MESSRS. A. & G. TAYLOR,

In thanking their numerous customers for their support which they have received for the last fifteen years, beg to call special attention to their very easy and universal system, by which their far-famed and highly prized may be easily obtained; and in order to make the Picture more complete and attractive, they now supply it in their new and superior GILT FRAME, which is very Massive and Handsome, and exclusively their own Design and Copyright.

Excelsior Portraits

Messrs. A. & G. TAYLOR claim the honour of having been the first to introduce these BEAUTIFULLY ENLARGED PORTRAITS to the public some sixteen years since, and they are now found not only on the walls of the middle and working classes, but also adorn the drawing-rooms of the rich.

The ordinary price of these Handsome Family Portraits is £2 2s.; but Messrs. A. & G. TAYLOR are now supplying them through their various Agents for £1 10s., the greatest value in Photography ever offered to the public.

They also guarantee them to be equal to the Specimen shown by the Agent; for none but First-class Artists are employed.

As an inducement to join their various Portrait Clubs, Messrs. A. & G. TAYLOR present to every member, free of charge, One Dozen highly-finished Vignettes, value 10s., making the total value received £2 12s.

To Members only for £1 10s.

All applications for Agencies, &c., to be made at the Studio,

INTRODUCTION.

It is no secret that many attempts have been made at providing a Directory of the Three Towns, but not one has been sufficiently successful to warrant further effort in bringing out successive editions, owing probably to an inability to cope with the multitudinous difficulties encountered in preparing a reliable work of the kind for so important a district. Though possessing considerable experience of Directory work, it was with some diffidence, therefore, that we undertook, two years since, to issue a Directory of the Three Towns, with the determination—if adequately supported—of making the book a biennial one.

The work was favourably received. Inseparable from a first attempt, were mistakes not a few; these were pointed out by many correspondents, but the general accuracy was fully recognised, and "Eyre's Directory" has become the book of reference for the district.

In the present edition the work has been thoroughly revised, and information corrected to date. A map of the Three Towns has been added, head-lines will be found at top of columns to facilitate reference, an index of the Streets, Roads, &c., has been made, and there are also some minor improvements all tending to increase the usefulness of the work.

As the alterations made in the names of certain streets and roads at Mannamead and Mutley have been made public since the greater part of the book was in the press, we beg to call attention to the fact that the old names only of the streets and roads in question will be found printed.

We take this opportunity of thanking our correspondents for their suggestions, our subscribers for their support, and advertisers for using our Directory as an advertising medium. Having enlisted ourselves in the service of the Plymouth public, we desire to retain their suffrages from time to time. To this end we wish to call special attention to the following important announcement, to the effect that subscribers to the present edition who favour us by again ordering the book on its re-publication in 1884 will be allowed 1s., if, at the time of receiving the new volume they hand to our agent the present one in a complete condition. This, it will be seen, will practically reduce the price to FOUR SHILLINGS to those who avail themselves of our offer. We make this reduction, believing that by so doing we shall enlarge the number of our subscribers, and these, knowing when to look for succeeding editions, will strongly discourage efforts that may be made at copying either our ideas or our information, since we feel assured that no other authentic Directory of the district could, with any prospect of success, be published, owing to the vast amount of information that has to be obtained.

THE UNITED TELEPHONE COMPANY,

LIMITED,

Begs to draw attention to the rapid and easy means of inter-communication offered by the Telephone.

By means of the Telephone, conversation between places miles apart can be carried on as easily as between two persons in the same room. The saving of time and the advantage of having almost face to face communication by a merchant or manufacturer between his Residence, his Counting-house, his Works, or his Vessels in the Docks; from the office to all parts of a Mine, however remote, in addition to being able to recognise the voice of the speaker, and thus know the employé is in attendance at his work, is immediately apparent to any one who has seen the Telephone in use.

The United Telephone Company, Limited, has run in London alone, within the last two years, upwards of 2,000 wires, over 1,620 of which are connected with the Exchanges, the remainder being Private Lines. The Calls, varying from 10,500 to 12,500 a day, prove how much the Exchange system is appreciated by its Subscribers, and consequently the great advantages to be gained by joining the system.

The Instruments used by this Company are now in general use in all the Exchanges in America; they are also used by upwards of four thousand firms in London, Liverpool and Manchester; also in many of the important towns of the United Kingdom, and they have given great satisfaction, from the distinct manner in which the words of the speaker are heard, and his voice recognised.

Terms and full particulars will be furnished on application to the Local Superintendent of the Company, BANK STREET CHAMBERS, PLYMOUTH, where intending Subscribers can see the Telephone at work, and have the system explained to them.

Total of the Three Towns (exclusive of Army and Navy) 132,479.

PLYMOUTH, DEVONPORT, AND STONEHOUSE, locally spoken of as the "Three Towns," are so closely connected that they appear to form one large one, and they have unitedly attained to such importance, that they have earned for themselves the title of "Metropolis of the West." Plymouth and Devonport are both parliamentary and municipal boroughs, market towns, and seaports, in the hundred of Roborough, deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes, diocese of Exeter, and county of Devon. They are also both military stations, while the latter is a great naval arsenal and government dockyard as well. Stonehouse, or East Stonehouse, is a part of the parliamentary borough of Devonport, but has its own magistrates, local board, police (county), and poor law guardians, and is the head of a separate county court district. Geographically these towns are situated at the south western corner of Devonshire, on the shore of a capacious bay, where the rivers Plym and Tamar unite and flow into the sea. Plymouth is 44 miles from Exeter, and 216 from London by road, but by railway these cities are distant 53 and 265 miles respectively. It is connected by railway with London by the Great Western, and the London and South Western companies. Westward the former line is continued into Cornwall, and a line to the north, via Tavistock and Lidford, joins the North Devon line at Crediton, thus making Plymouth the centre of a complete railway system.

PLYMOUTH.

Plymouth is the oldest of the "Three Towns," and by far the most important, not only for its manufactures and commerce, but for the distinguished position it has so long held as one of the great naval stations of the kingdom, being but the second in importance.

The port of Plymouth extends to all the rivers, harbours, and creeks between Looe on the west and the river Yealm on the east, but its pilotage district reaches eastward as far as Start point; no master of a vessel, however, is compelled to take a pilot, except going into or coming out of the ports within a line drawn from the Rame Head to the Mewstone.

A large trade is carried on with America, the West Indies, Africa, the Mediterranean, the Baltic, &c., as well as an extensive home coasting trade. The chief exports are copper and lead ores, manganese, granite, limestone, clay, fish, starch, &c.; the imports consisting of corn, fruit, wine, timber, &c. There are large bonded warehouses for foreign produce of all kinds. Steamers ply once or twice a week to London, Portsmouth, Southampton, Kingsbridge, Torquay, Guernsey, Jersey, Cork, Dublin, Liverpool, Glasgow, &c. The fishing trade is very large, and employs a great number of vessels. The mail steamers for Australia, the Cape of Good Hope, and other parts of the world, call here to embark or land both passengers and mails.

