HEALTH FOR ALL!

BY

Holloway's Pills.

Chest and Stomach Complaints.

The source and centre of almost every ailment is impurity of the blood. Dislodge the poison and disease departs. Holloway's Pills exercise the inestimable power of thoroughly cleansing each component part of the blood, rendering this fluid fit to perform its important functions. They cope most successfully with chest diseases, stomach complaints, liver disorders, and many other maladies which were once the besetting dangers of mankind.

Sick Headaches and Indigestion.

These ailments give rise to a large share of the maladies of mankind; they occasion more miseries than the doctor knows names for. Indigestion springs from many causes, over which Holloway's Pills exercise the most perfect control. They act at once on the stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys, and correct their torpid, defective, or disordered functions. They restore the waning appetite, strengthen the feeble stomach, remove the dyspeptic sick-headache, and many other nameless torments.

Complaints peculiar to Females.

Climates have their particular disorders—age has infirmities peculiar to it—seasons have their specific diseases, but woman, in all climates, at any age, and in every season, is liable to special complaints resulting from fashion, inattention, or debility of constitution. For all such, there are in Holloway's Pills present ease and future comfort, while the natural function of every organ is effectually established by them. Under their corrective sway the greatest improvement speedily appears, the body is developed, and the spirits rise. Not a trace of mercury or other noxious ingredient enters into their composition; hence parent or patient need hold no counsel before commencing these remedies.

Bilious Complaints, and other Derangements of the Liver.

When the cause of disease is seated in the blood, nerves, stomach, liver, or bowels, no treatment will be found so effective, no medicine so valuable, as these purifying, alterative, and aperient Pills. Innocent in their nature, they never can do harm to the weakest constitution. Cleansing and invigorating in their effects, they produce an immediate amelioration of many of the most painful and most dangerous symptoms which afflict the human frame. In cases where the usual round of prescriptions had been vainly tried, Holloway's Pills have acted marvellously in arresting the disease, and gradually restoring health.

A NEVER-FAILING FRIEND!

Holloway's Ointment.

Bad Legs, Old Wounds, Sores, and Ulcers.

This grand Remedy has called forth the loudest praises from thousands of persons, in all parts of the world, who have been promptly cured by it, after suffering for years from bad legs, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, when every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Unguent can form any idea of the comfort it bestows. Whenever it has been once used, it has established its own worth, and has again been eagerly sought for as the easiest and safest remedy for all ulcerous complaints.

Asthma, Settled Coughs & Colds on the Chest.

For more than thirty years this Ointment has been ranked before any other curative agent, as it may almost be said to work miracles. It should be well rubbed on the throat and chest, in sore throat, enlarged glands, chronic cough, and wheezing. In common catarrh and influenza, the Ointment, well rubbed upon the walls of the chest, aided by a few doses of the Pills, soon effects a cure. The same treatment judiciously followed up, cures diphtheria, asthma, bronchitis, pleurisy, and prevents the inflammation resulting in abscess or ulceration, so apt to ensue when throat or chest complaints are neglected.

Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, & Stiff Joints.

Every one suffering from these painful affections should use this purifying Ointment, as it has rescued thousands from a life of torture, after every other means had been tried in vain. The Ointment should be well rubbed into the part affected at least twice a day, after it has been properly fomented with warm salt and water, and dried; thus the inflammation soon yields, and the patient, no longer helpless, resumes his accustomed occupation.

Skin Diseases and Scorbutic Affections.

All sufferers from sore heads, scorbutic affections, and skin diseases generally, may confidently commence the treatment with this healing and cleansing Ointment. With this well-tried medicament the worst cases will soon assume a more kindly aspect, and in the progress of the cure the afflicted will neither be embarrassed by difficulties nor disheartened by failures. A little perseverance, and moderate attention to the "Directions for Use," enveloping each pot of Ointment, will enable every invalid to cure himself.

Sold at the Establishment of PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY, 533 Oxford Street (late of 244 Strand), London; also by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines throughout the civilised world, at the following prices:—1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s., and 3s. each Box or Pot.

 There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N.B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Box or Pot.

KINLOCH'S CATALAN WINES.

THE very large demand which has followed the importation of these pure, unbrandied Red and White Wines, has proved their value, and particular attention to them is now with confidence invited.

A trial will show that the Proprietors, Messrs. C. KINLOCH & Co., have succeeded in introducing into this country Wines of a strength suitable to the climate, and of so fine a quality as to make them acceptable to those accustomed to the finest Wines, at a price which ensures their coming into universal use.

'CROWN" RED CATALAN.—Very full flavoured, fruity, mellow Wine of Port character, without heat. It is strongly recommended by medical men as having very remarkable strengthening properties, and is used regularly in many Hospitals, Infirmaries, and Dispensaries.

	Per Dozen.	Per Bottle.
Price.....	20s.....	1s. 8d.	Bottles included.

DRY "CROWN" CATALAN.—Kept longer in Cask, drier, and more delicate in flavour.

	Per Dozen.	Per Bottle.
Price.....	20s.....	1s. 8d.	Bottles included.

"DIAMOND" RED CATALAN.—Full bodied, generous Wine, of very high flavour. Recommended for household use. Invaluable to those to whom a strengthening stimulant is prescribed.

	Per Dozen.	Per Bottle.
Price.....	17s.....	1s. 5d.	Bottles included.

"CROWN" WHITE CATALAN.—Full bodied, but not coarse, and of a delicious rich nutty Sherry flavour, which renders it suitable for either a luncheon or after dinner Wine. It is quite free from heat or acidity.

	Per Dozen.	Per Bottle.
Price.....	20s.....	1s. 8d.	Bottles included.

"DIAMOND" WHITE CATALAN.—Pale, very soft, and singularly delicate in flavour; admirably suited for household use, as a Dinner Wine.

	Per Dozen.	Per Bottle.
Price.....	17s.....	1s. 5d.	Bottles included.

NOTE THE CAPSULE ON EACH BOTTLE AS IN MARGIN.

As Proprietors of the Catalan Wine, C. KINLOCH & Co. have thought necessary, in order to protect the Public from brandied and bleaded imitations, to send it out in Capsuled Bottles, with a Registered Trade Mark, and they beg that Purchasers will see that none but Capsuled Bottles are under any pretence supplied to them.

HALF-PRICE SHEET MUSIC,

Instrumental and Vocal.

OXFORD MUSIC REPOSITORY,

35 CORN MARKET STREET.

H. ALDEN begs respectfully to intimate that having (since the great reduction in the price of sheet music, a few years ago) devoted increased attention to this branch of business, he has now on hand a large and continually accumulating stock of the most fashionable Music from all the first-class publishers, AT HALF PRICE: including

PIANOFORTE COMPOSITIONS:

Suited either for brilliant execution, for school or private practice, or for elementary lessons. A good selection of very easy pieces for children.

THE NEWEST DANCE MUSIC:

Waltzes, Polkas, Quadrilles, Galops, &c., &c.

SECULAR AND SACRED VOCAL MUSIC:

Solos, Duets, Trios, by favourite modern composers. Also a good assortment of PIANOFORTE DUETS AND TRIOS, &c., &c.

The considerable enlargement recently effected in his shop, enables H. ALDEN to offer to customers increased facilities for inspecting the stock; and he is convinced that it will be found not inferior, either in quantity or style, to that of any Music Shop in Oxford.

Special attention is requested to the great advantage secured in the promptness and regularity with which any pieces not in stock are procured from London: as H. ALDEN receives, from all the leading Publishers,

NEW MUSIC PARCELS TWICE A WEEK,

And oftener when required. He is thus enabled to execute all orders received up to Monday night on the following Wednesday: up to Thursday night on the Saturday following, &c.

Music sent out for selection if desired. A liberal discount allowed to Teachers and the Profession.

In addition to the Half-Price Music, the publications of the Musical Bouquet Office are kept in stock: about 12,000 sheets, at 3d. per sheet. The series comprises an extensive assortment of Pianoforte Music, by the best foreign composers: Vocal Music—classical German and Italian, the modern Christy's Minstrels' Songs, &c. Dance Music, by Montgomery and others; Sacred Music; Pianoforte Duets; Glees, &c., &c.—Complete Catalogues 1d. each.

These important publications are not kept in stock anywhere else in Oxford.

A large assortment of Instruction Books, and Cheap Books of Vocal and Instrumental Music, always on hand.

Messrs. H. & G. Simonds, of Reading,

FOR A CONSTANT SUPPLY OF THEIR SEASON-BREWED & FAMILY

Ales, Porter, and Stout.

Particular attention is directed to the SEASON-BREWED Ales, which are now ready for delivery, and will be supplied with a guarantee of their keeping sound and brilliant, provided the orders are registered during the Winter, and the Ales are supplied in Casks not less than a Kilderkin.

B. D. can confidently recommend these Ales, &c., as being remarkably wholesome, pure, and of a very delicate flavour, and she respectfully solicits a trial, feeling assured that no further recommendation will be requisite.

PROFESSOR THOROLD ROGERS

ON

SMALL FARMING.

