeter than the tasteless loaf of idleness.—Crowquill.

WE may rest assured that unflinching industry will stand us in better stead than anything else.—Colton.

A MAN who gives his children habits of industry, provides for them better than by giving them a fortune.—Whately.

SLOTH makes all things difficult, but Industry all easy; and he that riseth late must trot all day, and shall scarce overtake his business at night; whilst Laziness travels so slowly, that Poverty soon overtakes him.—Tupper.

THE way to wealth is as plain as the way to market. It depends chiefly on two words, industry and frugality; that is, waste neither time nor money, but make the best use of both. Without industry and frugality nothing will do, and with them everything.—Franklin.

Faith and Honesty.

WITH honest heart go on your way,
Down to your burial sod,
And never for a moment stray
Beyond the path of God.

Then like a happy pilgrim here,
O'er pleasant meadows going,
You'll reach the bank without a fear,
Where death's chill stream is flowing.

And everything along your way
In colours bright shall shine;
The water from the jug of clay
Shall taste like costly wine!

Then cherish faith and honesty
Down to your burial clod,
And never for a moment stray
Beyond the path of God.

Your sons and grandsons to your tomb
Shall come, their tears to shed;
And from their tears sweet flowers shall bloom

From the German of Holtz.

The Effects of Idleness.

—o—

IDLENESS is the parent of want and shame.—Colton.

TROUBLES spring from idleness, and grievous toils from needless ease.—Franklin.

Do not allow Idleness to deceive you; for while you give him to day, he steals to-morrow from you.—Crowquill.

THE idle, who are neither wise for this world nor the next, are emphatically fools at large.—Tillotson.

I WENT by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding; and, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down! Then I saw and considered it well: I looked upon it, and received instruction. Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep: so shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth; and thy want as an armed man.—Solomon.

The Value of Industry.

PEOPLE may tell you of your being unfit for some peculiar occupations in life; but heed them not. Whatever employ you follow with perseverance and assiduity will be found fit for you; it will be your support in youth and comfort in age. In learning the useful part of any profession, very moderate abilities will suffice. Life has been compared to a race; but the allusion still improves by observing that the most swift are ever the most apt to stray from the course.—Goldsmith.

THERE is no art or science that is too difficult for industry to attain to; it is the gift of tongues, and makes a man understood and valued in all countries, and by all nations. It is the philosopher's stone, that turns all metals, and even stones into gold, and suffers no want to break into its dwelling.—Clarendon.

—o—

INDUSTRY IS THE PERVADING GENIUS OF OUR RICHES, OUR GRANDEUR, AND OUR POWER.

The Disadvantages of Idleness.

THE idle man is an annoyance—a nuisance. He is of no benefit to anybody—he is an intruder in the busy thoroughfare of every-day life—he stands in our path, and we push him contemptuously aside!—he is of no advantage to anybody—he annoys busy men—he makes them unhappy—he is a unit in society—he may have an income to support his idleness, or he may impose on good-natured friends: but in either case he is despised.

AVOID idleness, and fill up all the spaces of spare time with useful employment. A man who has no immediate necessity for work sinks from one state of quiescence into another. From the mere custom of inactivity, all labour becomes at first distasteful, and afterwards hateful. The muscles, being unused, grow weak and flabby; the body, after some struggles, relinquishes the desire to work, and the mind shares the laziness of its lower companion.—Hain Friswell.

IDLENESS IS THE SELF-MADE SEPULCHRE OF A LIVING MAN.

SENSATION OF SICKNESS.

It is a strange and awful sensation, when, after having enjoyed to the full the powers and energies of manhood, we find ourselves suddenly reduced by the unnerving hand of sickness to the feebleness of infancy,—when giant strength lies prostrate, and busy activity is chained to the weary bed. It is strange, and it is awful; for it shows us most sensibly how frail a thing is that vigour which we madly think an adamantine armour against all adversity. It is strange and awful; for it leads us to the brink of that fatal precipice, over which all must fall, and displays, as if from the very verge, the inside of our future grave.—JAMES.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

6.—The murder of Murdock Grant, an itinerant pedlar, was discovered in a remarkable manner, and it is another illustration of the old saying—"murder will out!" Grant had attended a merry-making at Assynt, a lonely district in Sunderlandshire, and five weeks after, his body was discovered in a lake, called Loch-torna-eigin, and there was no doubt but that the unfortunate man had been murdered. Suspicion had fallen on a young man of the name of Macleod, whose house was searched, but none of the pedlar's property being found, he was on the point of being liberated, when a tailor named Fraser came forward, stating that he had had a dream in which some of the particulars of the murder were revealed. In his sleep he saw the image of Macleod's cottage, and a voice said to him in Gaelic, "The merchant's pack is lying in a cairn of stones, in a hole near their house." The authorities went there, and under a pile of stones some articles were found which had belonged to Grant. By accident it was afterwards discovered that Macleod was in possession of a pair of stockings which had belonged to the pedlar, and he was tried, found guilty, and executed, confessing his crime.

26.—As a striking instance how remote periods in history may be connected by the lives of individuals, we may mention that this venerable lady, the Countess of Hardwicke, was the daughter of James, fifth Earl of Balcarres, who had been a naval officer of Queen Anne (1702-14) and a rebel at the battle of Sheriffmuir (fought in 1715). This lady could have said that at her grandfather's first marriage King Charles gave away the bride; an event which took place nearly a hundred and ninety years before her own death! And connected with which marriage, the following romantic story is told:—

"The young Colin, Earl of Balcarres, was obtaining for his bride, the daughter of a natural son of Maurice, Prince of Orange. The day arrived, the noble party were assembled in the church, and the bride was at the altar; but, to the dismay of the company, no bridegroom appeared! The thoughtless Colin had forgotten the day of his marriage, and was discovered in his night-gown and slippers, quietly eating his breakfast! Colin hurried to the church, but in his haste left the ring in his writing-case;—a friend in the company gave him one,—the ceremony went on, and without looking at it, he placed it on the finger of his fair young bride:—it was a mourning ring, with the mort-head and cross-bones! On perceiving it at the close of the ceremony, she fainted away, and the evil omen made such an impression on her mind, that on recovering, she declared she should die within the year, and strange to relate, her presentiment was too truly fulfilled."

ON WHAT IS CALLED "LUCK" IN LIFE.

THE following, extracted from HAIN FRISWELL'S Gentle Life,* gives a clear and concise view of the doctrine called "luck," which puzzles those who have not, by careful reasoning, been convinced that there is no such thing as "blind chance." As the pernicious doctrine of "luck" paralyses the energies of its believers, making them envious of others and careless of themselves, it is hoped that the Gentle Life will, by such essays as these, do much good:—

"THE French traders have a proverb about English 'luck,' and believe that in commerce we are especially fortunate; but our hard-working, long-sighted merchants know much better. Their theory of chance is, that the best ship takes merchandise the most safely and most quickly; and that the best seamanship saves the ship from being wrecked much more than 'luck' does. In short, they sum up success, and give a reason for it.....

"But the most serious thing in this matter [luck] is this—people have formed this dependence upon a blind chance into an article of belief; and they will go so far as to call those irreligious who refuse to believe in it..... To sum all up, we may well believe that the old proverbs are true enough—'Fortune favours the bold,' 'He who takes it makes it,' 'The early riser catches the fish.' Napoleon was right also in his little quarter of an hour. 'Ready, aye ready!' was the motto of the old Napiers. Chance has done little or nothing; it did not make Newton an astronomer, nor Hugh Miller a geologist, nor did it make a Watt or a Smeaton, nor a Stephenson, a Humphrey Davy, or a Faraday. These men made themselves. Not that we would deny that there is an unseen agency in all things. We may call it by different names; but the Founder of our faith told us pretty well what it was—this mysterious doer—when He said that not a sparrow fell to the ground without His knowledge; nay, that the hairs of our head were numbered.

"To this divine agency may be attributed many things which the blind world calls chance or luck; the reason why A sails in a ship which is wrecked in sight of shore on an iron-bound coast, and B, who was to have sailed, stayed at home, and by accident was saved. It can solve also the reason why the guilty are spared and the innocent slain; why a wall falls on the head of a child and spares the murderer, and many other strange things.

"In fine, in those instances of great riches, great success, extraordinary and sudden elevations, and startling changes which we see, but cannot account for, it would be well to suspend our judgments before talking of fortune or luck, and to think whether some deeper cause that we cannot see does not exist.