It is difficult to trace the early history of Plymouth, but evidence exists of its having been inhabited by the Celts, who would not be slow to see the advantages its position would offer. To a people whose civilization scarcely extended beyond the rearing of cattle, the two rivers, affording a good supply of fish, and its fertile grazing land with its wooded background, must have seemed especially desirable. Celtic coins, and various other relics of this period, have from time to time been found in the neighbourhood. Later on, the district was inhabited by the Silures and the Belgæ. The Romans, who came next, do not appear to have made it a military station, though it is evident from the extensive and interesting Roman remains that have been discovered that they had an important settlement here. Very little is known of it during the Saxon period, but it seems to have been of sufficient note to have had its church and its castle. By the Saxons it was called Tamarweorth, from its position on the Tamar; the Normans gave it the name of Sutton, or South Town, and in the reign of Henry VI. it obtained its present appellation. Under the Normans the village belonged to the priory of Plympton St. Mary, one of whose priors must have been a superior man to many of his compeers, as he did much to advance the prosperity of the place and the interests of the villagers. He established markets, granted various privileges to the inhabitants, and in many ways encouraged the trade and commerce of the little community. The first members were returned to Parliament in 1292, but they seem soon after, from some cause, to have lost the privilege for a time, for from Edward II. to Henry VI. the town was unrepresented. As early as 1287 the port appears to have been deemed of great naval importance, since a fleet of 325 vessels is then said to have anchored here. Edward, the Black Prince, landed here on his way from France, after the battle of Crecy, when he was entertained in a style befitting his rank by the prior of Plympton, and in 1355 he sailed from Plymouth to gain fresh, but questionable, honours at Poictiers. Once more this heroic and popular prince, accompanied by his princess, Joanna the Fair, made this his landing place, but the long pining sickness of which he died had already commenced, and rest was the entertainment he now sought. During the warlike period of the reign of Edward III., the town naturally suffered from the incursions of the French, and the king gave the order for it to be fortified; the work, however, appears to have progressed but slowly, for Henry IV. empowered the inhabitants to build walls with towers and fortresses; and in 1512 an Act of Parliament was granted for the same purpose. In 1390 it was made a legal port for pilgrims desiring to visit the continental shrines; this of course brought from time to time a great influx of temporary residents, which conduced considerably to its prosperity. In 1400 the French again effected a landing and burnt a great part of the town; this was repeated about three years afterwards, when no less than 600 houses were destroyed. The government of the priors of Plympton becoming very distasteful to the towns-people, in 1412 they petitioned the king to allow Plymouth, which included some of the adjacent hamlets, to be governed by a mayor and commonalty. After a delay of 30 years, which was mainly owing to the opposition of the Plympton prior and his subordinates, the petitioners gained their point, and in 1439 the town was incorporated. After the incorporation, the honour of entertaining its royal visitors appears to have been transferred from the prior to the mayor, one of whose most interesting guests was Catherine of Arragon, when she came to be Prince Arthur's bride, (subsequently, the ill-fated consort of Henry VIII.) The rights belonging to the priory of Plympton were, on the dissolution of the monasteries, given to the mayor and commonalty, and in 1553 Queen Mary granted a new charter to the town. Sir Francis Drake sailed from Plymouth on his famous expeditions; he returned to this port in 1580, after his voyage round the world, laden with rich spoils. The following year he was elected mayor, and made his term of office memorable by providing the town with its splendid water supply.

In 1588, when England was threatened with a Spanish invasion, the English fleet, consisting of about 120 vessels, assembled at Plymouth, under the command of Lord Howard of Effingham, Sir Francis Drake, and other notable seamen of that heroic age. The Spanish fleet consisted of 130 ships, manned by the noblest troops of Spain, and Philip fancied his triumph was secured. On the 19th of July the formidable "invincible" Armada came in sight of Plymouth, but nothing but misfortune awaited it, both from battle and from storms. Our gallant naval officers and men proved equal to the emergency, and Providence mercifully interposed to save our island from the cruel and persecuting Philip, and the intolerable yoke of the Papacy.

Sir John Hawkins and Sir Walter Raleigh both figure in the annals of the town. Sir Walter sailed from Plymouth for Virginia in 1583, and again when he started on his last and fatal expedition to Guiana in 1617. On his return to this port he was arrested by the Vice Admiral of Devon, and sent on to London, and Sir Walter Raleigh "the soldier, the sailor, the scholar, the philosopher, the poet, the orator, the historian," was beheaded on the 29th of October 1618. In 1620 the Pilgrim Fathers sailed from Plymouth, leaving all that makes life pleasant, to seek on a foreign and inhospitable shore, that liberty to worship God which was denied them at home.

Charles I. visited Plymouth with his Queen in 1625, to give the command of his fleet to Viscount Wimbledon previously to its departure for Cadiz. The district was soon after this ravaged by the plague, when 2000 of the inhabitants fell victims to the terrible disease; about fifty years before it had suffered much from the same calamity, but the death returns were somewhat lower.

All through the civil wars Plymouth remained true to the Parliament; repeated but fruitless attempts were made by the Royalists to take the town, Charles himself appeared in person and summoned the garrison to surrender, but a solemn vow was taken to maintain the seige at all hazards; the summons of the King was defiantly refused, and the town held for the Parliament.

Many illustrious names might yet be mentioned in connection with this famous port; we must not omit that of Captain Cook who sailed from Plymouth on every occasion of his leaving Englund. In 1776 he started on his last voyage, so fraught with interest to others, so fatally perilous to himself. Many Royal personages have at various times visited the town and received a loyal welcome; but of all arrivals none perhaps ever created such intense excitement as that of Napoleon Bonaparte, who, in 1815, was brought a prisoner to Plymouth in the Bellerophon, which lay in the Sound for eight days. He who "had made the world to tremble" was a helpless captive in the hands of his enemies, and multitudes flocked to the shore to obtain a glimpse of the fallen Emperor. This and many other interesting historical events here briefly referred to are depicted with telling effect in the admirable series of coloured windows in the new Guildhall. Amongst other visits of notable persons in recent years may be mentioned that of the late General Garibaldi, in 1864, and of the late Emperor Napoleon III., in 1871. Her Majesty Queen Victoria and the late Prince Consort more than once honoured the town with a visit, and in 1865 the Prince and Princess of Wales did the same, upon the occasion of the Annual Meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh have repeatedly visited the place in the performance of public duties, as well as for yachting and pleasure trips.

The charter of incorporation has at various times been renewed; under the municipal act of 1835 it was re-modelled, and the corporation now consists of a mayor, twelve aldermen, and thirty-six councillors, besides various officers.

SUTTON POOL HARBOUR, in the south eastern part of Plymouth, is nearly surrounded by the town. The entrance from Cattewater is about 90 feet in width, between two large piers near the Barbican, for the erection of which Parliamentary grants were made in 1791 and 1799. This roomy harbour belongs to the Duchy of Cornwall, but is held on lease by the Sutton Harbour Improvement Co., who have expended large sums in cleansing and deepening it, and in erecting sea-walls, quays, etc. The railway from Dartmoor granite works terminates here, and it has communication with both the Great Western and South Western Railways. The Goods Station (Friary) of the London and South Western Railway is adjacent, and rails of both guages are laid along the quays.

CATTEWATER HARBOUR adjoining Sutton Pool, on the south east side of Plymouth, is the grand outlet through which the river Plym falls into the Sound, between the Citadel and Mount Batten. It is capable of receiving a thousand sail of merchant ships, but though protected by high hills ships have sometimes been wrecked in it, as was the case in the tremendous gales of 1824 and 1828 when twenty vessels were stranded on its rocky shores in the former, and 45 in the latter year. Above Cattewater the estuary of the Plym becomes a lake-like expanse, called the Laira, and skirted by the groves of Saltram—the seat of the Earl of Morley, one of whose predecessors erected at his own expense the Laira bridge, an elegant structure consisting of five elliptical arches of cast iron, springing from abutments and piers of stone. The first stone was laid in 1824, and the bridge was finished in 1827. The centre arch is 100 feet span, and rises 14½ feet above high water mark, and the other arches are two of them 95 and two 81 feet each in span. The roadway is 24 feet wide within the railings and 500 feet in length. This harbour is now further protected by a massive breakwater, a triumph of engineering skill, lately erected by the Cattewater Harbour Commissioners; a revolving light is placed at the extremity of this structure.