"HAD I not been in the chair at Willis's Rooms on the occasion of that well-known meeting which was convened for the purpose of considering the economical condition of the agricultural labourer, and had I not been therefore constrained to act the part of Moderator between the very opposite opinions which were expresssed; I should have called the attention of many influential persons who were present, to the wisdom of allowing the experiment of Small Farming. But I should not have had, at that time, the valuable information which this little work supplies, and which seems to me to be conclusive on the subject."—Preface by Rev. J. E. Thorold Rogers, M.A. (Professor of Political Economy), to the NEW WORK just published,

Post Office Savings Bank.

By 24 Victoria, cap. 14, deposits of one shilling, or of any number of shillings, or of pounds and shillings, will be received from any depositor at the Post Office Savings Banks, provided the deposit made by such depositor in any one year ending the 31st day of December do not exceed £30, and provided the total amount standing in such depositor's name in the books of the Postmaster-General do not exceed £150, exclusive of interest. When the principal and interest together standing to the credit of any one depositor amount to the sum of £200, all interest will cease, so long as the same funds continue to amount to the said sum of £200.

The interest is calculated to the 31st December in every year, and is then added to, and becomes part of the principal.

A depositor in any legally established Savings Bank may transfer his account to the Post Office Savings Bank by simply applying to the managers of the Savings Bank for a certificate of transfer to the Post Office Savings Bank, and the amount of such certificate will be entered to his credit by the Post Office Savings Bank as so much cash. In the same way an account may be transferred from the Post Office Savings Bank to any other legally established savings bank.

Deposits may be made by, or for the benefit of any person under twenty-one years of age, and repayment will be made to such minor, after the age of seven years, in the same manner as if he were of full age. In case of minors under the age of seven years, the declaration must be made by one of the parents, or a friend, on behalf of the minor.

Deposits may be made by married women, and deposits so made, or made by women who shall afterwards marry, will be repaid to any such woman, unless her husband shall give notice of such marriage, in writing, to the Postmaster-General, and shall require payment to be made to him.

POPE'S STUDY, STANTON HARCOURT.

STANTON HARCOURT,

The old seat of one of the most ancient and honourable families in the kingdom,—a family with much to dignify and less to discredit it than perhaps any other of which England boasts,—is but a relic of its former magnificence; but that relic suffices to indicate its early grandeur, and retains much that cannot fail to create deep and absorbing interest. The Harcourts have possessed the manor of Stanton for more than six hundred years; the original grant was from Henry I. to "Milicent, the kinswoman of the Queen," whose daughter Isabel, marrying Roland de Harcourt, the deed of gift was confirmed by the Kings Stephen and the Second Henry. It ceased to be their dwelling in 1688, and fell gradually to decay, until, in 1770, it was taken down—all except the porter's lodge, now the residence of the rector, the "kitchen," and one of the towers—the tower sometime the residence of the poet, Alexander Pope, and where (as he has himself recorded) he translated the fifth book of Homer. On the ground floor of this tower is a private chapel, the walls still bearing indications of painted story; the small room on the second floor, to which ascent is gained by a narrow stone staircase, is called, and will ever be called, "Pope's Study;" it commands a fine view, and must have given to the poet that happiest of all enjoyments—quiet in the country. On a pane of glass in one of the windows he wrote an inscription, recording the fact and date that here he "finished the fifth book of Homer." The kitchen is best described by Dr. Plot, the old historian of Oxford county:—"It is so strangely unusual, that, by way of riddle, one may truly call it either a kitchen within a chimney, or a kitchen without one; for below it is nothing but a large square, and octangular above, ascending like a tower, the fires being made against the walls, and the smoke climbing up them without any tunnels or disturbance to the cooks, which being stopped by a large conical roof at the top, goes out at loop-holes on every side, according as the wind sets, the loop-holes at the side next the wind being shut with folding doors, the adverse side open." This description is accurate now, as it was then; it is still used by the gentleman who farms the estate, whose dwelling-house, formed of the old materials, adjoins the kitchen. It is surmounted by a vane, the crest of the Harcourts.

The church is a fine and very interesting structure. Much of it is of Norman architecture. It is among the most beautiful of the many beautiful churches of Oxfordshire. Through one of the doors the men have entrance, while the women enter by another, in accordance with "a custom established there from time immemorial." The decorations of the interior are of very early date—the oak wood-screen being considered the oldest, of wood, in England. A small chapel contains the dust of many of the Harcourts—a race honoured and esteemed, always and without exception, from the founder of the family to its present representative. It is surely something to be a gentleman of six hundred years' standing! In the churchyard is a monument to the memory of an affianced pair who were struck dead by lightning. The epitaph is from the pen of Pope; so also is an epitaph to the only son of the Lord Chancellor Harcourt—that good and learned peer who was the friend of Pope and the other poets of the age. This epitaph contains the touching lines of lament:

> "How vain is reason,—eloquence how weak!
> That Pope must tell what Harcourt cannot speak!"

We crept up the narrow stairs which led from the chapel, with its remnants of adornments and painted glass,—where the poet, no doubt, worshipped according to his faith,—and entered the little turret room, a shrine where numbers, "past, present, and to come," have recalled or will recall the memory of Pope, not only as a poet and a deep earnest thinker, but as one who proved the English language as susceptible of grace as of dignity of expression; and though "pure Doric" in our "slang" days has fallen into contempt, and it may be that even those who cherish "good English" may consider his prose somewhat "stilted," yet it was pleasant to find ourselves within the sanctuary of the narrow chamber where, in "the year 1718, Alexander Pope finished the fifth volume of Homer."

George Bidder.

This boy, the most wonderful calculator on record, was born at Morton Hempstead, near Exeter, in 1806. His father, a stonemason, was principally occupied in building the stone fences with which that part of the country abounds; his family was large, consisting of nine children, six boys and three girls. George, the youngest but three, when four years of age, was placed at a village school at three-halfpence per week, but had no means whatever of cultivating those faculties which afterwards developed themselves in such an extraordinary degree. The first illustration of Bidder's intellectual powers was quite accidental. Standing at the forge of the village blacksmith, a dispute arose between the smith and a butcher as to the value of a hog. The weight and price of the animal were frequently named, and each party contended that his calculation was right, when suddenly, during a pause in their quarrel, the boy exclaimed, "The price of the pig is————," mentioning the actual value to a farthing, but different to the sum named by either of the disputants. This wonderful effort in one so young soon became noised abroad, and many a question was proposed by the more learned in the science of figures, and as readily answered by the untutored boy. George Bidder shortly afterwards, in charge of his father, made a tour through the principal towns in the kingdom, and at each of these places his quick and ready answers gave universal satisfaction. As space will not permit of our entering more fully into the biography of this extraordinary youth, we select a few of the principal questions solved by him, for the instruction and amusement of our scientific readers.

1.—If a newspaper consists of four pages, each page six columns, each column 191 lines, each line forty-five letters, how many letters are there in the whole newspaper?—Ans. 206,280 letters.

2.—In what space of time can a workman compose the whole of the above newspaper, at the rate of thirty-three letters in a minute and a quarter?—Answer, 5 days, 10 hours, 13 minutes, 80 secs.

3.—Suppose a gentleman dying leaves an estate of twelve houses to nine of his children, each house valued at £730, what is each child's share in farthings?—Answer, 934,400 farthings each.

4.—Suppose the earth to consist of 971,000,000 of inhabitants, and suppose they die in thirty-three years and four months, how many have returned to dust since the time of Adam, computing it to be 5,850 years?—Answer, 170,410,500,000. Multiply it again by 99.—Ans. 16,870,639, 500,000.

5.—In 6,424 years, 365 days 6 hours to a year, how many minutes?—Ans. 3,378,767,040.

6.—What number taken from the square of 56 will leave 13 times 42?—Answer, 2590.

7.—Multiply 54,912 by 63,214—Answer, 3,471,207,168.

8.—What is the cube root of 673,373,097,125? Ans. 8765.

9.—If there are 9,999 grains of corn in one half pint, how many grains in 99 sacks?—Answer, 506,829,312.

POPE.

FRIAR BACON'S STUDY.

FOLLY BRIDGE.

The bridge where several branches of the Thames unite, and situate near Oxford, was anciently called Grand Pont. Its modern name (modern, although dating back 200 years) is derived from the following circumstances. The tower, which stood on the bridge, and had been so long known as "Friar Bacon's Study," being much delapidated, the city leased it to a citizen named "Welcome," who repaired the lower part, and added to it a story, which appears in our engraving. This was called by the neighbours "Welcome's Folly;" and thus the bridge acquired its new title of "Folly Bridge." The present bridge was built in 1825-7—the architect was Ebenezer Perry. The first erection of a bridge on this spot is beyond all authentic record; but it is the opinion of our best antiquaries that here a bridge existed so early as the Saxon times.