"Common instances of lucky men may be disregarded, since these instances are generally exaggerated by a wondering narrator; certainly some of us are more happily placed as regards well-being and comfort than others, but that being conceded, the matter is settled. Some birds are eagles, some sparrows; and certainly lamplighters do not ordinarily stand much chance of becoming peers of the realm; but we have only to probe the ordinary lucky man, to find that he has risen by industry, patience, foresight, skill, determination, constant endeavour, or wisdom, or some other element of success, and that luck had nothing to do with the matter.

"Man is too fond of excusing himself, to go without the 'morning dram' of believing in ill-luck. He is very illogical, certainly, and, like illogical people generally, runs, when driven out from one definition, to the one almost identical. If he does not believe in luck he may at least swallow the same compound under another name, and he calls that 'destiny.' Thomas Moore wrote a very pretty song, conveying the idea in its refrain "that the star of his destiny was faded," the sentiment and expression of which were about equally true; and Napoleon, when he was at St. Helena, talked a great deal with Bourienne about 'destiny.' He was the Man of Destiny—the picked, the chosen. 'People talk of my crimes,' said he, but men of my mark do not commit crimes. What I did was a necessity: I was the child of Destiny!'

"This belief in destiny we must, therefore, put up with, but we may, at least, try and explain it. As we have said, it is no new thing. Our whole existence is to us a mystery. We are surrounded by wonders. Think as long as we can, till our hand grows palsied, our hair white, our eyes bleared, and our skin wrinkled, we cannot solve them. We are happy, therefore, to plunge into other mysteries, and to explain the inexplicable by making a solution which is more mysterious. It is no new thing with the human mind to do so.

"He who believes thoroughly in destiny—and there are those amongst the Turks, and amongst ourselves, who do—is a very strong or a very weak man. He is not an unhappy one. Intoxicated with his belief, he passes his life under the influence of a mental drug. He persuades himself that he is an irresponsible creature. He adopts that famous motto of the Russells, 'What shall be, will be,' and floats down the stream of Time, on to the great ocean of Eternity, quite careless whom he may run down or where he may be wrecked—ever trusting in his destiny. To continue the simile of the stream, a very old one, but very pertinent regarding life, we may say that the only difference between those who give their credence to destiny, and those who do not, is the belief in a rudder to our human boat, but not in a will to guide it. The destinarians and predestinarians seem to us to forget this rudder, or to presume that in the grand affairs of life it must be useless.

"'We make the world we live in; and we weave
About us webs of good or ill, which leave
Their impress on our souls.'"

A LESSON FOR REPINERS.

THAT quaint old writer, Izaak Walton, has written:—"Let us not repine, or so much as think the gifts of God unequally dealt, if we see another abound with riches; when, as God knows, the cares that are the keys that keep those riches, hang often so heavily at the rich man's girdle, that they clog him with weary days and restless nights, even when others sleep quietly. We see but the outside of the rich man's happiness: few consider him to be like the silkworm, that, when she seems to play, is at the very same time spinning her own bowels, and consuming herself. And this many rich men do; loading themselves with corroding cares to keep what they have already got. Let us, therefore, be thankful for healthened competence, and, above all, a quiet conscience."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

18.—One of the many heroes who fell on the memorable day of Waterloo (which was fought fifty years ago) was Sir Thomas Picton. He descended from an ancient family in Pembrokeshire, and commenced his military career as an ensign in a foot regiment, in 1771. In 1794 he embarked for the West Indies, and after the reduction of St. Lucia and Trinidad, in 1797, he was promoted to the rank of colonel, and was appointed governor of the latter island. Whilst holding that appointment, an instance is recorded which threw a shade over his otherwise bright career. He was applied to by a Spanish magistrate to sign an order for inflicting torture on a female slave (Louisa Calderon), and on being informed that it was customary, he signed it without inquiry. The girl, who was but fourteen years of age, was consequently picketed, with a view to elicit from her the particulars of a theft committed by her paramour. For this cruel act he (Picton) was tried and found guilty by an English jury, but as many exaggerated reports had preceded him to England, a new trial was granted, and although it resulted in his being acquitted of moral guilt, yet an act of such cruelty left a blot on his escutcheon. He was, however, again employed for his country in 1809, and afterwards, on the capture of Flushing, was chosen governor. He was a man remarkable for his courage and intrepidity, and ever foremost in the fight, he was a victorious leader at Badajoz, Vittoria, Cuidad Rodrigo, &c. At the battle of Waterloo, during a gallant and eminently successful repulse of the French, the brave Picton fell, being struck by a musket-ball in the right temple, and immediately expired. It has been stated that he had a presentiment that this campaign would close his career. His last words were "Charge! charge! Hurrah!" His life had been spent in fighting the battles of his country; he had attained the meridian of his military glory, and no one of the many brave heroes who fell at Waterloo was more lamented, for no one had been more admired and beloved by the British army. Picton's renown had attracted the notice of Bonaparte, who, on the morning of the battle, inquired, "Where is Picton's division?" His desire to know this might be attributed to his thinking that, as they had been so roughly handled, and lost so many men at Quatre Bras, their morale was shaken, and they might easily be overpowered; but, however, he was disappointed. (It is interesting to notice that when the body of Picton was laid out on the 19th, at Brussels, it was discovered that he had been wounded at Quatre Bras, on the 16th, but had concealed the fact.)—A monument to his memory was voted by Parliament, and erected in St. Paul's Cathedral, in London.

HOME AND ITS ASSOCIATIONS.

SWEET are the joys of Home,
And pure as sweet; for they
Like dews of morn and evening come,
To wake and close the day.

The world hath its delights,
And its delusions, too;
But Home to calmer bliss invites,
More tranquil and more true.

The mountain flood is strong,
But fearful in its pride;
While gently rolls the stream along
The peaceful valley's side.

Life's charities, like light,
Spread smilingly afar;
But stars approached, become more bright,
And Home is life's own star.

The pilgrim's step in vain
Seeks Eden's sacred ground!
But in Home's holy joys, again
An Eden may be found.

A glance of heaven to see,
To none on earth is given;
And yet a happy family
Is but an earlier heaven.

John Bowring.

TO be happy at home, is the ultimate result of all ambition; the end to which every enterprise and labour tends, and of which every desire prompts the prosecution. It is indeed at home that every man must be known by those who would make a just estimate either of his virtue or felicity; for smiles and embroidery are alike occasional, and the mind is frequently dressed for show in painted honour and fictitious benevolence.—Johnson.

IT was the policy of the good old gentleman, (says Washington Irving, in one of his works) to make his children feel that Home was the happiest place in the world; and Cowper, in praise of Home, writes:—

This fond attachment to the well-known place
Whence first we started into life's long race,
Maintains its hold with such unfailing sway,
We feel it e'en in age, and at our latest day.

Home Life.

EVEN as the sunbeam is composed of millions of minute rays, the home light must be constituted of little tendernesses, kindly looks, sweet laughter, gentle words, loving counsels; it must not be like the torch-blaze of natural excitement, which is easily quenched, but like the serene, chastened light which burns as safely in the dry east wind as in the stillest atmosphere. Let each bear the other's burthen the while—let each cultivate the mutual confidence, which is a gift capable of increase and improvement—and soon it will be found that kindliness will spring up on every side, displacing constitutional unsuitability, and want of mutual confidence.

ARE you not surprised to find how independent of money peace of conscience is, and how much happiness can be condensed in the humblest home? A cottage will not hold the bulky furniture and sumptuous accomodation of a mansion; but if God be there, a cottage will hold as much happiness as might stock a palace.—Dr. James Hamilton.

Home and Friends.

OH! there's a power to make each hour
As sweet as heaven design'd it;
Nor need we roam to bring it home,
Though few there be that find it.
We seek too high for things close by,
And lose what Nature found us,
For life hath here no charms so dear
As home and friends around us.

WE oft destroy the present joy
For future hopes—and praise them;
Whilst flowers as sweet bloom at our feet,
If we'd but stoop to raise them;
For things afar still sweetest are
When youth's bright spell hath bound us;
But soon we're taught the earth hath nought
Like home and friends around us.

THE friends that speed in time of need,
When hope's last reed is shaken,
Do show us still, that come what will,
We are not quite forsaken.
Though all were night, if but the light
From friendship's altar crown'd us,
Twould prove the bliss of earth was this—
Our home and friends around us.—SWAIN.