The Plymouth and Dartmoor Railway Company have projected a branch line from their terminus at Plymouth, (Friary station), to cross the Laira just above the bridge, extending to the Head of Pomphlet Lake, proceeding to Oreston, and terminating at the deep water jetty at Turnchapel dockyard, at the south side of the Cattewater. The bill for this line passed into law in Session 1882. It is believed that this line will eventually be continued through the rich agricultural South Hams district, and will connect Kingsbridge and Modbury with Plymouth.

MILLBAY, between Plymouth and Devonport, contains a pier, 500 feet in length, extending from the south eastern side of the bay, near the entrance, its depth alongside exceeding 20 feet. This pier was constructed in 1840, and is now the property of the Great Western Docks Company, by whom the whole of the bay was converted into extensive docks, under the powers of an Act of Parliament obtained in 1846. The Floating Basin, entered by gates 80 feet wide, covers 13 acres and has an ample depth of water for the largest vessels. A large graving dock, having an entrance 80 feet wide, is 367 feet long, 92 feet in width of chamber, and at high spring tides has a depth of water on the blocks of 22 feet. The open Dock comprises an area of some 35 acres, and has a Floating Pier alongside of which vessels of the heaviest draught can lie at all states of the tides. A jetty situated here has commodious transit sheds thereon. At the eastern side of the open dock, where are several convenient landing places for boats and other small craft, are the waiting rooms, refreshment rooms, baggage warehouses, etc., for the passengers who land here from the West Indies, Cape of Good Hope, etc. Commodious warehouses are erected on the wharfs. In 1874 the docks were purchased by the Great Western, the Bristol and Exeter, and the South Devon Railway Companies; the last two companies have been merged into the former, who have thus become sole owners. The company has lately constructed an additional deep water pier and breakwater at the western side of the open dock. The railway, both broad and narrow guage, is carried all round the wharfs, so that passengers, mails, etc. can be embarked and disembarked therefrom with the greatest expedition. A fixed red light marks the western extremity of the pier at the entrance of the bay, and a green light is shown on the pontoon or floating pier. The works were carried out according to the designs of the eminent engineer, Sir I. K. Brunel, and were opened for traffic in 1857 : upwards of 2,000 vsssels now enter the docks every year, and the trade is annually increasing.

THE CITADEL, a bastion fort, formerly of considerable importance, may be now looked upon rather as a fine example of an obsolete style of fortification. It is built chiefly of limestone and granite, and consists of three regular and two irregular bastions, the curtains of the former being strengthened by ravelins and horn-works. It is situated on the South Headland, commanding the Sound and the entrance to Cattewater on the south, with Sutton Pool and the entrance thereto on the east. A fort of some kind appears to have existed here from an early period but the present substantial structure owes its origin to a command of Charles II., and dates from 1670. Several alterations and improvements have been effected from time to time, but it is now completely superseded by the splendid system of detached forts, on the modern principle, surrounding the Three Towns, and rendering Plymouth of first-rate importance in a military sense.

Efforts are being made to get the Citadel removed, and its site added to the Hoe Park.

THE BREAKWATER, nearly three miles from Plymouth, is one of the most stupendous engineering works ever attempted, and has more than repaid the time, patience, and funds expended in its construction. It originated in a suggestion of Earl St. Vincent, who saw the necessity of protecting the entrance of the Sound from the violence of the storms so frequently occuring on this coast, and recommended that it should be made an harbour of safety. The entrance being three miles wide, it was at once seen that the work would tax both the energies and resources of those to whom it might be entrusted, and the best available engineering talent was employed to survey the spot. The plans of Messrs. Rennie and Whidby were those selected by the Admiralty, and in 1812 the work was commenced ; immense blocks of granite and quantities of rubble masonry were sunk on a line of shoals in the channel, and by 1817 it had attained to a height of 20 feet above low-water mark, the surface of the sides being at an angle of 1 foot in 3, when in a violent gale large quantities were displaced and the slope was altered to 1 foot in 5. Further progress was made at the original slope until 1824, when the sea again modified the plan, and altered the angle to 1 in 5. Seeing the inutility of proceeding according to the original design, the work was completed according to the angle found to be the natural one, and the top surface was reduced. Its completed dimensions are 300 to 400 feet broad at the bottom, 40 to 80 feet deep, and 45 feet wide at the top, which rises 2 feet above high-water mark. It is situated in the centre of the entrance to the Sound, and consists of one straight portion 3,000 feet in length, from each end of which an arm branches off towards the shore at an angle of 120 degrees, each arm being 1050 feet in length, and presenting three surfaces to the violence of the sea. Between each end and the shore is a passage for ships; that on the east being one mile in width, and the west one being about a mile-and a-half. At the west end is a lighthouse, 68 feet in height, showing a light visible for a distance of 8 miles; for misty weather there is a large fog-bell. The eastern end is furnished with a beacon; the original intention of erecting a lighthouse there also having been relinquished. This useful work has given refuge to as many as 200 vessels at one time during storms, besides being serviceable in protecting the water of the Sound. It has been calculated that upwards of 4,000,000 tons of rough stone were used in its construction, in addition to the 2,500,000 tons of granite required for the paving and facings, and the cost has been estimated at from £1,500,000 to £2,000,000.

THE HOE, the promenade of Plymouth, is a magnificent elevated piece of ground overlooking the Sound. This delightful place is about 18 acres in extent, the centre a broad gravel walk, and the rest covered with fine smooth grass giving it the appearance of a vast lawn. A carriage drive on one side passes round the cliff to Millbay, while paths wind in every direction leading to cosy little alcoves and curious seats cut in the solid rock. It is here that Sir Francis Drake is reported to have been playing at bowls with Howard when the news of the arrival in the Channel, of the Spanish Armada, was brought to him, and here also it was that the good people of Plymouth assembled to cheer the fleet, under Lord Howard of Effingham, Drake, Raleigh, Hawkins, Frobisher, and other Devonshire celebrities, as it sailed out of the harbour in pursuit of the presumptuous Spaniards, who had come provided with chains and fetters to bind their English prisoners; and it is said that the Duke of Medina had actually selected the beautiful Mount Edgcumbe as his own residence, when he should have added England to his Spanish dominions. The Hoe has been frequently the arena of military displays, and great numbers take advantage of its position to witness the annual regatta and swimming contests that take place in the Sound.

An iron pier has been partially constructed under the Hoe; in the opinion of some however, it is a disfigurement rather than otherwise, and it is thought that it will somewhat interfere with the popularity of the Hoe as a promenade.

The western end of the Hoe hill has unfortunately been allowed, within the last hundred years, to be cut away for quarry purposes, but considerable improvment are in progress there, quite a suburb of the town now coming into existence in the old quarry, fronted by graceful solid stone piers. These piers form one of the principal starting places for the excursion steamers visiting Mount Edgcumbe, the Breakwater, Saltash, Calstock, the river Tamar, and other popular places of resort.

A carriage road is projected that will surround the base of Citadel Hill. When this is completed a continuous drive facing the sea, the whole length of the Hoe, and the front of the Citadel, will have been attained, thus uniting, by an almost level road, Sutton Pool, and the Great Western Docks.