"FRIAR BACON'S STUDY," which formerly stood on this bridge, was taken down in the year 1779; and the prophecy thus failed, that "when a man more learned than he passed under it, the tower would fall"—hence the old warning, when a youth was sent to the university, "Beware of walking near the Friar's Tower!" It is traditionally narrated that to this tower the great Roger Bacon, one of the greatest luminaries of the middle ages, used to resort at night, to take the altitude and distance of stars." Popular prejudice accused him of practising magic, and, according to the legend, he was cited to Rome on this charge by the general of his order (he was a Franciscan Friar); but having cleared himself, he was sent back to England. In his quiet cloisters near Oxford the monk wrought out his principles and modes of legitimate investigation, and successfully followed them. If not entitled to take rank as the founder of experimental philosophy, Roger Bacon was unquestionably the earliest philosophical experimentalist in England. He recognised as fully as Francis Bacon the importance of experiment as distinguished from deduction; and he had this immense advantage over the Chancellor—he joined example to precept, and put in use before his contemporaries his own counsels. It is interesting to reflect on the amount of actual discovery which rewarded so much laborious research. Bacon made signal advances in optics; he was an excellent chemist, and in all probability discovered gunpowder; nevertheless, it is on his clear discernment of true method that his fame must ever rest.

The tower was said to have been built in King Stephen's time, as a Pharos or high watch-tower for the defence of the city of Oxford.

Ivan the Terrible, Emperor of Russia.

This monster was without teeth when he succeeded to his father's greatness; but his mother Helena reigned during his minority, and set such an example to her sex that Massalina was pure by comparison. The boy was trained to be a savage, to kill animals, to ride over people in the streets. He was taught to be a destroyer; and the Czars of later days have not forgotten the instruction, though they apply it more tenderly. Ivan was only in his teens when he had one of his own attendants worried by dogs in the public highway. The young gentleman thought it excellent sport; and he was encouraged to indulge in it by the Gluisky family, who were proud to be the preceptors of so promising a pupil. It was that family who seriously taught him that he was an exception to the commandment which said, "Thou shalt do no murder." They inculcated assassination as a virtue in a prince.

He robbed his people, not merely by oppressive taxation, but by vulgar open plunder—a process which Nicholas carried out more politely by forced loans. They who groaned by way of dissent were slain for their audacity; and he jocosely compelled parents to slay their children, and children one another; and then, if he were not too weary, slew the survivor, when one was left breathing, and like Scrubb, "laughed consumedly." He placed himself upon that equality with God from which the present Czar has hardly descended by one shallow step. His devotion was ostentatious, and he was ever exemplarily devout when he was not stupidly drunk. He would rise from his knees, to let slip his wild bears among the citizens in the streets, and "the most pious of Czars" finished his prayers as he looked on at the slaughter, pluming himself on his magnanimity when he flung a few small coins among the wounded. He sometimes suffered, however, from a surfeit of death, and the jesters were then summoned to raise the imperial spirits. They must have addressed themselves to their task with delightful buoyancy, remembering that a bad joke was sure to be strangled in the throat of the utterer—and the latter died with his sorry jest. The very nobles were not safe. He once flung over Prince Goosdof, who had failed in an attempt to be witty, a tureen of scalding hot soup, and as the prince endeavoured to escape, the Czar plunged a knife into his side. The unhappy noble fell dead; and Ivan remarking that he had "carried the joke far enough," bade the physician attend to him.

"It is only God and your Majesty," said the medical toady, "who can restore the prince to life; he is quite gone."

The Czar was a little affected at the event, but he took a pleasant way of forgetting it. A favourite noble happened to meet him, and bent in reverence before him. The Czar was delighted to fall in with him, and took hold of him by the ear, just as Napoleon used to do with his arch-favourites; but the French emperor was accustomed to leave the ear he pinched upon the head of its owner; not so Ivan, who, using his knife, cut off the member, and flung it into the face of his ancient friend, who received the same with many acknowledgments of his master's condescension.

Ivan was the husband of seven wives at the same time; and this was the only circumstance in his character which the Greek Church in Russia ever affected to blame him in. His offer to espouse our Virgin Queen Elizabeth must have made that gracious lady merry. Ivan himself soon ceased to be so. In a fit of fury he smote his own son dead by blows from an iron bar, and God and outraged nature no longer spared this most hideous of monsters. He became gloomy, but hardly less cruel; and partial madness succeeded to gloom, and death at last to both.

This savage was nevertheless one of the ablest of men and of rulers, when he chose to let his natural abilities for good have sway over his evil passions. He introduced printing, gave a code of laws, encouraged religious toleration, and promoted civilisation by patronising the fine arts throughout their brilliant circle with a liberality never perhaps known out of his dominions. But he was a Colossus of intemperance in all things, and intemperance begat cruelty, and the indulgence of both led to insanity; and therewith, strange to say, this great incarnation of the "beastly," died a natural death! So strange are all things in the land of the Czars!

The Russians are highly superstitious about the dead. On the day the funeral takes place, the body is accompanied to the grave with many outward testimonies of grief by the relations; the priest then produces a paper, drawn up and signed by the bishop and another clergyman, which purports to be the passport that will admit the deceased to heaven. The precious document is placed between the fingers of the corpse, and the sorrowing friends having seen the earth closed over him, return to the house of the departed.

THE TOMB OF MISS MITFORD.

Reading was the birthplace of Archbishop Laud, and among honourable and happy memories associated with this town, or rather with its vicinity, is that of "THREE MILE CROSS," long the residence of Mary Russell Mitford. We will beg our readers to accompany us while we visit the humble dwelling-place of this admirable woman, whose writings have found their way over the whole civilized world, rendering familiar to all the peculiar traits of English village character. and the graces so essentially our own, which decorate the lanes, the homesteads, and the cottages of rural England.

To "Three Mile Cross"—the "Our Village" of Miss Mitford's Stories and Sketches—we wended our way. It was a day "brimful" of air and sunshine, and we fancied we knew the roads and trees she wrote about or talked of: the rough-coated elms, standing boldly and bluntly out from velvet hedge-rows—a slim stick of sprouting foliage springing here and there from the rugged bark, reminding one of an old man's child, while the great robust tree tops were telling of vigorous old age! There were herds of sheep on the up-lands and lowlands, and loitering cattle under trees; there were children clapping their hands and blooming like roses; the jobbing gardener, with his rake, his garland of "bass," and his bundle of "shreds—blue, black, and red;" the bronzed and muscular village blacksmith; the pale-faced shoemaker; the ragged, rosy, saucy boys; the fair delicate "lily of the valley like" maidens—the descendants of those who were boys and girls when "Our Village" was written—we saw them all, and identified them all with the painter of "Three Mile Cross," and then we arrived at the village itself. It is a long, lean, straggling hamlet of twenty houses, in one of which, as shown in our illustration, Miss Mitford lived for more than a quarter of a century. The house, so far as the bare walls are concerned, is much as she left it: an assemblage of closets ("our landlord," she says, "has the assurance to call them rooms,") full of contrivances and corner cupboards. "That house," to quote her own words, "was built on purpose to show in what an exceeding small compass comfort may be packed."

Yet when we entered the tiny low-ceilinged rooms, almost without light or ventilation, and ascended the narrow stairs,—where crinoline could not come,—and saw around us ample evidence of the impossibility to impart to the dwelling anything approaching to the picturesque of cottage life, we felt—what?—the most intense admiration and respect for the well-born and once wealthy lady who brought within these "old and weather-stained walls" an atmosphere of happiness, an appreciation of all that is true and beautiful in nature; and sent from out these leaden casements and that narrow door, such floods of light and sunshine as have brightened the uttermost parts of the earth! Who ever heard her murmur at changed fortunes—when obliged to leave the home, "stately though simple," the home of eighteen years, "surrounded by fine oaks and elms, and tall, massy plantations, shaded down into a beautiful lawn by wild overgrown shrubs!"

Those only who had known the extent and luxury of her former home, and afterwards had the privilege of enjoying her society in that "scrappy" cupboard dwelling at "Three Mile Cross," can sufficiently appreciate the fulness, the warmth, the geniality, the strength of her sunshine, which, without effort or exaggeration, made all within and without happy in her happiness.

In her introduction to her Dramas, dedicated to her long-loved friend, Francis Bennoch, she expressed a wish to be buried in the churchyard of Swallowfield; and this excited the surprise, and somewhat of the loving jealousy of the dwellers at "Three Mile Cross," who imagined she would have rested with her beloved parents in their churchyard. A cross of Aberdeen granite marks her grave in "the beautiful churchyard of Swallowfield."

Wonderful Statistics of the Bible.

The Bible history commenced 430 years B.C. The Septuagint version was made in 284; first divided into chapters, 1253. The first English edition was in 1536; the first authorised edition in England was in 1539; the second translation was ordered to be read in churches, 1549; the present translation finished, September, 1611; permitted by the Pope to be translated into all the languages of the Catholic states, February 28th, 1759; the following is a dissection of the Old and New Testament:—

	In the Old Testament.	In the New.	Total.
Books,	39	27	66
Chapters,	920	260	1,189
Verses,	23,214	7,959	31,173
Words,	592,493	181,253	773,746
Letters,	2,728,100	838,380	3,566,480

The Apocrypha has 183 chapters 6,081 verses, and 125,185 words. The middle chapter, and the least in the Bible, is the 117th Psalm; the middle verse is the 8th of 118th Psalm; the middle line is the 2nd Book of the Chronicles, 4th chap,, and 16th verse; the word AND occurs in the Old Testament 35,535 times; the same word in the New Testament occurs 10684 times, the word JEHOVAH occurs 6,855 times.