The Joys of Home.

INDEED the great sources of a nation's power and happiness must always lie about the domestic hearth. There or nowhere are sown, and for many years cherished by culture, all those virtues which bloom afterwards in public, and form the best ornaments of the commonwealth. Men are everywhere what their mothers make them. The domestic example, small and obscure though it be, will impress its image on the state; since that which individually is base and little, can never become great, or lead to those heroic efforts which elevate human nature to a sphere in which it appears to touch upon and partake something of the divine.—A. St. John.

THE road to home happiness lies over small stepping-stones. Slight circumstances are the stumbling-blocks of families. The tenderer the feelings, the more painful the wound. A cold, unkind word checks and withers the blossom of the dearest love, as the most delicate rings of the vine are troubled by the faintest breeze.—Jesse.

OUR HOME!

WHAT images are brought before us by that one word! The meeting of cordial smiles, and the gathering round the evening hearth, and the interchange of thoughts in kindly words, and the glance of eyes to which our hearts lie open as the day; there is the true "city of refuge."—Mrs. Hemans.

"HERE woman reigns: the mother, daughter, wife,
Strews with fresh flowers the narrow way of life!
In the clear heaven of her delightful eye,
An angel-guard of loves and graces lie!
Around her knees domestic duties meet,
And fireside pleasures gambol at her feet."

THE ANGRY WORD SUPPRESSED.

THE angry word suppress'd, the taunting thought;
Subduing and subdu'd, the petty strife,
Which clouds the colour of domestic life;
The sober comfort, all the peace which springs
From the large aggregate of little things;
On these small cares of daughter, wife, or friend,
The almost sacred joys of Home depend.—

Hannah More.

THE BENEFITS OF RECREATION.

Bishop Hall, in one of his admirable essays, has well remarked:—"Recreation is intended to the mind as whetting is to the scythe, to sharpen the edge of it, which otherwise would grow dull and blunt. He, therefore, that spends his whole time in recreation, is ever whetting, never mowing; his grass may grow and his steed starves as, contrarily, he that always toils and never recreates, is ever mowing, never whetting; labouring much to little purpose. As good no scythe as no edge. Then only doth the work go forward, when the scythe is so seasonably and moderately whetted, that it may cut, and so cut that it may have the help of sharpening."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

24.—It is a somewhat singular coincidence that the 53rd birthday of the celebrated John Philpot Curran (he having been born in 1750) should have been so sadly commemorated by what is known as "Emmett's insurrection." Curran, whose name stands pre-eminent, both as a lawyer and debater, was born near Cork, and having been of humble origin, his early career was fraught with difficulties, but by perseverance they were overcome. After the unhappy rebellion of 1798, it fell to Curran's lot to defend almost all the prisoners implicated therein, which he did in so able a manner, as to win golden opinions from all. At the breaking out of Emmett's insurrection in 1803, Curran was unjustly suspected of complicity in the plot, in consequence of letters from Miss Curran having been found on the person of Emmett (a sketch of whose career is given in the page for September) when he was arrested. Curran, however, cleared himself of this suspicion; as it was found that Emmett had fallen deeply in love with his youngest daughter, which affection was mutual, but unknown to Mr. Curran. The following pathetic narrative of the unhappy lovers is an extract from Washington Irving's "Sketch Book," under the title of "The Broken Heart:"—"Every one must recollect the tragic story of young Emmett, the Irish patriot; it was too touching to be soon forgotten. His fate had made a deep impression on public sympathy. He was so young—so intelligent—so generous—so brave—so everything we are apt to like in a young man..... But there was one heart whose anguish it would be impossible to describe. In happier days he had won the affections of a beautiful and interesting girl, who loved him with the fervour of a woman's first and early love. When every wordly maxim arrayed itself against him; when blasted in fortune, and disgrace and danger darkened around his name, she loved him the more ardently for his very sufferings. If, then, his fate could awaken the sympathy even of his foes, what must have been the agony of her whose soul was occupied by his image! Let those tell who have had the portals of the tomb suddenly closed upon them and the being they most loved on earth—who have sat at its threshold, as one shut out in a cold and lonely world, from whence all that was most lovely and loving had departed. But then the horrors of such a grave! so frightful, so dishonoured! There was nothing for memory to dwell on that could soothe the dreadful separation; and, to render her widowed situation more desolate, she had incurred her father's displeasure by her unfortunate attachment, and was an exile from the paternal roof. But could the sym-

"THE VIRTUES OF WOMAN ARE AS PRICELESS GEMS."

Kindness in women, not their beauteous looks,
Shall win my love.—SHAKESPEARE.

O woman! lovely woman! Nature made thee
To temper man.—OTWAY.

O THOU, by heaven ordain'd to be
Arbitress of man's destiny;
From thy sweet lips one tender sigh,
One glance of thine approving eye,
Can raise or bend him at thy will,
To virtue's noblest flights, or worst extremes of ill.

Woman! 'tis thine to cleanse his heart
From every gross, unholy part;
Thine in domestic solitude,
To teach him to be wise and good;
His pattern, guide, and friend to be,
To give him back the heaven he forfeited for thee!

Woman's Devotion.

On the faithfulness and devotion of Woman to man in the hour of adversity, Washington Irving has paid the following graceful tribute:—

Those disasters which break down the spirit of a man, and prostrate him in the dust, seem to call forth all the energies of the softer sex, and give such intrepidity and elevation to their character, that at times it approaches to sublimity. Nothing can be more touching than to behold a soft and tender female, who had been all weakness and dependence, while treading the prosperous paths of life, suddenly rising in mental force to be the comforter and supporter of her husband under misfortune, and abiding, with unshrinking firmness, the bitterest blasts of adversity. As the vine which has long twined its graceful foliage about the oak, and been lifted by it in sunshine, will, when the hardy plant is rifted by the thunderbolt, cling round it with its caressing tendrils, and bind up its shattered boughs, so is it beautifully ordered by Providence that woman, who is the mere dependent and ornament of man in his happier hours, should be his stay and solace when smitten with sudden calamity; winding herself into the rugged recesses of his nature, tenderly supporting the drooping head, and binding up the broken heart.

WOMEN, so amiable in themselves, are never so amiable as when they are useful; and as for beauty, though men may fall in love with girls at play, there is nothing to make them stand to their love like seeing them at work.—COBBETT.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND.

'TIS hers o'er the couch of misfortune to bend, [friend;
In fondness a lover, in firmness a
And prosperity's hour, be it ever confess'd,
From woman received both refinement and zest.—MOORE.

PROVERBS ABOUT WOMEN!

The following maxims, selected from various sources, are so well-known and often used, that they have become "Household Proverbs:"—

There is one good wife in the country, and every man thinks he hath her.

The society of ladies is a school of politeness.

Beauty in women is like the flower in spring; but virtue is like the stars of heaven.

The more women look in their glasses, the less they look to their houses.

As the good man saith, so say we; but as the good woman saith, so it must be.

All women are good; good for something, or good for nothing.

A good woman, though plain, is the ornament of the house.

An obedient wife commands her husband.

A woman's work is never at an end.

A good wife is the workmanship of a good husband.

Ladies will sooner pardon want of sense than want of manners.

A little house well filled,
A little land well tilled,
And a little wife well willed.

Many blame the wife for their own thriftless life.

Next to no wife, a good wife is best.

A sensible woman seeks employment at home—a silly one, abroad.

When the good man is from home the good wife's table is soon spread.

She that hath an ill husband shows it in her dress.

Saith Solomon the Wise, "A good wife's a good prize."

There is many a good wife that can't sing and dance well.

You may know a foolish woman by her finery.

Bare walls make gadding housewives, and gadding housewives make bare walls.

A man's best fortune—or his worst—is a wife.

If all are good lasses, where come the bad wives from?

A lass that has many wooers oft fares the worst.

A man must ask his wife leave to thrive.

Women are wise on a sudden, fools on premeditation.

Fire dresses the meat, and not a smart lass.

Choose a wife rather by your ear, than your eye.

A good woman is the lovliest flower that blooms under heaven.

THE very first
Of human life must spring from woman's breast:
Your first small words are taught you from her lips;
Your first tears quench'd by her, and your last sighs
Too often breathed out in a woman's hearing,
When men have shrunk from the ignoble care
Of watching the last hour of him who led them.—BYRON.