The Hoe is shortly to be still further embellished by the erection of a memorial to the illustrious Devonshire hero, Sir Francis Drake. The original idea was that the arrangements should be carried out locally, but it being thought by some that it was a matter in which the whole country was interested, the Lord Mayor of London lent it his support, and at a meeting held at the Mansion House in July, 1882, it was decided to make the memorial worthy of the man and the country which he so ably served.

At the eastern end of the Hoe is an obelisk erected by the Trinity House as a guide for shipping entering the Cattewater. It has, however, been proposed to remove this obelisk and to re-build Smeaton's lighthouse on the site, a new tower at Eddystone having recently been erected to supersede the older structure.

EDDYSTONE LIGHTHOUSE, referred to above, is one of the most perfect of its kind in existence. It is built somewhat on the plan of its predecessor, a short distance from it, and, although fourteen miles from Plymouth, may generally be seen from the Hoe.

A lighthouse is always an interesting object, but the Eddystone, from its position and antecedents, is particularly so, deserving a far larger space than we can here allot to it. The famous rocks, which take their name from the eddies or whirls produced by the water striking against them, are about nine miles from the nearest point of land, extending with a long gradual slope towards the sea, and exposed to the heavy swell of the Atlantic, whose waves, even in calm weather, dash and break against them in great fury; and they are, at high tide, completely submerged throughout the whole range. Upon this dangerous spot the Trinity Board, in 1796, decided to erect a beacon, but Mr. Winstanley, a private gentleman of a very ingenious turn of mind, (that had manifested itself in the construction of a garden summer-house which, upon being entered by a visitor, would transport itself to an adjoining canal) proposed instead, to erect a lighthouse; the offer was accepted, and, notwithstanding the immense difficulty of the undertaking, four years from that time its welcome light was streaming across the breakers, to the joy of many a sailor's heart. But Mr Winstanley, although ingenious and energetic, did not possess sufficient engineering ability to cope with the elements, and the great storm of November 26th, 1703, swept away the entire edifice with every person in it, including the unfortunate architect, who was there at the time superintending some repairs, and who was himself so confident of the strength of his building that he at one time expressed a wish "to be there during the greatest storm that ever blew on the face of the earth, that he might see what effect it would have upon the structure."

In 1706 an Act of Parliament was granted for a new lighthouse, and Mr Rudyerd undertook its erection, which was accomplished in about three years. This structure was composed chiefly of oak timber and stone. While it was in course of erection all the workmen were taken prisoners by a French privateer, but Louis XIV, appreciating the importance of their work, had the magnanimity to set them at liberty. Rudyerd's lighthouse lasted 46 years, and then, like its predecessor, came to a tragical end. In 1755, the lantern taking fire, it burnt gradually down till the whole edifice was completely destroyed. On a boat arriving at the scene of the disaster the keepers (three in number) where found in a cavity of the rock, almost stupified with terror, and probably suffocation. One old man, 94 years of age, complained of great pain, averring that he had swallowed some of the molten lead while looking up at the burning lantern. After his death, which took place 12 days afterwards, a piece of lead, weighing over 7 ounces, was found in his stomach.

The structure recently replaced was the work of the celebrated engineer John Smeaton, of whom it has been said that he never undertook any thing that he did not complete to the satisfaction of those who employed him. Although at that time not a professed engineer, but a mathematical instrument maker, he had given evidence of great ability, and Smeaton's lighthouse amply justified the confidence that its architect had inspired. It was a stone structure, broad at the base, and rose with a line curving gradually inwards, presenting a slope on which the sea could act with the least resistance. Mr Smeaton himself said that the stem of an oak had suggested to him the idea which he so successfully carried out. Though there were not wanting many who predicted speedy destruction to a lighthouse built of such rigid material, it stood for 122 years, the most terrific storms having only the effect of proving its stability. The whole of the structure reached to a height of 94 feet, and bore upon the top the appropriate inscription, "except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it."—Psalm cxvii.

The present lighthouse was commenced in 1879, the erection being undertaken by the Trinity Board. The ceremony of laying the foundation stone took place on the 19th of August of that year, by the Duke of Edinburgh, the master of the Trinity House Corporation, and the Prince of Wales, in the presence of a large number of spectators. It was completed in March, 1882, and was formally opened by the Duke of Edinburgh, on the 18th of May of the same year. The dimensions of the new tower far exceed those of its predecessor, being from the rock to the summit of the cornice, 138 feet. The tower contains nine apartments, 10 feet in height, in addition to the lantern. The quantity of granite used in the construction was about 69,100 cubic feet. Its cost is estimated at £78,000. The light is visible at a distance of about 17½ nautical miles. A full description of the lighthouse would be interesting, but space forbids.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, in the Gothic style of architecture, presents an imposing appearance; it is situated in the centre of the town, at the junction of six streets, the most important of these being Bedford Street and Whimple Street. It is the largest church in Plymouth, having accommodation for 2000 persons, and consists of chancel, nave, and aisles, together with a high tower, which latter, said to have been built in 1440 by a merchant named Yogge, is embattled, surmounted by pinnacles, and contains a peal of eight bells, as well as a clock with four dials, and chimes. There are several monuments and stained glass windows, and the pulpit, constructed of lime stone on a granite base, is exceedingly handsome. Mr. Hine the architect of the Guildhall, furnished the designs, which were prepared according to the style prevailing throughout the church. The church has recently been completely restored (1874-75), under the direction of the late Sir Gilbert Scott, at a cost of over £7000. Several new windows have also been added, and the organ, which is very old, has been entirely renewed. The organist is partly supported by the interest upon £400 left for the purpose by Samuel Aldis in 1741.

The monuments are numerous, and include among them tablets to Captain Drake, a descendant of the great Sir Francis; Sir John Skelton, who died in 1672; the painters Pearse, Prout, Northcote, natives of Plymouth; and many others; the principal attraction is however a white marble tablet to Charles Mathews, the comedian, who died at Plymouth in 1835. The living of St. Andrew's is a vicarage in the gift of the Church Patronage Society. The value is £830.

CHARLES' CHURCH is a fine specimen of Gothic architecture, consisting of chancel, nave, and aisles, and a tower at the west end surmounted by a lofty spire. The peal of six bells, together with the clock and chimes, were presented in the years 1709 and 1719 respectively, by Joseph Jory. This edifice is worthy of notice on account of its history. Owing to the representations of the Corporation, an Act was obtained in 1640 dividing the parish of St. Andrew's into two parts, and the new church was to be called Charles's Church: before the building could be completed the work was suspended owing to the siege, but was resumed in 1645, and completed in 1657 with the exception of the tower, which remained in an unfinished state until 1707, while the stone spire was not erected until 1766, when it replaced a wooden structure. The church has been several times enlarged and repaired, and in 1864 was thoroughly renovated when several alterations were also effected. There are many fine stained glass windows, and an organ by Bevington, as well as a number of monuments and tablets to local celebrities, including one to Dr. Robert Hawker, the commentator and divine ,who was six years curate and forty three years vicar of the parish. Another is to his successor Dr. Carne, and his wife, who died of the cholera within four days of each other in 1832. This living is a vicarage, also in the gift of the Church Patronage Society.

Plymouth possesses two HIGH SCHOOLS, one at North Hill for girls, the other at Hyde Park for boys. They have been recently erected by a company, of which the Bishop of Exeter (Dr. Temple) is chairman. The buildings are of a good style of architecture, and add considerably to the architectural features of the district.

There are several other excellent schools in Plymouth, some of which are endowed, while others are supported by the various religious denominations to which they are attached.