OLD TESTAMENT.—The middle Book is Proverbs; the middle chapter, the 29th of Job; the middle verse is the 2nd Book of Chronicles, 20th chapter, and 18th verse; the least verse is the 1st Book of Chronicles, 1st chapter and 1st verse.

NEW TESTAMENT.—The middle is the Thessalonians 2nd; the middle chapter is between the 13th and 14th of the Romans; the middle verse is the 17th of the 17th chapter of the Acts; the least verse is the 35th of the 11th chapter of the Gospel by Saint John.

The 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra has all the letters of the alphabet in it.

The 19th chapter of the 2nd Book of Kings, and the 37th chapter of Isaiah, are alike.

The Book of Esther has 10 chapters, but neither the words LORD nor GOD in it.

The 26th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, is generally considered as the finest piece of reading extant.

In the reign of Edward the First the price of a fairly written Bible was twenty-seven pounds. The hire of a labourer was about three-halfpence a day. The purchase of a copy would, of course, have taken such a person the earning of fifteen years and three months of constant labour. The first printed book was a vulgate edition of the Bible, in 1462. The British and Foreign Bible Society contributed to the Great Exhibition of 1851 specimens of 165 books in different languages, from the 170 versions of the Holy Scriptures, either in whole or in part, which have been published directly or indirectly by the Society, and of which 118 are from translations never before printed; and of which more than thirty-four millions of copies have been circulated since its institution in 1804.

Wickliffe, who exercised the right of private judgment in England a century and a half before Luther taught it as a principle in Germany, may be said to have been the first dissenter from the church of Rome. After a life wonderfully preserved from the unsparing cruelty of ecclesiastical power, by the protection of Edward III., his memory was affectionately revered, and as printing had not been discovered, his writings were scarce, and earnestly sought.

THE SHREW ASH, RICHMOND PARK.

Perhaps in England there is no single view so beautiful as that obtained from the summit of RICHMOND HILL; nay, it is scarcely too much to say there is nothing more charming in the world. Such is the opinion of many foreigners who have beheld the landscape attractions of all lands, and such is surely that of those who, having travelled long and far, return to their own country with a confirmed conviction that Englishmen find nowhere any scenery so delicious as that they possess "at home." No doubt there is much that is wider, and broader, and grander—more magnificent and more comprehensive—which voyagers elsewhere may enjoy, but none within the same limits so gifted with surpassing loveliness. The scene from Richmond Hill has, therefore, been at all times a fertile theme of the poet and the painter, although neither art nor language can render it sufficient justice.

> "Heavens! what a goodly prospect spreads around,
> Of hills and dales, and woods and lawns, and spires,
> And glittering towns and gilded streams!"

Looking over Richmond Park, we behold stately Windsor; further off, the hills of Buckinghamshire—the historic Chilterns; and nearer those over Runnymede and Chertsey. A gate on the summit of the hill leads into Richmond Park.

At the end of the Park, where a gate leads to Mortlake, and near a cottage in which resides one of the most estimable gentlemen of the age—Professor Owen—there still lives and flourishes a tree that has been famous for many ages: it is the SHREW ASH. It is interesting to note how little odds and ends of superstition are rooted, like wild primroses in out of the way wilds—the nooks and corners of our intellectual country. It is so difficult to define where faith ends and superstition begins, that sometimes we lose sight of irrationality, in sympathy with the sentiment that is blended with the superstition.

White, in his "Natural History of Shelbourn," describes a "Shrew-Ash" as an ash whose twigs or branches, when gently applied to the limbs of cattle, will immediately relieve the pains which a beast suffers from the running of a shrew-mouse over the part affected,—for it is supposed that a shrew-mouse is of so baneful a nature, that wherever it creeps over a beast, be it horse, cow, or sheep, the suffering animal is afflicted with cruel anguish, and threatened with the loss of the use of the limb. Against this evil, to which they were continually liable, our provident forefathers always kept a Shrew-Ash at hand, which, when once medicated, would maintain its virtues for ever.

A Shrew-Ash was made potent thus: into the body of the tree a deep hole was made with an auger, and a poor devoted shrew-mouse was thrust in alive, and plugged up, no doubt with several quaint incantations, long since forgotten. The Shrew-Ash in Richmond Park is, therefore, amongst the few legacies of the kind equeathed to their country by the wisdom of our ancestors.

Wonderful Wills.

MR. TUKE,

Of Wath, near Rotherham, who died in 1810, bequeathed one penny to every child that attended his funeral (there came from 600 to 700); 1s. to every poor woman in Wath; 10s. 6d. to the ringers to ring one peal of grand bobs, which was to strike off while they were putting him into the grave. To seven of the oldest navigators, one guinea for puddling him up in his grave. To his natural daughter, £4 4s., per annum. To his old and faithful servant, Joseph Pitt, £21 per annum. To an old woman who had for eleven years tucked him up in bed, £1 1s. only. Forty dozen penny loaves to be thrown from the church leads at twelve o'clock on Christmas day for ever. Two handsome brass chandeliers for the church and £20 for a set of new chimes.

DAVID DAVIS,

Late of Clapham, in Surrey; proved January, 1788.—I give and bequeath to Mary Davis, daughter of Peter Delaport, the sum of 5s., which is sufficient to enable her to get drunk with, for the last time, at my expense; and I give the like sum of 5s. to Charles Peter, the son of the said Mary, whom I am reputed to be the father of; but never had, or ever shall have any reason to believe.

JOHN BASKERVILLE,

Late of Birmingham; proved March, 1775.—My further will and pleasure is, and I hereby declare, that the devise of all my goods and chattels, as above, is upon this express condition: that my wife, in concert with my executors, do cause my body to be buried in a conical building, in my own premises, heretofore used as a mill, which I have lately raised higher, and painted, and in a vault which I have prepared for it. This, doubtless, to many will appear a whim:—perhaps it is so; but it is a whim for many years resolved on, as I have a hearty contempt of all superstition, the farce of consecrated ground, the Irish barbarism of sure and certain hope, &c.

STEPHEN CHURCH,

Lighterman, of St. Mary-at-Hill; proved November, 1793.—I give and devise to my son, Daniel Church, only one shilling; and that it is for him to hire a porter to carry away the next badge and frame he steals.

WILLIAM DARLEY,

Late of Ash, in the County of Herts; proved May, 1794.—I give unto my wife, Mary Darley, for picking my pocket of sixty guineas, and taking up money in my name, of John Pugh, Esq., the sum of one shilling.

STEPHEN SWAIN,

Of St. Olave, Southwark; proved Feb. 1770.—I give to John Abbot, and Mary, his wife, the sum of sixpence each, to buy for each of them a halter, for fear the sheriffs should not be provided.

THE RT. HON. HENRY EARL OF STAFFORD.

Proved July, 1719.—I give to the worst of women with one exception, who is guilty of all ills, the daughter of Mr. Gramont, a Frenchman, who I have unfortunately married, five-and-forty brass halfpence, which will buy her a pullet for her supper, a greater sum than her father can often make her; for I have known when he had neither money or credit for such a purchase he being the worst of men, and his wife the worst of women, in all debaucheries:—Had I known their character, I had never married their daughter, nor made myself unhappy.

WILLIAM BLACKETT, ESQ.

Late Governor of Plymouth; proved 1782.—I desire that my body may be kept as long as it may not be offensive, and that one or more of my toes or fingers may be cut off, to secure a certainty of my being dead: I also make this further request to my dear wife, that as she has been troubled with an old fool, she will not think of marrying a second.

CATHERINE WILLIAMS,

Late of Lambeth; proved July, 1796.—To Mrs. Elizabeth Paxton, ten pounds, and five pounds a-year, to be paid weekly, by my husband, to take care of my cats and dogs, as long as any of them shall live; and my desire is, that she will take great care of them, neither let them be killed or lost. To my servant boy, George Smith, ten pounds, and my Jackass, to get his living with, as he is fond of traffic.

BY THE VERY CONSTITUTION OF OUR NATURE MORAL EVIL IS ITS OWN CURSE.

THE LOLLARDS' PRISON.

LAMBETH PALACE.