Woman's Self-Denial.

On the self-denial of Woman, a well-known author has made the following very appropriate remarks:—

To the honour, to the eternal honour of the sex, be it stated, that on the part of duty no sacrifice is to them too high or too dear. Nothing is with them impossible, but to shrink from love, honour, innocence, and religion. The voice of pleasure or of power may pass by unheeded; but the voice of affliction—never. The chamber of the sick—the pillow of the dying—the vigils of the dead—the altars of religion, never missed the presence or the sympathies of woman. Timid though she be, on such occasions she loses all sense of danger, and assumes a preternatural courage, which knows not and fears not consequences. Then she displays that undaunted spirit which neither courts difficulties nor evades them; that resignation which utters neither murmurs nor regret; and that patience in suffering which seems victorious even over death itself.

NOTHING on earth can compare with a faithful attachment of a woman; no creature is so indomitable, so persevering, so ready to suffer and to die for the object of her love. Under the most distressing circumstances a woman's weakness becomes a mighty power; all her shrinking and sinking pass away, and her spirit acquires the firmness of marble, when circumstances drive her to put forth all her energies.

WOMAN'S MISSION.

'TIS thine to curb the passions madd'ning sway,
And wipe the mourner's bitter tear away: [has fled,
'Tis thine to soothe, when hope itself
And cheer with angel smile the sufferer's bed:
To give to earth its charm, to life its zest, [blest.
One only task—to bless, and to be

WHAT TRUE LIFE IS.

THE mere lapse of years is not life. To eat, and drink, and sleep—to be exposed to darkness and the light—to pace round in the mill of habit, and turn thought into an implement of trade—this is not life. Knowledge, truth, love, beauty, goodness, faith, alone can give vitality to the mechanism of existence. The laugh of mirth that vibrates through the heart; the tears that freshen the dry wishes within; the music that brings childhood back; the prayer that calls the future near; the doubt that makes us meditate; the death which startles us with mystery; the hardship which forces us to struggle; the anxiety that ends in trust; are the true nourishment of our natural being.—MARTINEAU.

pathy and kind offices of friends have reached a spirit so shocked and driven in by horror, she would have experienced no want of consolation, for the Irish are a people of quick and generous sensibility. The most delicate and cherishing attentions were paid her by families of wealth and distinction. She was led into society, and they tried by all kinds of occupation and amusement to dissipate her grief. But it was all in vain!... There are some strokes of calamity that scathe and scorch the soul—that penetrate to the vital seat of happiness—and blast it, never again to put forth bud or blossom. She never objected to frequent the haunts of pleasure, but she was as much alone there as in the depths of solitude. She walked about in a sad reverie, apparently unconscious of the world around her. She carried with her an inward woe that mocked at all the blandishments of friendship, and 'heeded not the song of the charmer, charm he never so wisely.' The person who told me her story (continues Washington Irving) had seen her at a masquerade..... After strolling through the splendid rooms and giddy crowd, with an utter air of abstraction, she sat down on the steps of an orchestra, and looking about some time, with a vacant air, that showed her insensibility of the garish scene, she began, with the capriciousness of a sickly heart, to warble a little plaintive air. She had an exquisite voice; but on this occasion it was so simple, so touching, it breathed forth such a soul of wretchedness, that she drew a crowd, mute and silent, around her, and melted every one into tears." And Moore has made this touching scene the theme of his beautiful song—

She is far from the land where her young hero sleeps, [ing;
And lovers are round her, sigh-
But coldly she turns from their gaze, and weeps, [lying!
For her heart in his grave is

She sings the wild song of her dear native plains, [ing—
Every note which he lov'd awak-
Ah! little they think who delight in her strains,
How the heart of the minstrel is breaking!

The story of one so true and tender completely won the heart of a brave officer, who succeeded in gaining her hand, but with the solemn assurance that her heart was unalterably that of another's. He took her with him to Sicily, hoping that a change of scene might wear out the remembrance of her early sorrows; and, although she made him an amiable and exemplary wife, yet nothing could cure the devouring melancholy of her soul, and she at length sunk into the grave, the victim of a broken heart.

THE BLESSINGS OF EDUCATION.

"If a man all his life long should do no other good thing than educate his child right in the fear of God, then, I think, this may be an atonement for his neglects. The greatest work which thou canst do is even this—that thou educatest thy child well."—LUTHER.

Children, like tender osiers, take the bow,
And as they're fashioned, so they grow.

BEGIN the education of the heart, not with the cultivation of noble propensities, but with the cutting away of those that are evil. When once the noxious herbs are withered and rooted out, then the more noble plants, strong in themselves, will shoot upwards. The virtuous heart, like the body, becomes strong and healthy more by labour than by nourishment.—RICHTER.

A good heart and a clear conscience are the best monitors.

I THINK we may assert that in a hundred men there are more than ninety who are what they are, good or bad, useful or pernicious to society, from the instruction they have received. It is on education that depends the great difference observable among them. The least and most imperceptible impressions received in our infancy have consequences very important and of a long duration. It is with these first impressions, as with a river, whose waters we can easily turn by different canals in quite opposite courses; so that from the insensible direction the stream receives at its source, it takes different directions, and at last arrives at places far distant from each other; and with the same facility we may, I think, turn the minds of children to what direction we please.—LOCKE.

Good instruction is as necessary as food.
Example teaches more than precept.

PRECEPT must be upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little, and there a little.—ISAIAH.

Knowledge, like food, requires digestion.
He who teaches, often learns himself.

EVERY man has two educations—that which is given to him, and the other, that which he gives to himself. Of the two kinds, the latter is by far the most valuable. Indeed, all that is most worthy in a man, he must work out and conquer for himself. It is this that constitutes our real and best nourishment. What we are merely taught seldom nourishes the mind like that which we teach ourselves.—TYNMAN.

As a man is the master of his own fortune,
so he is the maker of his own mind.

'Tis education forms the common mind;
Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined.

WHATEVER expands the affections, or enlarges the sphere of our sympathies—whatever makes us feel our relation to the universe, and all that it inherits, in time and in eternity, to the great and beneficial cause of all, must unquestionably refine our nature, and elevate us in the scale of beings.—CHANNING.

The richest endowments of the mind are temperance, prudence, and fortitude.

THE health, the education, and future prosperity of children depend greatly on the vigorous and virtuous efforts of the mother. The authority of the father may command their respect, but it remains for the mother to win them to the path of knowledge, of morality, and of piety, by incessant lessons of love.

Educate the body to act, the head to think,
and the heart to feel.

OF all the blessings which it has pleased Providence to allow us to cultivate, there is not one which breathes a purer fragrance, or bears a heavenlier aspect, than education. It is a companion which no misfortunes can depress—no clime destroy—no enemy alienate—no despotism enslave—at home a friend—abroad an introduction—in solitude a solace—in society an ornament—it chastens vice—it guides virtue—it gives at once a grace and government to genius. Without it what is man? A splendid slave! a reasoning savage! vacillating between the dignity of an intelligence derived from God and the degradation of passions participated with brutes, and in the accident of their alternate ascendancy, shuddering at the terrors of an hereafter.—PHILLIPS.

Knowledge is the treasure of the mind,
and discretion is the key to it.

THOSE rudiments of wisdom did improve;
The tender age was pliant to command;
Like wax it yielded to the forming hand;
True to the artificer, the laboured mind
With ease was pious, generous, just, and kind;
Till virtue with long exercise, grew hard;
With every act confirmed and made at last
So durable as not to be effaced,
It turned to habit; and from vices free,
Goodness resolved into necessity.—DRYDEN.

Education is rightly valued only when the need of it is felt.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS!

In the constitution both of our mind and our body, everything must go on right, and harmonise well together to make us happy: but should one thing go wrong, that is quite enough to make us miserable; and, although the joys of this world are vain and short, yet its sorrows are real and lasting; for I will show you a ton of perfect pain with greater ease than one ounce of perfect pleasure; and he knows but little of himself, or of the world, who does not think it sufficient happiness to be free from sorrow; therefore, give a wise man health, and he will give himself every other thing.—COLTON.