THE WESTERN COLLEGE for training Independent Ministers is situated at Mannamead. It was founded in 1752 and removed to Plymouth in 1844. The present buildings which cost upwards of £5,000, were completed in 1861.

THE NEW GUILDHALL AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS at Plymouth are bounded on three sides by Catherine, Westwell, and Basket streets. It is one of the most complete buildings of its kind to be found in the country, and is also a very conspicuous and ornamental object. The foundation-stone was laid in 1870 by the then mayor, W. Luscombe, Esq., and it was formally opened by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in 1874, in the mayoralty of Alfred Rooker, Esq., whose statue adorns one of the enclosures near. The architects, whose designs were selected after competition, were Messrs. Norman and Hine, who adopted the Gothic style of the early French character. The buildings consist of a Great Hall 146 feet long and 58 feet wide capable of holding 2,600 persons, containing an orchestra, and at one end, a gallery capable of holding 250 persons; several small anterooms are attached, and there are no less than seven doors to the hall, thereby ensuring perfect facility of ingress and egress. All the principal concerts take place in this hall, in which a fine organ has been recently erected, and a promenade concert is given every Saturday at which one or more of the military bands always play. There are also Police Courts, Magistrates' rooms, and all the necessary offices, whilst in the rear are a Police Station and drill yard. The municipal portions of the buildings occupy the northern side of the public place leading from Westwell Street to Catherine Street, and comprise everything necessary for the proper carrying out of all the municipal business, being at the same time beautifully fitted and furnished according to the architects' design. At the south west corner of the buildings is a magnificent tower, nearly 200 feet high, inside which a circular stone staircase reaches to the summit, whence may be obtained a fine bird's eye view of the "three towns," as well as a most extended view of the surrounding country, the Sound, and the sea, including Eddystone Lighthouse.

THE MARKET, situated in the centre of Plymouth, occupies about three acres of ground, entered from Cornwall, Drake, and East streets. It comprises covered markets for vegetables, fish, butter, poultry, meat and general merchandise, as also a large open space usually occupied by dealers in miscellaneous goods. The market days are Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, the corn market being held on the two first mentioned days, in the building provided for the purpose near the Cornwall street entrance. The cattle market is also held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, in a large enclosed piece of ground on the Tavistock road. The market tolls are let by the corporation, who derive a large income therefrom. The wholesale fish market—the Plymouth Billingsgate—is situated on the Barbican, Southside quay, on the margin of Sutton Pool.

An elaborate scheme for re-building the Market and for erecting a handsome new street through the centre, has recently been approved by the Corporation. The work will be carried out in sections.

The privilege of holding markets here, dates from 1253.

The POST OFFICE in Whimple Street was erected in 1847-8, at a cost of £3,000, from the designs of Mr. Oswald Arthur. It, like many other public establishments is now found too circumscribed for the growing requirements of the town, and it has been determined to erect a new Post Office in Westwell street, on a portion of the site now occupied by the St. Andrew's Hall.

THE EXCHANGE is a spacious building in Woolster-street, and the CUSTOM HOUSE is a large and handsome structure on the Parade.

THE PUBLIC CLOCK, which forms such a conspicuous ornament to the town, in the great throughfare leading from the railway station, was presented by W. Derry, Esq., a late Mayor of Plymouth.

It is the property of the Corporation, being part of a block of buildings originally erected by them in 1813, but recently re-erected, having been destroyed by fire in 1878.

THE ASSEMBLY ROOMS is another part of the same block of buildings, the Royal Hotel being the third portion. It is entered by the same portico as the theatre. The Ball Room is a handsomely decorated saloon 76 feet by 40 feet, and there are smaller rooms adjoining, available for various purposes.

THE ATHENÆUM is a neat classic building situated in the street bearing its name, near the theatre. It was erected in 1819 for the use of the "Plymouth Institution," with which the "Devon and Cornwall Natural History Society" has since been incorporated. The building contains a lecture hall, library, museum and laboratory, the former being adorned with statuary casts, as well as portraits and busts of national and local celebrities, some of which were presented by George IV. The museum contains excellent collections illustrative of geology, mineralogy and botany, besides several curiosities and antiquities.

Cotton, of Ivybridge; it includes several valuable paintings by the great continental masters, some portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds, as also a great number of rare MSS. and prints. A new frontage and extra rooms were added in 1852 for the reception of the valuable collection. The library of the Plymouth Law Society, including some interesting MSS., is also located in this building, where likewise is a news-room, well supplied with newspapers and current periodical literature.

THE PLYMOUTH FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY is situate in Whimple-street

in the old Guildhall Buildings, which have been granted for that purpose by the corporation. The "Free Libraries and Museums Acts," were adopted in 1871, and the library was opened in 1876. At present it contains lending and reference libraries on different floors, a general news room, a magazine-room, a review-room, with special department for ladies, a Local (Devon and Cornwall) Library, besides a special room in which the publications of the Patent-office are kept for reference. The library contains about 16,000 volumes (exclusive of the patents), and the issues are at the rate of 200,000 per year, It is a well managed, popular and successful institution.

THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE, at the corner of Princess-square and Westwell-street, contains everything calculated to further the objects of the society : the building consists of a fine, well arranged, lecture hall capable of seating 1,000 persons, together with a library and class and committee rooms.

THE CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS, are the Female Orphan Asylum in Lockyer-street ; the South Devon and East Cornwall Hospital in Princess-square, containing accommodation for 120 patients ; the Royal Eye Infirmary, in Millbay road, supported by voluntary contributions ; the Public Dispensary, in Catherine street, containing the library of the Plymouth Medical Society ; and the South Devon and Cornwall Institution for the instruction and employment of the blind, situated in a handsome building recently erected at Northhill, and also dependent on voluntary contributions. A new General Hospital is in course of erection on ground opposite Woodland terrace, at the north-east end of the town ; This building when completed will far exceed in style and accommodation the one at present in use.

THE NEW BOROUGH PRISONS are situated close to the Workhouse ; they were erected in 1849 at a cost of £12,500. There are cells for 60 prisoners, apartments for the various officers, and everything necessary in an establishment of this kind.

THE RACE COURSE is on Chelson Meadow, close to Laira Lake, and adjoining the seat of Earl Morley, to whom the ground belongs ; it is about a mile-and-a-half from Plymouth.

DEVONPORT.

At the time Plymouth dock was established by William III. the land now occupied by Devonport was an uncultivated waste in Stoke Damerel parish without a single inhabitant, but soon the shipbuilding carried on in the yard necessitated accommodation for the employés, the ultimate result being the now busy, but at the same time fashionable, town of Devonport. It retained its original name of Plymouth Dock till 1824, when it was, by Royal Charter, changed to the name it now bears. Devonport, Stoke, and East Stonehouse, with the outlying districts of Morice Town and Ford, unitedly form a Parliamentary borough, which has returned two members to the House of Commons since 1837.

It was incorporated as a municipal borough in 1837, and divided into six wards; it is governed by a mayor, twelve aldermen, and thirty-six councillors.

THE HAMOAZE, on the western side of Devonport, is the estuary of the river Tamar, and the most important of the harbours near the three towns. The entrance, at the western extremity of the Sound, is only 400 yards wide, and consequently easily defended. It is remarkably well sheltered, and sufficiently capacious to anchor safely the entire British Navy. An attacking force before reaching the Hamoaze would have to pass all the batteries in and around the Sound.