Lambeth Palace is one of the most interesting old buildings on the banks of the Thames. It was built by Archbishop Morton, at the close of the 15th century. Close beside it is the old brick gate-house of the palace, for more than six centuries the residence of the Archbishops of Canterbury. It consists of two square towers connected by an embattled recessed centre; the whole built of red brick, with stone quoins, the bricks arranged in an ornamental manner by the introduction of coloured glaze, forming a large chequered pattern over the surface, a fashion first introduced in the reign of Henry VII., when these towers were erected. There is a spacious arched gateway and postern in the central recess. At this gate the dole immemorially given to the poor by the Archbishop of Canterbury is constantly distributed. It consists of fifteen quartern loaves, nine stone of beef, and five shillings' worth of halfpence, divided into three equal portions, and distributed every Sunday, Tuesday, and Thursday among thirty poor parishioners of Lambeth, the beef being made into broth and served in pitchers. In these towers is the Record Room, filled with ancient archives connected with the See of Canterbury. There is also a small prison here, walled with stone, and fitted with three strong rings of iron for the security of prisoners, one of whom—Richard Grafton—has recorded his name upon the walls. On the water-side, the gate-house is connected by a long brick wall with the Lollards' Tower. Above this wall may be seen the noble old hall (now converted into a library) built by Archbishop Juxon in the reign of Charles II. It is constructed of dark red brick, dressed with stone, and having a series of bold buttresses. The lantern which surmounts the centre of the roof is crowned by a vane, upon which is exhibited the arms of the See of Canterbury, impaled with those of Archbishop Juxon, and crowned with the mitre of the See. The Lollards' Tower is faced with stone towards the river, and still bears on that side the arms of Archbishop Chichely, by whom it was built in 1435; beneath them is an ornamented niche, where a figure of St. Thomas-a-Beckett was once placed. The prison is in the small adjoining tower, only to be entered by a steep staircase leading from the larger one. It is seen to the extreme left of our view,—a narrrow irregularly-shaped room, fastened by an oaken door, formed of three layers of wood strongly riveted, and studded with great nails, the door case being of arched stone. The room is about eight feet in height, nearly fifteen in length, and eleven feet wide; lighted by two deeply-recessed narrow windows. The walls and ceiling are thickly covered with wood. A modern author has imagined that this was for the "comfort" of the prisoners; such an idea did not exist in the old times. It was intended to deaden all sound of the voice, either in talking or under the influence of torture, and is upon "the approved model" of the horrible dungeons of Germany and Italy, which were similarly constructed. A few names and inscriptions have been cut in this wood by unhappy prisoners once confined here The rings which chained them still remain. These lonely walks speak loudly of the nature of the good old times, when "dissent" led quickly to "death." Though popularly known as "The Lollards'" Tower, it cannot be proved with certainty that Wickliffe's followers were imprisoned here; but the great Reformer was examined in the old chapel of this palace, and it is more than probable that some of his sect were here confined. The inscriptions above-named seem to belong to the era of Henry VIII.

We cannot here dwell on the interesting associations this venerable palace conjures up in the mind, nor attempt to record the varied impressions that arise from a visit within its ancient walls. One of its most picturesque rooms is the Guard Chamber. It is mentioned by that name as early as 1424, and in it Archbishop Laud held his state on the day of his consecration. The roof is singularly elegant, with oaken ribs richly carved; it was admirably restored in 1832, having been previously hidden by a flat ceiling of plaister.

Strange Antipathies.

The following are a few of the more striking manifestations of that unaccountable feeling of antipathy to certain objects, to which so many persons are subject, and with instances of which—in a modified form perhaps—most people are acquainted:—

Erasmus, though a native of Rotterdam, had such an aversion to fish, that the smell of it threw him into a fever.

Ambrose Pare mentions a gentleman who could never see an eel without fainting.

There is an account of another gentleman, who would fall into convulsions at the sight of a carp.

A lady, a native of France, always fainted on seeing boiled lobsters. Other persons from the same country experienced the same inconvenience from the smell of roses, though they were particularly partial to the odour of jonquils or tuberoses.

Joseph Scaliger and Peter Abono never could drink milk.

Cardan was particularly disgusted at the sight of eggs.

Udalisdus, king of Poland, could not bear to see apples.

If an apple was shown to Chesne, secretary to Francis I., he bled at the nose.

A gentleman in the court of the Emperor Ferdinand, would bleed at the nose on hearing the mewing of a cat, however great the distance might be from him.

Henry III. of France could never sit in a room with a cat.

The Duke of Schomberg had the same aversion.

M. de Lancre gives an account of a very sensible man who was so terrified at seeing a hedgehog, that for two years he imagined his bowels were knawed by such an animal.

The same author was intimate with a very brave officer, who was so terrified at the sight of a mouse, that he never dared to look at one unless he had his sword in his hand.

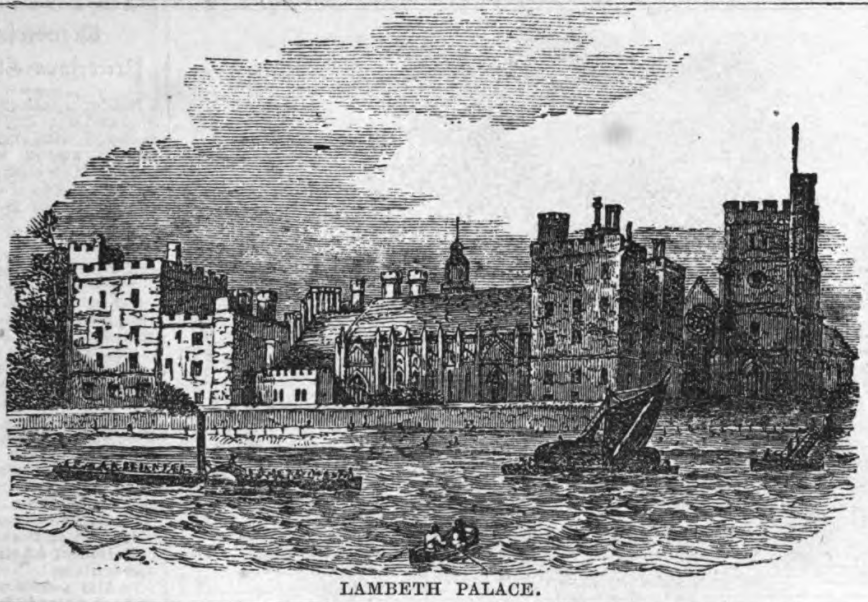

M. Vangheim, a great huntsman in Hanover, would faint, or, if he had sufficient time, would run away at the sight of a roasted pig.

John Rol, a gentleman in Alcantara, would swoon on hearing the word lana (wool) pronounced, although his cloak was woollen.

La Mothe le Vayer could not endure the sound of musical instruments, though he experienced a lively pleasure whenever it thundered.

The Philosophical Boyle could not conquer a strong aversion to the sound of water running through a pipe.

The Author of the Turkish Spy tells us that he would rather encounter a lion in the deserts of Arabia, provided he had but a sword in his hand, than feel a spider crawling on him in the dark. He observes, that there is no reason to be given for these secret dislikes. He humourously attributes them to the doctrine of the transmigration of the soul; and as regarded himself, he supposed he had been a fly before he came into this body, and that having been frequently persecuted with spiders, he still retained the dread of his old enemy.

CHELSEA HOSPITAL.

Of Chelsea Hospital the front view is the most striking; for, though it does not possess any very remarkable architectural feature, it has a certain "nobility of look," and all its associations are of great interest. The foundation of the hospital, or, as its inmates prefer to call it, "the College," is known to have been one of the few good deeds of the voluptuary, Charles II., being an exception to the rule as regarded the sovereign

"Who never said a foolish thing,
And never did a wise one."

There is a tradition, but it is without proof, that "the merry Monarch" was influenced to this merciful act by his mistress, Nell Gwynne. Be it as it may, it is a fortunate circumstance for the country. Many a battle has been won for these kingdoms by the knowledge that the maimed soldier can never be a deserted beggar—by the certainty that honourable scars will be healed by other ointment than that of mere pity—by the assurance that shelter and comfort are prepared for the wounded or aged, of whom a nation becomes the guardian and protector. In this "Palace Hospital" are contained—so that all visitors as well as inmates may continually see them—various trophies taken at victories gained by British soldiers over those of France: it is a proud as well as numerous collection.

"It has been often remarked by foreigners," says Faulkner, in his account of Chelsea, "that the charitable foundations of England were more fitted, by their grandeur and extent, for the residence of kings; while her palaces, by their external appearance, seemed better calculated for the reception of the needy and unfortunate. But surely they could not have paid a nation a greater honour; and when we survey the noble fabrics at Chelsea and at Greenwich, we cannot but feel proud that we live in a country which constantly affords an asylum to the helpless wanderer; which relieves the wants of the needy, and allays the sufferings of the sick to an extent, and with a liberality, unknown throughout the rest of Europe."

This edifice stands upon the site of a college founded by King James I. for the study of polemical divinity. James laid the first stone in May, 1609, and in the same month of the succeeding year granted a charter of incorporation, in which the number of members was limited to nineteen, and a provost, and the institution was to be named "King James's College" In the year 1669, Charles gave the ground and buildings to the Royal Society, and the society sold them again to Sir Stephen Fox, Lord Commissioner of the Treasury.

On the 12th of March, 1682, Charles, attended by his principal courtiers, laid the first stone of the present Hospital buildings, and Sir Christopher Wren was the architect. The entire building was not completed till 1690, and the total cost is said to have been £150,000. It accomodates about 400 inmates. The colonnade and portico toward the river afford an agreeably sheltered walk for the old men in bad weather, and communicates between the two wings. The hall is spacious, and in it is a large allegorical picture of Charles II. on horseback, by Verrio. The chapel has an altar-piece by Sebastian Ricci, painted when he visited this country in the reign of Anne; it represents the resurrection of our Saviour.