KNOW then this truth, enough for man to know,
Virtue alone is happiness below.
POPE.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

20—This young enthusiast, Robert Emmett, the son of Dr. Emmett (himself of republican principles) was intended for the Irish bar, and was early distinguished in Trinity College, not only for his abilities, but for his display of eloquence. Although possessed of splendid talents, he lacked discretion, and having too often avowed his political principles, a prosecution was threatened, to avoid which, he fled to France, where his republican opinions were confirmed. In 1803, he returned to Dublin, not being then more than twenty-four years of age, and came into possession of £3,500, which had been left him by his father. The sober business of life having no attractions for him, he resolved to devote himself to the separation of his country from England, and entering upon it with great earnestness, he soon found abettors from among those who had escaped the angry vengeance of 1798. Although his scheme was attended with disasters, he was too sanguine to be soon discouraged. The 23rd of July, 1803, was the day appointed for the general rising, which was to commence with an attack on Dublin; but the plan was frustrated by disappointments. In the confusion which ensued, the patriots deceived one another; and several hundred men who came in from the country returned home, having been told that the rising was postponed. It was now too late to retract, and Emmett, therefore, resolved on a desperate attempt, and with about eighty followers, sallied out at nine o'clock at night towards the Castle, which he intended to surprise. A few minutes revealed to him the madness of such a scheme, for he soon found himself in the midst of a ruffianly mob, who would neither obey nor follow him. His followers were at length reduced to eighteen, and he being convinced of his folly, humanely prevented the discharge of a rocket, which was to have been the signal for the outposts to commence hostilities. Circumstances had now rendered it necessary for him to fly from his country, and before doing so, he determined to have a final interview with the object of his love (Curran's daughter), but on his way thither he was arrested. His trial took place at Dublin, and being found guilty of high treason, he was condemned, and executed on the 20th September, 1803. His youth, respectability, and good nature, excited general sympathy; and Moore, the Irish bard, has lamented his fate in the well-known beautiful lines:—

"Oh! breathe not his name—let it sleep in the shade!
Where cold and unhonor'd his relics are laid!
Sad, silent, and dark, be the tears that we shed
As the night dew that falls on the grass o'er his head."

THE SECRET OF BEING WELL DRESSED.

"As the index of a book tells us the contents of its stories, and directs to the particular chapter, even so does the outward habit and superficial order of garments (in man or woman) give us a taste of the spirit, and demonstratively point out all the internal quality of the soul; and there cannot be a more evident, palpable, gross manifestation of poor, degenerated blood and breeding, than a rude, unpolished, disordered, and slovenly outside."—MASSINGER.

IT perhaps may be asserted, without flattery, that English women are the best-looking women in the world; but they cannot, at all times, be complimented so much for their good taste in dress. The upper classes—the elite of society—usually dress with great good taste. They have travelled much, and have had opportunities of observing with what elegance the highest circles in France, Russia, and Germany dress. But it frequently occurs that those who are inordinately vain, and have money in abundance, do not dress well. Perhaps it may be said "they dress not wisely, but too well!" They heap together luxurious and costly garments, the most expensive that can be bought, without regard to fitness; and strike the beholder rather with astonishment at the variety of their clothing than its elegance.

The lower classes, too, cannot be praised for their good taste in dress. How often may be seen a servant-girl, when out for a holiday, decked in finery utterly at variance with itself—blue, green, and red mingled, without blending or contrasting—without harmonising. She never looks so really attractive as when attired in a neat, afternoon dress. Cleanliness and neatness win much more admiration than all the finery which fancy can suggest—men respect the one and deride the other.

The great mistake that women as well as men make in dress is a want of fitness, and simplicity. What flowers are those we most admire?—not the gaudy tulip or the glaring sunflower, but the modest, unassuming lily of the valley; or the charming, delicate moss rose. We should take a lesson from Nature, as the Great Master of Nature told us when he directed our attention to the lilies, and told us that "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." Dress should be adopted to the wearer. For a slim girl, or a short young woman, a more showy dress may be permitted than to an older person, or especially to one above the middle height. For a woman above the ordinary stature, to dress in gaudy, flaunting colours, is positively hideous; while such dress really becomes no one. Here is a bit of sober advice taken from an old play. It is adapted for all times:—

> I'll have no glittering gewgaws stuck about you,
> To stretch the gaping eyes of idiot wonder,
> And make men stare upon a piece of earth
> As on the star-wrought firmament; no feathers
> To wave as streamers to your vanity.

Many of the "gentler sex," doubtless, may raise their protest at this. "No glittering gewgaws," and "no feathers," sounds like a punishment; but it need not be taken literally. The idea is, that flaunting, glaring ornaments do not suit any one, and that the true charm of dress is to be found in an elegant simplicity. It is astonishing how well a woman may be dressed without any glittering gewgaws or feathers; or, in other words, without any "trumpery finery." On the other hand, it is remarkable how badly a woman may be dressed, though she heap upon herself silks and satins, jewellery, feathers, and ornaments. Some people seem to think that the more expensive a dress, the better it is, and, consequently, the better they will look. It is quite a mistake. To dress well is to adapt dress to the figure, the age of the wearer, and station in life; and then even the poor may show an elegance and a simplicity which mere wealth without refinement and good taste can never procure.

Dr. Johnson once remarked that he knew a lady, of whom he was speaking, was well dressed, because he could not remember what she had on. There is much sense in the remark; but it is only another way of saying that to dress well is to dress simply and with a chaste and refined taste.

Fashion, of late years, has run to extravagant lengths, or rather breadths, especially with regard to crinoline. In moderation it is all very well, but an extravagant crinoline is an absurdity, opposed alike to nature and to art. Tight lacing is even a greater absurdity; nay, it is a crime. These, and all other extremes, should be avoided, and care should be taken to dress with modest elegance, for they who are the least adorned are adorned the most.

But there is yet another view of the question—its aspect when considered in a conscientious light! And whilst it is right to expend on ourselves that which becomes our relative positions, it is wrong to expend on insatiable fashion that which would clothe those who, perhaps, have a claim to our sympathies and help. On this part of our subject, Ruskin, in an essay on the Waste of Expensive Dress, makes the following appropriate remarks:—

> "As long as there are cold and nakedness in the land around you, so long can there be no question at all but that splendour of dress is a crime. In due time, when we have nothing better to set people to work at, it may be right to let them make lace and cut jewels; but, as long as there are any who have no blankets for their beds, and no rags for their bodies, so long it is blanket-making and tailoring we must set people to work at—not lace."

COMFORTS OF RELIGION.

Good men are comforted under their troubles by the hope of heaven; while bad men are not only deprived of this hope, but distressed with fears arising from a future state. The soul of man can never divest itself wholly of anxiety about its fate hereafter; there are hours when, even to the most prosperous, in the midst of their pleasures, eternity is an awful thought; but much more when those pleasures, one after another, begin to withdraw; when life alters its forms, and becomes dark, and cheerless—when its changes warn the most inconsiderate, that what is so mutable will very soon pass entirely away.—Blair.

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

20.—This motto was adopted by the Duke of Richmond on his creation to that honour by his father, Charles II., perhaps justly called the "Merry Monarch." The following romantic story is told of Lord March, (grandson of Charles II.) who afterwards became the second Duke of Richmond:—

The bride was Lady Sarah, the daughter of the Earl of Cadogan, Marlborough's favourite general. Their union (according to Napier's account) was a bargain to cancel a gambling debt between the parents, and the young Lord March was brought from college, the lady from the nursery, for the ceremony. The bride was amazed and silent, but the bridegroom exclaimed, "Surely you are not going to marry me to that dowdy?" Married he was, however, and his tutor instantly carried him off to the continent. Three years after this event Lord March returned from his travels a most accomplished gentleman; but having such a very disagreeable recollection of his wife, he avoided home, and repaired, on the first night of his arrival, to the theatre. There he saw a lady of so fine an appearance that he asked who she was, and on being informed that she was "the reigning toast, the beautiful Lady March," he hastened to claim her, and they lived together so affectionately, that, one year only after his decease in 1750, she died of grief."