DEVONPORT DOCKYARD is one of the finest naval arsenals in the world, and from the great importance of the work carried on within, its immense size, and wonderful mechanical appliances, is invested with especial interest. The Plymouth Dockyard was established in 1691, and till recently was known by this name; but in 1843, upon the occasion of a visit from the Queen and Prince Albert, it was by Her Majesty's command altered to the Royal Devonport Dockyard

It is separated from the town by a high wall, and is entered from Fore street; it covers an area of about 70 acres. Facing the Hamoaze is a semi-circular wharf wall of 1,160 yards in length. Nearly 4,000 men are employed, besides apprentices, in the various branches of the trade required in the work of shipbuilding. Beyond the chapel, the guard house, and the residences of some of the staff, there are what appear almost interminable flights of stone steps leading down to the yard itself; here are to be found the engine-house, saw-mills, and a smithery, with one of Nasmyth's tremendous steam hammers. The carpenters' and joiners' workshops, etc., form two ranges of buildings near the north docks, one of them being surmounted by a clock with four dials; besides these, there are the sail-loft, and rigging-house, the store-house, and anchor wharf, with anchors weighing five tons each; there also is the blacksmith's shop, where the largest cables are made, and close by are the slips in which some of our noblest men-of-war have been built. There are also the mast-house, and rope-houses, the latter being 1,200 feet in length. The beautiful temple on the summit of King's Hill is generally used as a resting place by the visitors to the yard. It was erected in 1822, to commemorate the visit of George III. and his appreciation of the ivy-covered rock and the charming view it commands.

KEYHAM FACTORY, situate at Morice Town, a suburb of Devonport, is one of the largest and most important Government Establishments in this district. It is really an extension of the Dockyard, and as such is well worth a visit. The yard occupies about 75 acres of ground and comprises three large docks, capable of accommodating the largest vessels in the English Navy. The engineering works for making boilers and thoroughly fitting up Her Majesty's ships, are very extensive. About 3,000 men are employed in this establishment. Two striking features are the immense chimnies or smoke-stacks, each of which is 180 feet high, into which by a system of underground flues, the smoke from all the furnaces is carried. The entrance gateway facing Albert road has a most imposing appearance.

ENGINEERS COLLEGE. Prominent among recent additions to the public buildings in the proximity of Keyham yard is the new College for Engineer Students. It is a large and handsome edifice, situated at the northern end of the yard, adjoining the officers' quarters, and looking down over the engine and boiler shops from the rocky height adjoining the Saltash road, towards which the principal front faces, with a length of 200 feet. The general character of the external elevation is elaborate and ornate, the stone used being principally local limestone, with Portland stone dressings. The internal arrangements are admirable, and give accommodation for over 200 students.

NAVAL BARRACKS. About half-a-mile beyond the Engineer's College, is in course of erection, the new Naval Barracks, which when completed, will be one of the largest buildings in the neighbourhood, and accommodate several thousand sailors, at present lodged in harbour ships. The main block of buildings will have the immense frontage of 1,400 feet, with a breadth averaging 65 feet, and a smaller wing with the same breadth, will be 600 feet in length.

THE PARISH CHURCH is the old church of Stoke Damerel, situated at lower Stoke, near the Military Hospital. It consists of an ancient nave with two aisles of subsequent date, and a new chancel was erected a few years ago. The living is a rectory of the yearly value of £645, with 25 acres of glebe, and is in the patronage of the trustees of the Lord of the manor.

ST. AUBYN'S CHAPEL, in Chapel-street, is a spacious and handsome building, dating from 1771; it consists of three aisles, and an elegant portico. The living is a perpetual curacy of the value of £200 per annum, and is in the gift of the rector of Stoke Damerel.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH, in George street, was built in 1852; it is in the decorated Gothic style, and the interior decorations are most elaborate. All the seats are free, and will accommodate between 700 and 800 persons. The living is a vicarage, of the annual value of £160, and is in the gift of the Crown and the Bishop of Exeter, alternately.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, in James street, is also in the decorated Gothic style, with a tower and spire 150 feet in height. The chancel is paved with Minton's tiles, and some of the windows are filled with beautifully stained glass. The cost of erection was £6,000, partly paid by public subscriptions. Under the church are commodious school-rooms, large enough to hold upwards of 300 children. The living is a vicarage, valued at £300 per annum, in the patronage of the Crown and the Bishop of Exeter, alternately.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, in Duke street, is a large building, having accommodation for 1600 persons. It was erected in 1779 at a cost of £8,000, and consists of nave and aisles, the roof having a span of seventy feet. The living is a perpetual curacy in the gift of the rector of Stoke Damerel, and of the annual value of £250.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, in Morice square, is in the Middle Pointed style; it was erected in 1849-50, by public subscription, and all the seats (740) are free. The living is a vicarage valued at £265, and is in the gift of the Crown and the Bishop of Exeter, alternately.

THE CHURCH OF ST. JAMES THE GREAT, Morice Town, is situated at the end of Albert Road. It was erected in 1849-50, at a cost of £6,000, £4,000 of which was contributed by the Lords of the Admiralty in consideration of a sufficient number of sittings being set apart for the use of the Government employés. The Crown and the Bishop of Exeter are the patrons, alternately, of the perpetual curacy, which is valued at £300 per annum.

ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH, at Albert Road where Stoke and Morice Town join, is a handsome Gothic edifice, erected in 1845, at a cost of £4,000. There are 1,200 sittings and the perpetual curacy, of the annual value of £300, is in the gift of the rector of Stoke.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH, Ford, is a new building rapidily approaching completion, at an estimated cost of £5,000. The foundation stone was laid by the Bishop of Exeter in 1874.

THE WYCLIFFE INDEPENDENT CHAPEL, Albert road, Morice Town, erected in 1855-6, at a cost of £2,000 is in the Gothic style. The foundation stone was laid in May, 1855, and the building opened for worship in June, 1856.

HOPE CHAPEL, a Baptist place of worship, adjoins the Temperance Hall.

MOUNT ZION CHAPEL in Ker Street, near the Town Hall is a noticeable building. It is in the Hindoo style, with very elaborate ornamentation. This chapel was erected in 1823-4 at a cost of £2,000.

CHRIST CHURCH is a Unitarian place of worship in the decorated Gothic style, the architect being Mr. Norman. It was erected in 1860 at a cost of £2000, raised by subscription. Several of the windows are fitted with richly stained glass. This church will accommodate 400 persons.

The MILITARY CHAPEL is situated opposite the entrance to the Raglan Barracks.

THE DEVONPORT, STOKE, AND STONEHOUSE HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS was established in 1875, on the same basis as similar institutions in London and elsewhere. Commodious buildings have been erected in Albert road, Morice Town, at a cost of £6,000.

THE ROYAL NAVAL AND MILITARY FREE SCHOOLS, in King Street, have been established under the patronage of Her Majesty the Queen, for the education of children of soldiers and sailors. They are supported by voluntary subscription.

THE TOWN HALL, in Ker Street, is a beautiful structure in the Grecian style, built in 1822 after designs by Mr. Foulston. It contains valuable portraits of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the Prince Consort, William IV., and Sir Edward Codrington. Adjoining the hall is THE DEVONPORT COLUMN, standing upon a solid rock and reaching to a height of 125 feet above the street. It is used as a weather signal for watermen, but it was erected in commemoration of the change of name from Plymouth Dock to the more agreeable one of Devonport.

PUBLIC HALL AND THEATRE. This fine and extensive block of buildings at the end of Fore street, has recently been erected by the Devonport Public Hall Company for the purpose of giving accommodation for large gatherings of people, which Devonport has for a long time been without. The large hall is capable of seating from three to four thousand persons. A handsome suite of retiring rooms is attached, and on the basement (Fore street side) are spacious rooms let as private offices. The building has been fitted up for stage purposes, and the revival of the old Devonport Theatre has recently been brought about by Mr. Neebe, who is lessee of Theatres in Bath, Exeter, and Weymouth.