Battersea Park has been laid out within the last 10 or 12 years; it is therefore in its infancy, but to the next generation it will be one of the chief ornaments of the metropolitan suburbs. From it we look upon the old wooden bridge, and the Dutch-looking church and village of Chelsea. Beyond the hospital is the NEW BRIDGE, constructed by Thomas Page, Esq.; it is a toll bridge, and it has been pleasantly said that "Government gave a park to the people, and placed a toll-bar at the gate to keep them out of it." This bridge is the most beautiful of the many that cross the Thames between its source and its fall into the sea.

Wonderfully Precocious Children.

Baillet mentions one hundred and sixty-three children endowed with extraordinary talents, among whom few arrived at an advanced age.

The two sons of Quintilian, so vaunted by their father, did not reach their tenth year.

Hermogenes, who, at the age of fifteen, taught rhetoric to Marcus Aurelius, who triumphed over the most celebrated rhetoricians of Greece, did not die, but at twenty-four lost his faculties, and forgot all he had previously acquired

Pica di Mirandola died at thirty-two; Johannas Secundus at twenty-five, having at the age of fifteen composed admirable Greek and Latin verses, and became profoundly versed in jurisprudence and letters.

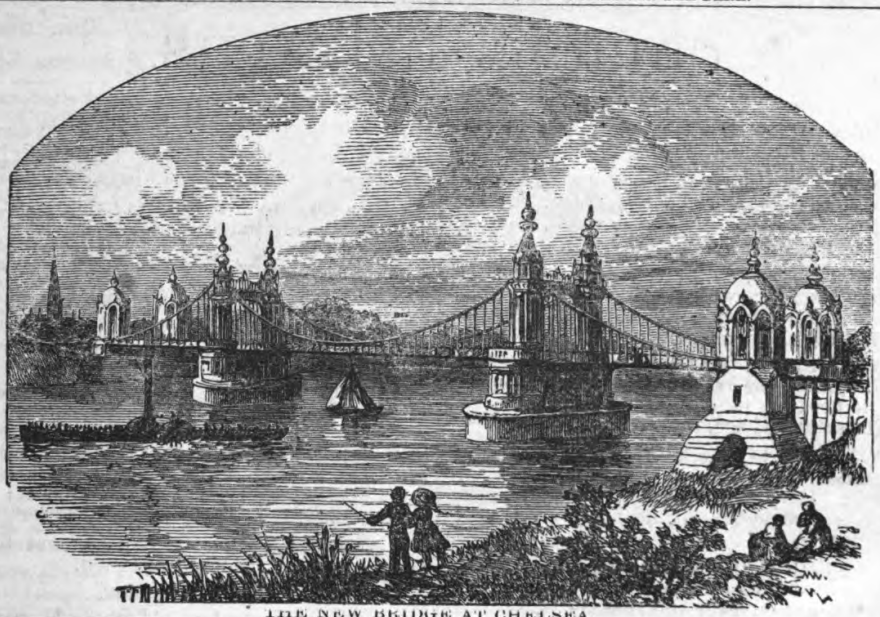

Pascal, whose genius developed itself at ten years old, did not attain the third of a century.

In 1791 a child was born at Lubeck, named Henri Heinekem, whose precocity was miraculous. At ten months of age, he spoke distinctly; at twelve, learnt the Pentateuch by rote, and at fourteen months was perfectly acquainted with the Old and New Testaments. At two years of age he was as familiar with Ancient History as the most erudite authors of antiquity. Sanson and Danville only could compete with him in geographical knowledge; Cicero would have thought him an "alter ego" on hearing him converse in Latin; and in modern languages he was equally proficient. This wonderful child was unfortunately carried off in his fourth year. According to a popular proverb,—"The sword wore out the sheath."

In the year 1732 a girl about nine years of age, the daughter of a sieve-maker, of Chateford, in France, was exhibited for a show, having been born with a Latin inscription round the sight of her eye, exactly resembling that upon a French crown, viz.: LUD. XV. D.G. FR. ET NAV. REX. The girl was presented to their Majesties at Marly, as a great curiosity, and a wonderful lusus naturæ.

Wonderful Trees.

"We saw on the slope of the Cerra Dnida," says M. Humboldt, "shirt trees, fifty feet high. The Indians cut off cylindrical pieces two feet in diameter, from which they peel the red and fibrous bark, without making any longitudinal incision. This bark affords them a sort of garment which resembles a sack of a very coarse texture, and without a seam. The upper opening serves for the head, and two lateral holes are cut to admit the arms. The natives wear these shirts of Marina in the rainy season; they have the form of the ponchos and manos of cotton which are so common in New Grenada, at Quito, and in Peru. As in this climate the riches and beneficence of nature are regarded as the primary causes of the indolence of the inhabitants, the missionaries do not fail to say in showing the shirts of Marina, 'in the forests of Oroonoko, garments are found ready made upon the trees.'"

HE WHO CAN TAKE ADVICE IS SOMETIMES SUPERIOR TO HIM WHO CAN GIVE IT

CURIOUS EPITAPHS.

The following epitaph is to be found in the churchyard of Upton-on-Severn:—

Beneath this stone, in hopes of Zion,
Doth lie the landlord of the "Lion."
His son keeps on the business still,
Resigned unto the heavenly will.

Cherening-le-Clay, in Dorsetshire, rejoices in the next. After recording the death of his beloved wife, Ann Hughes, the afflicted husband breaks forth in this pious strain:—

Who far below this tomb doth rest,
Has joined the army of the blest.
The Lord has ta'en her to the sky,
The saints rejoice, and so do I.

At Fosbrooke, in Northumberland, Matthew Hollingshead deplores his untimely doom in these lines. It will be observed that, although Matthew is circumstantial, he is by no means grammatical:—

Here lieth Matthew Hollingshead,
Who died from cold caught in his head.
It brought on fever and rheumatiz,
Which ended me—for here I is.

At Elsham, in Northamptonshire, can be found the epitaph of Mr. Freer:—

My name it was Nathaniel Freer,
I lived and laughed, but now I'm here.
Such as I am, such must you be;
Then make your game and follow me.

The following are gathered from churchyards at Land's-end:—

Belgium me birth, Britaine me breeding gave,
Cornwall a wife, ten children, and a grave.

Our life is but a winter's day,
Some only breakfast and away;
Others to dinner stay and are full fed,
The oldest only sups and goes to bed;
Large is his debt who lingers out the day,
Who goes the soonest has the least to pay.
Died September 22nd, 1832, aged 36 years.

Farewell, my wife and father dear;
No engine powers now do I fear.
My glass is run, my work is done,
And now my head lies quiet here.
That many an engine I've set up,
And got great praise from men,
I made them work on British ground,
And on the roaring seas;
My engine's stopp'd, my valves are bad,
And lies so deep within;
No engineer could there be found
To put me new ones in.
But Jesus Christ converted me,
And took me up above.
I hope once more to meet once more,
And sing redeeming love.

In Sevenoaks churchyard, Kent:—

Grim death took me without any warning;
I was well at night, and dead at nine in the morning.

At Penryn:—

Here lies William Smith: and what is somewhat rarish,
He was born, bred, and hang'd in this here parish.

At Staverton:—

Here lieth the body of Betty Bowden,
Who would live longer but she couden;
Sorrow and grief made her decay,
Till her bad leg carried her away.

Epitaph on a bachelor in Ash churchyard:—

Poor John Thomas, here he lies;
No one laughs, no one cries;
Where he's gone, and how he fares,
No one knows, and no one cares.

In Milton churchyard, Kent:—

This world's a city full of crooked streets;
Death is the market-place where each one meets.

If life were only merchandise to buy,
The rich would live, the poor alone would die.

In the Cathedral churchyard, Winchester:—

To the Memory of Thomas Fletcher.

Here lies in peace a Hampshire grenadier,
Who caught his death by drinking cold small-beer;
Soldiers be wise from his untimely fall,
And, when you're hot, drink strong or none at all.

On a Wife (by her husband.)—

Beneath this stone lies Katherine, my wife,
In death my comfort, and my plague through life.
Oh! liberty!—but soft, I must not boast;
She'll haunt me else, by jingo, with her ghost!

On the death of a most amiable and beautiful young lady, of the name of Peach.

BY MR. BISSET.

Death long had wish'd within his reach,
So sweet, so delicate a Peach:
He struck the Tree—the trunk lay mute;
But Angels bore away the Fruit!

At Arlington, near Paris:—

Here lie

Two grandmothers, with their two granddaughters
Two husbands with their two wives,
Two fathers with their two daughters,
Two mothers with their two sons,
Two maidens with their two mothers,
Two sisters with their two brothers,
Yet but six corps in all lie buried here,
All born legitimate, and from incest clear.

The above may be thus explained:—

Two widows, that were sisters-in-law, had each a son, who married each other's mother, and by them had each a daughter. Suppose one widow's name Mary, and her son's name John, and the other widow's name Sarah, and her son's James; this answers the fourth line. Then suppose John married Sarah, and had a daughter by her, and James married Mary, and had a daughter also, these marriages answer the first, second, third, fifth, and sixth lines of the epitaph.

Here lies Peg, that drunken sot,
Who dearly loved her jug and pot;
There she lies, as sure as can be,
She killed herself by drinking brandy.

On a man who had a remarkably wide mouth:—

Here lies a man, as God shall me save,
Whose mouth was wide, as is his grave;
Reader, tread lightly o'er his sod,
For, if he gapes, you're gone, by G—d.