One of the numerous children of this loving pair, Lady Sarah, grew up an extraordinary beauty, and attracted the attention of George III., who had then just ascended the throne, at the age of twenty-two, and her charms made such a deep impression on the heart of the young king, that he, no doubt, would have married her, had not influence been exerted to prevent it; and he was compelled by state policy to marry the Princess Charlotte of Mecklengburg-Strelitz, who bore him fifteen children, (of whom the Duchess of Gloucester was the last surviving, and who died in 1857.) The subsequent marriage of Lady Sarah Lennox, in 1764, to Sir Thomas Charles Bunbury, Bart., who was the son of a clergyman, proved that, with her, ambition was not a ruling passion. But her married life was an unhappy one, and the marriage was dissolved by act of parliament in 1776. She was afterwards married to the Hon Major-General George Napier, and became the mother of a set of most remarkable men, amongst whom were the late Sir Charles James Napier, the conqueror of Scinde, and Lieutenant-General Sir William Napier, the historian of the Peninsular War. Her ladyship died in 1826, at the advanced age of eighty-two, and was believed to be the last surviving great grand-daughter of Charles II.

"READING AND THINKING SHOULD GO HAND IN HAND."

Culture of the Mind.

THE mind ought sometimes to be diverted, that it may return the better to thinking.—Phædrus.

AS the mind must govern the hands, so in every society the man of intelligence must direct the man of labour.—Johnson.

A WEAK mind is like a microscope, which magnifies trifling things, but cannot receive great ones.—Chesterfield.

As it is in himself alone that man can find true and enduring happiness, so in himself alone can he find time and efficient consolation in misfortune.—Bubo.

AS the soil, however rich it may be, cannot be productive without culture, so the mind, without cultivation, can never produce good fruit. —Seneca.

THE blessings of an active mind, when it is in good condition, is, that it not only employs itself, but is almost sure to be the means of giving wholesome employment to others.—Paley.

THE great business of a man is to improve his mind and govern his manners; all other projects and pursuits, whether in our power to compass or not, are only amusements.—Pliny.

THE truly strong and sound mind, is the mind that can embrace equally great things and small. I would have a man great in great things, and elegant in little things. —Johnson.

SUBLIME is the dominion of the mind over the body, that, for a time, can make flesh and nerve impregnable, and string the sinews like steel, so that the weak become so mighty.—Mrs. Stowe.

IT is mind, after all, that does the work of the world; so that the more there is of mind, the more work will be accomplished. A man, in proportion as he is intelligent, makes a given force accomplish a greater task, makes skill take the place of muscles, and with less labour, gives a better produce.—Arnold.

THE failure of the mind in old age is often less the result of natural decay than of disuse. Ambition has ceased to operate; contentment brings indolence; indolence, decay of mental power, ennui, and sometimes death. Men have been known to die, literally speaking, of disease induced by intellectual vacancy.—Sir Benjamin Brodie.

Hints on Manners.

A MAN'S own good breeding is the best security against other people's ill manners.—Chesterfield.

AN able man shows his spirit by gentle words and resolute actions: he is neither hot nor timid.—Chesterfield.

THERE are some persons on whom their faults sit well, and others who are made ungraceful by their good qualities.—La Rochefoucauld.

GOOD manners is the art of making those people easy with whom we converse. Whoever makes the fewest persons uneasy, is the best bred in the company.—Swift.

LET thy carriage be friendly, but not foolishly free: an unwary openness causeth contempt, but a little reservedness, respect; and handsome courtesy, kindness.—Fuller.

IN conversation use some, but not too much ceremony: it teaches others to be courteous too. Demeanours are commonly paid back in their own coin.—Fuller.

GOOD-BREEDING is the result of much good sense, some good nature, and a little self-denial for the sake of others, and with a view to obtain the same indulgence from them.—Chesterfield.

Manners makyth the Man, Quoth William of Wykeham.

AMONG well-bred people, a mutual deference is affected; contempt of others disguised; authority concealed; attention given to each in his turn; and an easy stream of conversation maintained, without vehemence, without interruption, without eagerness for victory, and without any airs of superiority.—Hume.

MANNERS are of more importance than laws. Upon them, in a great measure, the laws depend. The law touches us but here and there, now and then. Manners are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarise or refine us, by a constant, steady, uniform, sensible operation, like that of the air we breathe. They give their whole form and colour to our lives.—Burke.

THE happy gift of being agreeable seems to consist not in one, but in an assemblage of talents, tending to communicate delight; and how many are there, who, by easy manners, sweetness of temper, and a variety of other undefinable qualities, possess the power of pleasing without any visible effort, without the aids of wit, wisdom, or learning, and this without appearing even to know that they possess it.—Cumberland.

IMMORTALITY OF GOODNESS.

"Thousands of men breathe, move, live, and pass off the stage of life, and are heard of no more—Why? None were blessed by them; none could point to them as the means of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spake, could be recalled; and so they perished; their light went out in darkness, and they were not remembered more than insects of yesterday. Will you thus live and die, O man immortal! Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name, in kindness, love, and mercy, on the hearts of thousands you come in contact with year by year: you will never be forgotten. No, your name your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as the stars of heaven."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

18.—In August, last year, a couple in Scotland, according to an old Scotch custom, performed an "irregular" marriage in the hotel at which they were staying, and for which they were brought before the authorities and fined. In connection with the many "irregular" marriages recorded, it may be amusing to notice the following "extraordinary" marriages:—St. Jerome mentions a widow who had married her twenty-second husband, who in his turn had been married to twenty wives!—A woman who died in Florence in 1768, had been married to seven husbands, all of whom she outlived, and on her death-bed desired to be buried by the side of her fifth and best husband!—There is an account of a gentleman who had been married four times, and who died at the age of 115 years, leaving twenty-three children; and another, who died at Bordeaux, had been married sixteen times!—In Scotland, in 1749, a person who was so deformed that he had to be carried to church on men's shoulders, was married to a fair bride only twenty years of age!—At the marriage of a deaf and dumb young man at Greenock, the singularity was in the company—the bridegroom, his three sisters, and two young men with them, being all deaf and dumb.—It is stated in Dodsley's Annual Register that an ostler at a tavern in Spilsby walked with his intended wife all the way to Gretna Green, 240 miles, to get married.—An instance is recorded in which "a change came o'er" the heart of a young blacksmith residing at Bedford, who was paying his addresses to a fair maiden, and upon calling to see her one evening, he was asked by her mother what was the use of marrying a girl without money, and suggesting that it would be better to marry a wife who could bring him 500*l.*, in which suggestion the blacksmith concurred; and the mother intimating that she possessed that fortune, the bargain was struck immediately, although the bride was sixty-four, and the bridegroom only eighteen! The following marriages, illustrative of the disparity of ages, are also recorded: A doctor of eighty was married to a young woman of twenty-eight;—a gentleman aged seventy-six, was married to a girl who had been brought up by his third wife, the husband then having children living thrice the age of his fourth wife.—It is also stated that a girl of sixteen married a gentleman of ninety-four, but who had a fortune of £50,000! In Berkshire a blind woman of ninety was married to her ploughman, aged twenty;—a soldier, ninety-five, who had served in King William's wars, and had a ball in his nose, to a girl of fifteen;—in 1769, a woman at Rotherhithe, aged seventy, was married to a young man aged twenty-three—just half a century difference!

"MONEY IS A GOOD SERVANT, BUT A DANGEROUS MASTER."

THAT'S TRUE PLENTY, NOT TO HAVE, BUT NOT TO WANT RICHES.—Chrysostom.

MONEY is a great power whose latitude is not known; it has no bounds. Its characteristics are opposite; love is its good angel, and wickedness its evil prompter. Money is the power which overcomes the scruples of worldly men and unfair speculators; but it cannot regulate the conscience, nor can it ever do injury to a good and faithful Christian. Moreover, with its whole force concentrated, its whole range of contrivances—hitherto so potent and successful—exerted to the utmost, it is powerless to direct the flight of the immortal soul; nor can it, when that awful hour arrives, stay the hand of death, even to cry, "Lord, save me!" though ready to relinquish millions for the favour.—J. Hill.

HE HATH RICHES SUFFICIENT WHO HAS ENOUGH TO BE CHARITABLE.—Sir T. Browne.

AS for a little more money and a little more time, it is ten to one if either would make you happier. If you had more time, it would be sure to hang heavily. It is the working man who is the happy man. Man was made to be active, and he is never happy but when he is so. It is the idle man who is the miserable man. And, as for money, remember the old saying, "Enough is as good as a feast." Money never made a man happy yet, nor will it. There is nothing in its nature to produce happiness. Instead of its filling a vacuum, it makes one. If it satisfies one want, it doubles and trebles that want another way. That was a true proverb of the wise man—"Better is a little with the fear of the Lord, than great treasure, and trouble therewith."

The Love of Money.