POST OFFICE. This building situated in Fore street is a fine structure in the Classical style, and was erected in 1849, from the designs of Mr. George Wightwick, as an adaptation of the Temple of Tivoli. Its cost was about £2,000.

The TEMPERANCE HALL in Fore street, is an attractive building, the architect being Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn. It was opened in 1850 at a cost of £1,600.

THE MARKET at Devonport, a large and ornamental building in the centre of the town, was erected in 1852 from the designs of Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn. The tower is a conspicuous object, 124 feet high, and contains a clock with four dials, and a bell. The market days are Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, when there is a plentiful supply of all kinds of provisions.

MOUNT WISE is a fine elevated parade ground at the south of Devonport. From the ramparts and barriers, excellent views may be obtained. The Government House, the residence of the lieutenant-governor, is situated on the Mount, as are the Admiralty House, the Telegraph Office, and a semaphore.

THE RAGLAN BARRACKS AND NEW GRANBY BARRACKS afford accommodation for some thousands of soldiers.

FLOATING BRIDGE. Communication between Devon and Cornwall is effected by means of a steam floating bridge, crossing the Hamoaze from Devonport to Torpoint every quarter of an hour. The transit occupies about eight minutes, the toll for foot passengers being one penny each way.

THE DEVONPORT FREE LIBRARY, situated in Duke Street, was formerly the Mechanics' Institute, for which purpose it was erected in 1852.. The lower rooms are fitted up as news-rooms, the large hall upstairs forms the lending and reference library, and other rooms are devoted to science and art classes and other purposes. The Free Public Library was opened in 1882, the formal adoption of the act taking place in the previous year. The books (about 10,000) consist of the old Mechanics' Institute Library and some additions by gift and purchase. Tho internal arrangements were made under the direction of the public librarian of Plymouth.

Amongst other public buildings of interest may be mentioned the Sailors' Rest in Fore street, an institution which owes its origin and support to the benevolent forethought of Miss Weston ; and its branch at Morice Town ; the Gun Wharf ; The Royal Naval and Millitary Free School ; the Royal Dockyard Orphan Asylum ; various Banks ; the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum at Stoke ; Public and Board Schools ; the fine station (terminus) of the London and South Western Railway, etc., etc.

THE PUBLIC PARK at Devonport is a very fine open piece of ground, thirty-seven acres in extent. It is well laid out, and intersected with many beautiful walks, the principal being bordered with trees and shrubs and provided with seats. The high ground in front of Tamar terrace is used for cricket matches. From the highest point, which is laid down with gravel, good views of the town and its environs may be enjoyed. The entrance is through heavy iron gates and the lodge, a pretty Swiss cottage, is surrounded by tasteful gardens, in one of which is a rockery containing a terra-cotta fountain, a memorial to Admiral Charles Napier. The cost of these pleasant grounds was defrayed by subscription, supplemented by a government grant of £500.

STONEHOUSE.

Stonehouse, which lies between Plymouth and Devonport, formerly bore the name of Hippeston, to distinguish it from West Stonehouse, which stood on the opposite shore, and which was destroyed by the French. It is entered in the Domesday Book as "Stanhous," but was a very insignificant place, for many years containing but one house—the residence of the Stonehouse family, to whom the manor belonged. In course of time other houses were erected on the banks of the Pool, and at the period of the civil wars the town had increased to a place of sufficient importance to assert itself strongly in favour of Charles, while Plymouth was Parliamentarian. Its progress from that time has continued, and it is now as populous and busy, in proportion to its size, as either Devonport or Plymouth. The Earl of Mount Edgcumbe is the present proprietor of the town and manor.

THE ROYAL WILLIAM VICTUALLING YARD is an immense establishment situated at Devil's Point, and occupying 13 acres of ground, nearly half of which has been reclaimed from the sea; it is a splendid pile of buildings reflecting the utmost credit upon the contractor, Hugh McIntosh, and the celebrated engineers, Sir John Rennie and Philip Richards, Esq. The entire works have cost two millions of money, and entailed the removal of 300,000 tons of solid rock. A gateway of granite forms the carriage entrance, over which is a gigantic statue of William IV.

The interior of the yard consists of large quadrangular ranges of buildings, and all the internal arrangements are in keeping with the external appearance. In the stores immense stocks of provisions are kept, and the slaughter houses are a marvel of ingenious contrivances; then there are the cooperage, where casks and water-tanks are both made and stored; the brewhouse, the beef-house, the weighing-house, the vegetable store; and lastly the bakery, where an immense quantity of biscuits can be manufactured in an incredibly short space of time: by means of perfect mechanical appliances 1,000 bushels of corn can be ground in ten hours, and the whole process is carried on by machinery even to depositing the biscuits in the ovens.

ST. GEORGE'S, the parish church, and situated in Chapel Street, is a plain stone building, erected in 1789, on the site of an ancient chapel. It has a good organ, and contains about 800 sittings. The living is a vicarage valued at £217 per annum, and is in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrew's, Plymouth.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, at the end of Durnford Street, is a modern structure in the Gothic style: the cost of erection was about £2700; it has a chancel, nave, and aisles, with sittings for about 850 persons. The living is a perpetual curacy, of no fixed value, in the patronage of the vicar of St. George's.

ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH is a new structure, situated in Clarence Place. It was erected from the designs of Mr. Snell, at a cost of £5000. The living, valued at £200, is a perpetual curacy, in the gift of the vicar and three trustees.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, in Emma place, is a fine building containing a Police Station, Prison, County Court, Town Hall, Bank, Masonic Lodge Room, various offices, &c.; also a spacious Assembly Room used for public meetings and entertainments. Its site, and the stone used in its erection, were presented by the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe.

THE ROYAL MARINE BARRACKS, occupying nearly the whole of the left hand side of Durnford Street, afford room for about 1500 men; one part of the building is apportioned to the officers, whose mess-room, a remarkably spacious apartment, is adorned with a splendid portrait of William IV. The band performs almost daily on the parade.

STONEHOUSE BRIDGE, connecting Stonehouse and Devonport, crosses the Pool almost in a line with Union Street. It was erected in 1773 by the lords of the manors of East Stonehouse and Stoke Damerel: the tolls produce a large revenue.

THE ROYAL NAVAL HOSPITAL is an interesting institution, with its grounds occupying twenty-four acres. It is situated on a slope, overlooking Stonehouse Creek, and is capable of accommodating 1200 patients.

Other buildings which deserve mention in Stonehouse are the Admiralty School; the Long Room, once the favourite resort of the elité of Plymouth and its neighbourhood; the Winter Villa, erected as a winter Residence by the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe; various batteries near the Long Room; the Soldiers' Institute; a Wesleyan Chapel in Edgcumbe street; a Baptist Chapel in Union street; a Bible Christian Chapel in East street; Corpus Christi and Siloam Chapels in Union place, and the Stonehouse Workhouse adjoining St. Matthews' Church. Several public and other schools are also to be found in the township.

PLYMOUTH DAIRY COMPANY,

(LIMITED,)

198, Union Street, and 76, Treville Street,
PLYMOUTH,

AND

MARLBOROUGH STREET, DEVONPORT.

The Company beg to publish the following reports :—

From H. GREENWAY, Esq., Medical Officer of Health for Plymouth.