CHISWICK.

The illustrious Hogarth is buried in this churchyard, and the following lines, by David Garrick, are inscribed on the tomb:—

Farewell! great painter of mankind,
Who reached the noblest point of art,
Whose pictur'd morals charms the mind,
And through the eye correct the heart.

If genius fire thee, reader, stay,
If nature move thee, drop a tear,
If neither touch thee, turn away,
For Hogarth's honour'd dust lies here.

NORTHAMPTON.

Here lies the corpse of Susan Lee,
Who died of heartfelt pain;
Because she loed a faithless he,
Who loved not her again.

IDLENESS IS THE SEPULCHRE OF A LIVING MAN.

DEEP RIVERS MOVE IN SILENCE, SHALLOW BROOKS ARE NOISY.

CURIOSITIES OF SCIENCE.

AS EVERY THREAD OF GOLD IS VALUABLE, SO IS EVERY MINUTE OF TIME.

HE IS A FOOL WHO CANNOT BE ANGRY; BUT HE IS A WISE MAN WHO WILL NOT.

COMPRESSION OF BODIES.

Sir John Leslie observes, that air compressed into the fiftieth part of its volume has its elasticity fifty times augmented: if it continued to contract at that rate, it would, from its own incumbent weight, acquire the density of water at the depth of thirty-four miles. But water itself would have its density doubled at the depth of ninety-three miles, and would attain the density of quicksilver at the depth of 362 miles. In descending, therefore, towards the centre, through nearly 4000 miles, the condensation of ordinary substances would surpa s the utmost powers of conception. Dr. Young says, that steel would be compressed into one-fourth, and stone into one-eighth, of its bulk at the earth's centre.—Mrs. Somerville.

DURATION OF THE PYRAMID.

The great reason of the duration of the pyramid above all other forms is, that it is most fitted to resist the force of gravitation. Thus the Pyramids of Egypt are the oldest monuments in the world.

VELOCITY OF LIGHT.

It is scarcely possible so to strain the imagination as to conceive the Velocity with which Light travels. "What mere assertion will make any man believe," asks Sir John Herschel, "that in one second of time, in one beat of the pendulum of a clock, a ray of light travels over 192,000 miles; and would therefore perform the tour of the world in about the same time that it requires to wink with our eyelids, and in much less time than a swift runner occupies in taking a single stride?" Were a cannon-ball shot directly towards the sun, and were it to maintain its full speed, it would be twenty years in reaching it; and yet light travels through this space in seven or eight minutes.

The result given in the Annuaire for 1862 for the velocity of light in a second is 77,000 leagues, which corresponds to 215,834 miles; while that obtained at the Pulkowa Observatory is 189,746 miles. William Richardson gives as the result of the passage of light from the sun to the earth 8′ 19″ ·28, from which we obtain a velocity of 215'392 miles in a second.—Memoirs of the Astronomical Society, vol. iv.

INFINITE SPACE.

After the straining mind has exhausted all its resources in attempting to fathom the distance of the smallest telescopic star, or the faintest nebula, it has reached only the visible confines of the sidereal creation. The universe of stars is but an atom in the universe of space; above it, and beneath it, and around it, there is still infinity.

WHAT IS COAL?

The whole evidence we possess as to the nature of coal proves it to have been originally a mass of vegetable matter. Its microscopical characters point to its having been formed on the spot in which we find it, to its being composed of vegetable tissues of various kinds, separated and changed by maceration, pressure, and chemical action, and to the introduction of its earthy matter, in a large number of instances, in a state of solution or fine molecular subdvision. Dr. Redfern, from whose communication to the British Association we quote, knows nothing to countenance the supposition that our coal beds are mainly formed of coniferous wood, because the structures found in mother-coal, or the charcoal layer, have not the character of the glandular tissue of such wood, as has been asserted.

Geological research has shown that the immense forests from which our coal is formed teemed with life. A frog as large as an ox existed in the swamps, and the existence of insects proves that the higher order of organic creation flourished at this epoch.

It has been calculated that the available coal-beds in Lancashire amount in weight to the enormous sum of 8.400,000,000 tons. The total annual consumption of this coal, it has been estimated, amounts to 2,400,120 tons; hence it is inferred that the coal-beds of Lancashire, at the present rate of consumption, will last 2470 years. Making similar calculations for the coal-fields of South Wales, the north of England, and Scotland, it will readily be perceived how ridiculous were the forebodings which lecturing geologists delighted to indulge in a few years ago.

THE END OF THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

When all the phenomena in the heavens indicate a law of progressive creation, in which revolving matter is distributed into suns and planets, there are indications in our own system that a period has been assigned for its duration, which, sooner or later, it must reach. The medium which fills universal space, whether it be a luminiferous ether, or arise from the indefinite expansion of planetary atmospheres, must retard the bodies which move in it, even were it 360,000 millions of times more rare than atmospheric air: and, with its time of revolution gradually shortening, the satellite must return to its planet, the planet to its sun, and the sun to its primeval nebula. The fate of our system, thus deduced from mechanical laws, must be the fate of all others. Motion cannot be perpetuated in a resisting medium; and where there exist disturbing forces, there must be primarily derangement, and ultimately ruin. From the great central mass, heat may again be summoned to exhale nebulous matter; chemical forces may again produce motion, and motion may again generate systems; but, as in the recurring catastrophes which have desolated our earth, the great First Cause must preside at the dawn of each cosmical cycle; and, as in the animal races which were successively reproduced, new celestlal creations of a nobler form of beauty and of a higher form of permanence may yet appear in the sidereal universe. "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth, and the former shall not be remembered." "The new heavens and the new earth shall remain before me." "Let us look, then, according to this promise, for the new heavens and the new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness."—North British Review, No. 3.

THE MOON SEEN THROUGH LORD ROSSE'S TELESCOPE.

In 1846, the Rev. Dr. Scoresby had the gratification of observing the Moon through the stupendous telescope constructed by Lord Rosse at Parsonstown It appeared like a globe of molten silver, and every object to the extent of 100 yards was quite visible. Edifices, therefore, of the size of York Minster, or even of the ruins of Whitby Abbey, might be easily perceived, if they had existed. But there was no appearance of anything of that nature; neither was there any indication of the existence of water, or of an atmosphere. There were a great number of extinct volcanoes, several miles in breadth; through one of them there was a line of continuance about 150 miles in length, which ran in a straight direction, like a railway. The general appearance, however, was like one vast ruin of nature; and many of the pieces of rock driven out of the volcanoes appeared to lie at various distances.

THE MOON AND THE WEATHER.

The only influence of the Moon on the Weather of which we have any decisive evidence is the tendency to disappearance of clouds under the full moon, which Sir John Herschel refers to its heat being much more readily absorbed in traversing transparent media than direct solar heat, and being extinguished in the upper regions of our atmosphere never reaches the surface of the atmosphere at all.

A PAGE WORTH READING.

Eccentricities of Eminent Men.

Mozart, whose light hair was of a fine quality, wore it very long and flowing down between his shoulders, with a tie of coloured ribbon confining it at the neck.

Pope's self-love was so great, that, according to Johnson, he 'had been flattered till he thought himself one of the moving powers in the system of life.'

Penuriousness, unhappily, has been too commonly associated with learning and fame.

Cato, the censor, on his return from Spain, was so parsimonious that he sold his field-horse, to save the expense of conveying the animal by sea to Italy.

Attilius Regulus, at the period of his greatest glory in Africa, entreated permission to return home to the management of his estate, which consisted but of seven acres.

Lord Bacon is a melancholy instance of the dominion obtained by avarice over a great mind.

Swift, in his old age, was avaricious, and had an absolute terror of visitors.

Sir Richard Steele, Fielding, and Sterne, shared the prevailing taste for hard drinking.

Pope, who was somewhat of an epicure, when staying at the house of his friend Lord Bolinbroke, would lie in bed for days together, unless he heard there was to be stewed lampreys for dinner, when he would forthwith arise, and make his appearance at table.

Dr. Johnson had a voracious liking for a leg of mutton. 'At my Aunt Ford's,' he said, 'I ate so much of a leg of mutton, that she used to talk of it.'

Shelley was for many years a vegetarian; and in the notes to his earliest edition of "Queen Mab," speaks with enthusiasm of a dinner of "greens, potatoes, and turnips."

Handel ate enormously; and Dr. Kitchener relates of him, that whenever he dined at a tavern, he ordered dinner for three. On being told that all was ready as soon as the company should arrive he would exclaim: 'Den pring up de dinner prestissimo—I am de gombany!"

Paley, the author of "Natural Theology," was so much given to angling, that he had his portrait painted with a rod and line in his hand.

Thomas Warton, the poetical antiquary, used to associate with the schoolboys, while visiting his brother.

Cowper kept hares, and made birdcages.

Dr. Johnson was so fond of his cat, that he would even go out himself to buy oysters for Puss, because his servant was too proud to do so.

Thompson had his garden at Richmond, where he ate peaches off the trees with his hands in his pockets.

Henri Quatre delighted to go about in disguise among the peasantry.