THERE is a burden of care in getting riches; fear in keeping them; temptation in using them; guilt in abusing them; sorrow in losing them; and a burden of account at last to be given up concerning them.

THE love of money is the root of all evil; which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.—St. Paul.

THE love of money is a vertiginous pool, sucking all into it to destroy it. It is troubled and uneven, giddy and unsafe, serving no end but its own, and that also in a restless, uneasy motion.—Jeremy Taylor.

WE see how much a man has, and therefore we envy him; did we see how little he enjoys, we should rather pity him.—Steele.

RICHES are often thorns that pierce the head with cares in getting them; and the heart with grief in parting with them.

The Gentle Hint!

WHEN life is full of health and glee,
Work thou as busy as a bee!
And take the gentle hint from me—
Be careful of your money!
Be careful of your money, boys—
Be careful of your money;
You'll find it true, that friends are few,
When you are short of money!

But do not shut sweet Mercy's doors
When Sorrow pleads or Want implores;
To help to heal Misfortune's sores,
Be careful of your money!
Be careful of your money, boys—
Be careful of your money;
To help the poor who seek your door,
Be careful of your money!

Alex. Maclagan.

Accumulation of Wealth.

THE accumulation of wealth is followed by an increase of care and by an appetite for more. He who seeks for much, will ever be in want of much. It is best with him to whom God has given that which is sufficient, though every superfluity be withheld.

SOME have been so wedded to their riches, that they have used all the means they could to take them with them.—Grey.

BY doing good with his money, a man, as it were, stamps the image of God upon it, and makes it pass current for the merchandise of heaven.

MANY men pursue riches under the idea that their possession will set them at ease, and above the world. But the law of association often makes those who begin by loving gold as a servant, finish by becoming themselves its slaves; and independence without wealth is at least as common as wealth without independence.

Wish for no Man's Money!

LET none wish for unearned gold. The sweat by which it is gathered is the only sweet by which it is preserved for enjoyment. . . . Wish for no man's money. . . . But rather let us labour and be strong in the use of that we have, wasting no golden hours in idle wishes for things that burden those who own them. Being content, the poorest man is rich; while he who counts his millions hath little joy if he be otherwise.—Hunt.

BUT the love of God is a holy fountain, limpid and pure, sweet and salutary, lasting and eternal. The love of God spends itself upon him, to receive again the reflections of grace and benediction: the love of money spends all its desires upon itself, to purchase nothing but unsatisfying instruments of exchange, or supernumerary provisions, and ends in dissatisfaction, emptiness of spirit, and a bitter curse.—Jeremy Taylor.

A WISE MAN SHOULD HAVE MONEY IN HIS HEAD, BUT NOT IN HIS HEART.

The True Use of Gold.

GOLD is to solace the wants, and not to nourish the passions of men. He who expends it properly, is its master; he who lays it up, is its keeper; he who loves it, a fool; he who fears it, a slave; he who adores it, an idolater. The truly wise man is he who despises it; the most contented man is he who having sufficient for his wants, desires no more; and he will have as much as the most, if he wants no more.

IT hath been observed by wise and considering men that wealth hath seldom been the portion, and never the mark, to discover good people; but that Almighty God, who disposeth all things wisely, hath of His abundant goodness denied it (He only knows why) to many, whose minds He hath enriched with the greater blessings of knowledge and virtue, as the fairer testimonies of His love to mankind.—Izaak Walton.

MANY WHO WORSHIP MONEY LIKE AN IDOL, BUY NOTHING WITH IT BUT REPENTANCE.

THE VALUE OF GOOD TEMPER.

ANGRY and choleric men are as ungrateful and unsociable as thunder and lightning, being in themselves all storms and tempests; but quiet and easy natures are like fair weather, welcome to all, and acceptable to all men; they gather together what the others disperse, and reconcile all whom the others incense; as they have the good will and the good wishes of all other men, so they have the full possession of themselves, have all their own thoughts at peace, and enjoy quiet and ease in their own fortune, how strait soever it may be.—CLARENDON.

"A cheerful temper lightens sickness, poverty, and affliction."

NOTES TO THE CALENDAR.

20. — Alexander Hamilton was a distinguished American officer and legislator in the war of independence. While a student at Columbia College, although only seventeen years of age, he published several clever essays, concerning the rights of the colonies, which exhibited great soundness of argument. Before he was nineteen he entered the American army, with the rank of captain of artillery, and by the time he had reached his twentieth year, his conduct had won such respect for him, that the commander-in-chief had made him his aide-de-camp, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. From this time he became the inseparable companion of Washington, and all through his memorable campaigns he consulted Hamilton, on all matters of importance. After the war had ceased, Colonel Hamilton, then about twenty-four years of age, commenced the study of the law, and was soon admitted at the bar, to which he became an ornament, and also to the age in which he lived. In illustration of his inflexible integrity and high sense of honour, it may be mentioned that he was once applied to as counsel by a man having the guardianship of several orphans, who would, on coming of age, succeed to a large and valuable estate, of which there was a material defect in the title-deeds, known only to their guardian, who wanted to get the estate vested in himself. Hamilton noted down the faithless executor's statement, and then said to him, "Settle with these unhappy infants honourably to the last cent., or I will hunt you from your skin like a hare," which advice the unprincipled executor strictly followed. In 1798, when an invasion was apprehended from the French, and a provisional army had been called into the field, his services were again required for his country's safety, and such were his ability and discernment, and so reliable was his judgment, that, at the death of Washington, in 1799, he received the appointment of commander-in-chief. When, after the war, the army was disbanded, Colonel Hamilton again returned to the bar, and continued to practise with increased reputation and success until 1804. An unfortunate quarrel having taken place between him and Colonel Burr, the latter challenged him to a duel, and they arranged to meet at Hoboken on the 11th July following. At the first fire Hamilton fell mortally wounded, on the same spot where, only a short time previously, his eldest son had been killed in a duel. The sensation produced throughout the United States by this melancholy circumstance was very great, for of all the American statesmen, no one displayed a more comprehensive understanding, combined with more varied talents, than Hamilton.

REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS, &c.

FOR ENGLAND.

An infant should be registered within six weeks after its Birth. No fee is payable; but after 42 days, a fee of 7*s.* 6*d.* is chargeable.

Notice should be given of Deaths to the district registrar. Let this be done early, as a certificate must be obtained to give to the minister who performs the funeral service.

FOR SCOTLAND.

An infant must be registered within 21 days after its Birth.—A Marriage must be registered within three days after the occurrence.—A Death must be registered within eight days after the demise.

POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANKS.

By 24 Vic. cap. 14, Deposits of one shilling, or of any number of shillings, or of pounds and shillings, will be received from any depositor at the Post Office Savings Banks, provided the deposits made by such depositor in any year ending the 31st day of December do not exceed 30*l.*, and provide l the total amount standing in such depositor's name in the books of the Postmaster-General do not exceed 150*l.* exclusive of interest. When the principal and interest together standing to the credit of any one depositor, amount to the sum of 200*l.*, all interest will cease, so long as the same funds continue to amount to the said sum of 200*l.*

The interest is calculated to the 31st December in every year, and is then added to, and becomes part of the principal.

A depositor in any legally established Savings Bank may transfer his account to the Post Office Savings Bank, by simply applying to the managers of the Savings Bank for a certificate of the amount of his deposits, and the amount of such certificate will be entered to his credit by the Post Office Savings Bank as so much cash. In the same way an account may be transferred from the Post Office Savings Bank to any other legally established Savings Bank.

Deposits may be made by, or for the benefit of any person under twenty-one years of age, and repayment will be made to such minor, after the age of seven years, in the same manner as if he were of full age. In case of minors under the age of seven years, the declaration must be made by one of the parents, or a friend, on behalf of the minor.

Deposits may be made by married women, and deposits so made, or made by women who shall afterwards marry, will be repaid to any such woman, unless her husband shall give notice of such marriage, in writing, to the Postmaster-General, and shall require payment to be made to him.

ECLIPSES in 1865.

Total Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Greenwich, April 25.

Partial Eclipse of the Moon, visible at Greenwich, Oct. 4.

Annular Eclipse of the Sun, partly visible at Greenwich, October 19.

VACCINATION ACT.