I have this day examined the dairies in Union-street and Treville-street, and the various appliances therein used by the Plymouth Dairy Company, and found them fully equal to the latest requirements of sanitary science. I have also examined the men employed by the Company, and found them free from infectious disease, and was informed there was no infection in either of their homes.

HENRY GREENWAY.

Plymouth, 2nd November, 1881.

From Mr. J. SQUIRE, M.R.C.V.S., Tavistock,
November 7th, 1881.

Gentlemen.—I beg to report that I have visited the farms from which you receive your milk supply, and have much pleasure in informing you of the very healthy condition in which I found all the cows. The cleanliness of the sheds, space per cow, and the ventilation is all that can be desired; also, the appliances for refrigerating the milk.

J. SQUIRE, M.R.C.V.S.

To the Plymouth Dairy Company.

Reports from the various Rural Sanitary Inspectors can be seen on application at the Company's Offices, at 198, Union-street, Plymouth.

The Plymouth Dairy Company are now supplying

KOUMISS,

Prepared by the Aylesbury Dairy Company (Limited.)

Orders for same to be sent to

No. 198, UNION STREET, PLYMOUTH.

KOUMISS is already known to the Medical Profession as a highly Refreshing Effervescent Preparation of Milk, obtained by a natural process of fermentation, of which the chief qualities are :—

1.—Its agreeable, refreshing, and highly digestable character.

2.—Its easy and rapid assimilation when the digestive powers are the most feeble.

3.—Its attested and rare powers of nutrition in the most desperate cases of Emaciation, Chronic Vomiting, Dyspepsia, from all causes, Gastric pain and Irritability, and of Debility following Acute, or accompanying Chronic diseases.

4.—Its remarkable success in allaying vomiting and gastralgia, and in restoring and nutrition.

5.—Its great value in typhoid and scarlet fevers.

6.—Its great value as a beverage for daily use, both for children and adults—especially to persons who cannot possibly take Milk, either alone or mixed with soda or other ærated waters. To the bilious it is an immense boon.

COLOUR PHOTOGRAPHS.

We beg to announce the introduction of a new process for the production of

PHOTOGRAPHS IN COLOUR,

By which most beautiful pictures are obtained. The results closely resemble the FINEST IVORY PAINTING, besides possessing a decided advantage over ordinary photographs in the fact of their being UNDOUBTEDLY PERMANENT. No traces of brush-work can be detected, the colours seeming to well-up from beneath the image, giving a like-like appearance to the picture unattained by any other method of colouring, while the effects are so easily produced that we can supply these Colour Photographs at a PRICE LITTLE EXCEEDING that usually charged for plain photographs.

Specimens can be seen at our Studio,

16, BEDFORD ST., PLYMOUTH,

(Opposite Devon and Cornwall Bank,)

THE MILTON SHIELD.

The MILTON Shield, executed in Repousse Iron and Silver by M. MOREL LADEUIL was first exhibited at the Paris Exhibition in 1867, and was one of the very few single Art Works which obtained a Gold Medal. It has since been purchased by Government for the South Kensington Museum, and has thus been adopted as a National Work of Art.

The design illustrates the leading incidents of Paradise Lost. In the centre medallion the angel RAPHAEL recites the details of the "War in heaven" to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. In the panels to the left and right are depicted the Rebellion and its consequences: in the former, the Satanic Hosts advancing to the assault, and in the latter, hurled from heaven by the victorious angels. Above each of these appear the Heavenly Hosts, either in array of Battle or in attitudes of Adoration and Praise. The Border is composed of Symbolical Figures, &c., typifying the elements in chaos—Time—and Eternity. The Archangel MICHAEL triumphing over the prostrate form of Satan, and figures symbolizing Sin and Death, complete the lower portion of the Shield.

G. Trafani has just completed a Fountain which he has been at work upon for the last six years; it is his own design, and has the reputation of being the finest Portland casting yet made in the West of England.

ALL KINDS OF BROKEN FIGURES & ALABASTER REPAIRED EQUAL TO NEW

NEIGHBOURING PLACES WITHIN FIVE MILES OF PLYMOUTH OR DEVONPORT.

Antony, or West Antony, five miles west from Plymouth, is a parish on St. German's creek, in the eastern division of the county of Cornwall, south division of East hundred, and the county court district of Stonehouse. The church, dedicated to St. James, belongs to the fifteenth century. A brass in the chancel in memory of its founder, Mary Arundell, bears date 1421. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Merifield annexed, in the gift of W. H. Pole Carew, Esq. The church of Merifield is unconsecrated, and is a small building with several stained glass windows. There are national schools at Antony village, and church schools at Merifield, the latter supported by W. H. Pole Carew, Esq., who is lord of the manor. Saltash is a small corporate town, situate in the Eastern division of the county of Cornwall, parish of St. Stephen, south division of the hundred of East, and East Stonehouse county court district. The town is built on the western bank of the Tamar, and communication with the opposite shore is effected by a steam ferry bridge, which is free to the inhabitants, but strangers are subject to the toll of a penny each way. It is an ancient borough, having received its first charter of incorporation from King John. The governing body at present consists of a mayor, recorder, town clerk, aldermen, and freemen, and its jurisdiction extends over all the liberties of Tamar. The town, which is well paved and in a satisfactory sanitary condition, has of late years extended considerably, numerous villa residences having been erected at Port View, one of the most delightful sites that could have been selected. The Royal Albert Railway bridge, opened by the late Prince Consort in 1859, and carrying the lines of the Cornwall Railway across the Tamar, is one of the most remarkable engineering achievements in the world. It consists altogether of nineteen arches, the principal feature being the two arches which cross the river, each having a span of 455 feet. There is a large Town Hall, in which the quarter sessions are held. The chapel of St. Nicholas is an ancient building, recently restored at great cost. The living is a perpetual curacy, in the gift of the trustees of the late Sir Robert S. Hawks. There are two dissenting places of worship, several charities, and the Board school system has been introduced. Cattle fairs are held on the 2nd of February and the 25th of July, while July 26th and 27th are devoted to a pleasure fair. The population in 1881 was 6,571.

Torpoint is a small town situated on the west bank of that part of the river Tamar known as the Hamoaze, immediately opposite the dockyard at Keyham, two and a half miles from the Plymouth station of the South Devon Railway, and one and half miles from the Devonport stations of the L. & S. W. & Cornwall Railways. It is a comparatively modern town, having been built almost entirely since 1790. For ecclesiastical purposes it has been formed into a separate parish, but it is still within the civil parish of Antony. The river here is nearly three-quarters of a mile wide, and communication with the opposite shore is kept up by means of a floating steam bridge, which crosses every quarter of an hour. There are neither fairs nor markets, but the town is well supplied with provisions. There is a manufactory for sulphuric acid and manure, belonging to the Western Counties and General Manure Company. The church, dedicated to St. James, is a very plain but commodious structure, having accommodation for 800 worshippers. The living is a vicarage in the gift of the vicar of Antony. Nonconformists are represented by Independent and Wesleyan chapels. There is an Institution with bagatelle and reading rooms. Petty sessions are held here the fourth Wednesday in every month for the southern division of the hundred of East, and on other days if judicial business renders it necessary. Thanckes House, the seat of Lord Graves, now in the occupation of Captain Bradshaw R.N., C.B., and Gravesend House, the residence of the Hon. Miss Graves, are both situated in this parish. W. H. Pole Carew, Esq., is lord of the manor. The population, consisting largely of naval officers and others engaged in the naval service, was, in 1871, 2,245. Letters viâ Devonport.