It is imperative that parents should have every child vaccinated within three calendar months after birth, either by the legally qualified medical attendant of the family, or by the appointed public vaccinator. If other than the parents are left in charge of the child, the vaccination must then be within four months of birth. If these provisions be not complied with, and the child be not taken in eight days after vaccination to be examined by the medical practitioner, in order to ascertain the result of the operation, parties not complying incur a penalty not exceeding 20*s.* The registrars of each district are required to notify to parents or guardians of children whose births they have registered, the names and addresses of the public vaccinators, and the hours of attendance. Any further information required may be obtained on application to the registrar of the district.

PUBLIC CAUTION.

The rapidity with which the Real and only Genuine EXTRACT OF SOAP, known everywhere as

HUDSON'S

CONCENTRATED

EXTRACT OF SOAP,

Has won for itself an unrivalled fame, and established the fact that it WASHES WITHOUT SOAP, and LATHERS FREELY of itself, without injury either to the hands or the clothes, has tempted several makers of common Washing Powders, to PACK THEIR INFERIOR PREPARATIONS IN NEW WRAPPERS, calling them "Extract" and "Essence" of Soap, and attributing to them properties which are possessed only by

HUDSON'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT OF SOAP.

The Manufacturer of the TRUE AND ORIGINAL EXTRACT OF SOAP cautions the public against these unprincipled deceptions; and, as the counterfeit preparations approach so nearly in the name, purchasers should be particularly careful to ask for HUDSON'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT OF SOAP, and to notice that each Packet has the Trade Mark and Label on it, as below:—

ONE TRIAL of HUDSON'S EXTRACT OF SOAP will at once expose all impostures, and prove it to be a complete substitute for all kinds of Washing Powders, Soap Powders, &c., &c., and the only article of value that can be used for all Washing and Cleaning purposes. Is has wonderful detergent powers. It saves Time, Labour, Fuel, and Money, and renders the use of SOAP ALMOST UNNECESSARY. It so loosens the dirt, lathers so freely, and makes the water so soft and agreeable to the hands, that the clothes come out of the wash a beautiful colour, uninjured by violent rubbing.

It can be tried for ONE PENNY, and will recommend itself.

Manufactory:—Royal Chemical Works, West Bromwich.

KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS.

THESE Pills are a purely vegetable preparation, and may be taken by either sex without fear of any danger. They act upon the bowels mildly yet effectually, and by their fine tonic, aromatic, and aperient properties they remove all oppressive accumulations, regulate the secretions of the liver and bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. Unlike many remedies, they do not induce liability to take cold or establish a necessity for the habitual use of purgatives, and are thus strongly recommended as

THOMAS POTTINGER,

TAILOR & BREECHES MAKER,

No. 9, EASTCHEAP, LONDON,

AND

17, HARMER ST., GRAVESEND.

T. P. returns his respectful thanks for the various fovours he has received during many years; and he takes this opportunity of stating that he does not undertake to manufacture clothes for less money than any other tradesman; but he makes every article of good quality and workmanship—charging the smallest remunerative profit for ready money.

The cheapness of an article of clothing depends, to a great extent, upon its durability; and good articles can always be had at a respectable house quite as reasonable as at a puffing advertizing one, and without lowering the moral and physical energies of workmen, by paying them starvation prices.

The goods manufactured at the above house are as low in price as the best articles can be purchased at; the fashion the newest, and the workmen experienced. The steady progressive advancement in his trade is the best proof that this system of conducting it has been appreciated.

TO AGRICULTURISTS & OTHERS.

T. POTTINGER manufactures every description of Clothing adapted for out-door pursuits. Farmers, Cricketers, Yachtsmen, Anglers, &c., supplied with good articles of the best material and soundest make.

THE

GRAVESEND FREE PRESS,

NORTH KENT JOURNAL,

AND COUNTY ADVERTISER,

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY MORNING.

The "Gravesend Free Press" was established in 1855 by the present proprietor, being the first Cheap Newspaper in Gravesend and North Kent after the abolition of the Stamp Duty, and continues to be extensively circulated in Gravesend, Dartford, Erith, Woolwich, Crayford, Farningham, Greenhithe, Northfleet, Southfleet, Maidstone, Rochester, Cliffe, Higham, Cobham, Shorne, Grays, Purfleet, Orsett, Stanford-le-hope, and throughout North Kent and South Essex, and is therefore an excellent medium for ADVERTISEMENTS, the charges for which are on a very moderate scale.

Its Principles are entirely Independent.

The "Gravesend Free Press" contains full and correct particulars of the various Public Meetings in Gravesend, Dartford and Erith—the Quarterly Meetings of the Corporation, Municipal Elections, &c.—the Borough Quarter Sessions—the Monthly Sittings of the County Court—the proceedings before the Borough Justices in Petty Sessions—Police News, &c.—The Meetings of the Gravesend Improvement Commissioners and of the Dartford Board of Health—Parochial Matters—Shipping News—Religious and Social Meetings—Public Entertainments and Amusements—Original Correspondence—North Kent and Tilbury Railway Time Tables—Tide Tables for various Ports—and a Record of every occurrence of general interest in Gravesend, Dartford, Erith, and their respective vicinities.

Correspondents and Advertisers are respectfully informed that the office of the GRAVESEND FREE PRESS, NORTH KENT JOURNAL, AND COUNTY ADVERTISER is at

4a, WINDMILL STREET,

Where Communications and Advertisements are requested to be sent and the names of new Subscribers entered.

THE

GRAVESEND FREE PRESS,

NORTH KENT JOURNAL,

AND COUNTY ADVERTISER,

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY MORNING.

The "Gravesend Free Press" was established in 1855 by the present proprietor, being the first Cheap Newspaper in Gravesend and Nort Kent after the abolition of the Stamp Duty, and continues to be extensively circulated in Gravesend, Dartford, Erith, Woolwich, Crayford, Farningham, Greenhithe, Northfleet, Southfleet, Maidstone, Rochester, Cliffe, Higham, Cobham, Shorne, Grays, Purfleet, Orsett, Stanford-le-hope, and throughout North Kent and South Essex, and is therefore an excellent medium for ADVERTISEMENTS, the charges for which are on a very moderate scale.

Its Principles are entirely INDEPENDENT.

The "Gravesend Free Press" contains full and correct particulars of the various Public Meetings in Gravesend, Dartford, and Erith—the Quarterly Meetings of the Corporation, Municipal Elections, &c.—the Borough Quarter Sessions—the proceedings before the Borough Justices in Petty Sessions—Police News, &c.—The Meetings of the Gravesend Improvement Commissioners and of the Dartford Board of Health—Parochial Matters—Shipping News—Religious and Social Meetings—Public Entertainments and Amusements—Original Correspondence—North Kent and Tilbury Railway Time Tables—Tide Tables for various Ports—and a Record of every occurrence of general interest in Gravesend, Dartford, Erith, and their respective vicinities.

Correspondents and Advertisers are respectfully informed that the office of the GRAVESEND FREE PRESS, NORTH KENT JOURNAL, AND COUNTY ADVERTISER, is at

THOMAS POTTINGER,

TAILOR & BREECHES MAKER,

No. 9, EASTCHEAP, LONDON,

17, HARMER ST., GRAVESEND,

AND DARTFORD.

T. P. returns his respectful thanks for the various favours he has received during many years; and he takes this opportunity of stating that he does not undertake to manufacture clothes for less money than any other tradesman; but he makes every article of good quality and workmanship—charging the smallest remunerative profit for ready money.

The cheapness of an article of clothing depends, to a great extent, upon its durability; and good articles can always be had at a respectable house quite as reasonable as at a puffing advertising one, and without lowering the moral or physical energies of workmen, by paying them starvation prices.

The goods manufactured at the above house are as low in price as the best articles can be purchased at; the fashion the newest, and the workmen experienced. The steady progressive advancement in his trade is the best proof that this system of conducting it has been appreciated.

TO AGRICULTURISTS & OTHERS.

T. POTTINGER manufactures every description of Clothing adapted for out-door pursuits. Farmers, Cricketers, Yachtsmen, Anglers, &c., supplied with good articles of the best material and soundest make.

—:o:—

THESE PILLS are purely a Vegetable preparation, and may be taken by either sex without fear of any danger. They act upon the bowels mildly yet effectually, and by their fine tonic, aromatic, and aperient properties they remove all oppressive accumulations, regulate the serections of the liver and bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. Unlike many remedies they do not induce liability to take cold or establish the necessity for the habitual use of purgatives, and are thus stongly recommended as