Oliver Cromwell would sometimes play at Blind-man's-buff, with his daughters and attendants

Charles II. amused himself by feeding ducks in St. James's Park, and in rearing numbers of beautiful spaniels.

Beethoven would splash in cold water at all times of the day, till his chamber was swamped.

Shelley delighted in floating paper boats on any water he chanced to be near.

Old English Superstitions.

All texts heard in a church to be remembered by the congregation, for they must be repeated at the day of judgment.

If the clock strikes while the text is being given, a death may be expected in the parish.

A death in the parish during the Christmas-tide, is a token of many deaths in the year.

When a corpse is laid out, a plate of salt is laid on the che t of the corpse.

None can die comfortably under the cross-beam of a house.

Ticks in the oak-beams of old houses, or death watches so called, warn the inhabitants of that dwelling of some misfortune.

Coffin rings, when dug out of a grave, are worn to keep off the cramp.

Water from the font is good for ague and rheumatism.

No moon, in its change, ought to be seen through a window.

Turn your money on hearing the first cuckoo.

Should a corpse be ever carried through any path, &c., that path cannot be done away with.

The howling of dogs, the continued croaking of ravens over the house, and the ticking of the death-watch, portend death. The magpie is a bird of good or ill omen, according to the number seen at a time:

"One for sorrow; two for mirth;
Three for a wedding; four for death."

Particular honour is paid to the robin and the wren. The distich says:—

"He that hurts a robin or a wren,
Will never prosper sea nor land."

This gives them a protection which the most mischievous urchin never dares to violate.

The killing the first adder you see predicts that you will triumph over your enemies. The slough of an adder, hung on the rafters, preserves the house against fire.

The cricket is a bringer of good luck, and its departure from a house is a sign of coming misfortune.

There is scarcely a sensation but has its meaning. If the left palm itches, you will have to pay money; if the right, to receive. If the knee itches, you will kneel in a strange church; if the sole of the foot, you will walk over strange ground; if the elbow, you will sleep with a strange bed-fellow. If the ear tingles, you will hear sudden news. If you shiver, some one is walking over the spot destined to be your grave. The dirgeful singing of children portends a funeral. If the cheek burns, some one is talking scandal of you. The following lines are frequently heard spoken by the person whose cheek is burning:—

"Right cheek! left cheek! why do you burn?
Cursed be she who hath done me any harm:
If she be a maid, let her be slaid;
If she be a widow, long let her mourn;
But if it be my own true love, burn, cheek, burn."

Children, when stung by nettles, have great faith in the antidotal properties of the dock; and whilst rubbing it into the part in pain, repeat the words, "Out nettle, in dock—nettle, nettle stung me."

A crowing hen is a bird of ill luck. An old proverb in use says:—"A whistling woman, and a crowing hen, are two of the unluckiest things under the sun."

Remarkable Marriages.

William Haseling, who died in 1773, aged 112 years, married and buried two wives after he was 100 years old; and the third, who survived him, he married at the age of 110 years.

John Roven and his wife, of Temeswar, in Hungary, who both died in 1741, lived together in the married state 147 years.

Mrs. Adamson, of Grange, Essex, who died in 1748, had 5 husbands.

Daniel McCurtley, of the county of Kerry, Ireland, died in 1752, aged 111 years. At the age of 80 years he married a fifth wife, aged no more than 15 years, and had by her twenty children.

John Wolney, of Glasgow, who died in the year 1757, aged 124 years, had, during the course of his life, eleven wives, all of whom lived with him on affectionate terms to the time of their death.

Charles Cotterel and his wife, of Philadelphia, North America, who died in 1761, lived together in the married state 98 years, in great union and harmony, and died within four days of each other, the husband aged 120, and the wife 115 years.

Robert Ogilbie and his wife, of Ripon, Yorkshire, lived together in the married state 73 years, and had twelve sons and thirteen daughters. The husband was 115 years old when he died, in 1762; and the wife, who died some years earlier, was aged 106 years.

Isaac Hibbitts, who died in th county of Galway, in the year 1790, at the age of 100 years, lived a bachelor until he was 70 years old; from that time to the period of his death—thirty years—he married seven, and buried six wives, by all of whom he had children.

William Ritchie, in the parish of Rutho, in Scotland, who died in the year 1791, had been twice married, and was the father of 22 children, which were, without any deviation from the rule, alternately a son and a daughter.

William Giseman, of Killintown, Ireland, who died in 1797, aged 109 years, was five times married: his fifth wife brought him two fine boys, about eighteen months before his death.

Madeline D'acre, of St. Germain en-laye, France, who died in 1845, aged 101 years, had by one husband 22 sons and one daughter, all of whom she reared to maturity but one. Nineteen of her sons perished in battle.

Mr. and Mrs. Plaisance, of Red-Moor-Fen, Isle of Ely, who died in the year 1845, had lived together in the matrimonial state for 85 years. This venerable couple died on the same day, the husband aged 107, and the wife 105 years: they left a daughter aged 84.

It has often been said figuratively that marriage is a lottery; but we do not recollect to have met with a practical illustration of the truth of the simile, before the following, which is a free translation of an advertisement in the Louisiana Gazette:—"A young man of good figure and disposition, unable, though desirous to procure a wife, without the preliminary trouble of amassing a fortune, proposes the following expedient to attain the object of his wishes. He offers himself as the prize of a lottery to all widows and virgins under 32. The number of tickets to be 600, at 50 dollars each. But one number to be drawn from the wheel, the fortunate proprietor of which is to be entitled to himself and the 30,000 dollars."

GARDENING OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR.

JANUARY.

Trench and manure, prepare hot-beds for asparagus, cucumbers, mint, potatoes, and the small salads. Sow the brown Dutch and grand admiral cabbages, curled parsley for transplanting; frame peas, horn carrots, mazagan beans, onions (to be allowed to grow large); plant out cabbage plants to succeed those which have been planted out in autumn.

FEBRUARY.

All the ground which is destined for early crops must now be prepared, and hot-beds be multiplied for cucumbers and early melons. Celery may be sown on a moderate hot-bed; also, sow cabbages, horn carrots, lettuces, leeks, parsnips, and in fact most of the table vegetables. Those plants, such as cabbages, chives, garlic, shalots, under ground onions, and horseradish, which are fit, should now be transplanted.

MARCH.

In open borders sow asparagus, cabbages, carrots, curled and Hamburgh parsley, Neapolitan kale, parsnips, onions, &c.; plant out such vegetables as have been already sown. Before sowing, dig carefully, and make the ground level and fine. Main crops may be sown in this month, such as early long-pod beans, peas, celery, turnips, and, indeed, most other vegetables. Mustard, cress, lettuce, spinach, and radishes, may be sown every week or fortnight, for succession. Chives, shalots, garlic, &c., may be planted; plant rhubarb, potatoes, and Jerusalem artichokes. Cuttings or slips of sweet herbs may be planted

APRIL.

Planting the vegetables which have been sown is now the chief business. Make hot-beds for cucumbers and melons; force kidney beans and Elford rhubarb. Plant out artichokes and potatoes; sow asparagus, beets, cabbages, celery, garden and kidney beans, Dutch turnips, lettuces, peas, radishes, small salading.

MAY

Sow carrots, lettuce, capsicums, cauliflowers, spinach, Knight's marrow-fat peas, &c. Transplant cabbages, winter greens, lettuces, and celery. Hoe and stake peas, water newly planted crops, and propagate aromatic plants by slips and cuttings. Protect from wind and rain choice tulips, ranunculuses, and anemonies. Propagate herbaceous plants by dividing the roots; wall-flowers, sweet-williams, and rockets, by slips; and China roses, heliotropiums, &c., by cuttings.

JUNE.

Sow cape brocoli, kidney beans, peas, lettuces, radishes, campions, spinach, small salading, &c. The best peas for sowing now are Knight's marrow peas; they will bear till October. Hoe the beds of table vegetables, and pick out the most curled plants of curled parsley, cress, and chervil, for seed. Watering the freshly-planted crops must now be attended to in dry weather in the evenings, or very early in the mornings. Weeding and thinning out are also of importance, as well as hoeing, particularly with potatoes, cabbages, and peas.

JULY.

Plant cabbages, savoys, coleworts, brocoli, lettuce, celery, &c. Train and regulate the summer shoots both of wall trees and standards; prune vine and fig-trees, and shade ripe currents that are exposed to the full blaze of the sun. Place nets on the cherries to protect them from birds. Take up garlic, onions, and shalots, as their leaves begin to decay.

AUGUST.

Both cabbages, brocoli, endive, spinach, Welsh onions, turnips, and radishes should now be sown. The celery sown should be planted, and that already planted, as well as cardoons, should be earthed up.

SEPTEMBER.

Sow vegetable seed for a spring crop. Prick out cabbage plants, and gather ripe seeds. Endive and lettuce may be planted out on beds sloping to the south-west, and fenced round to drain off water. Hoe and clear the ground about turnips. Cabbage for collards in November, and German greens may be planted early in the month.

OCTOBER.

Sow magazan beans, and frame peas on a warm southern border; lay into the ground purple and white bocoli, within a few inches of their lower leaves, letting their heads face the north; transplant cauliflowers and purple brocoli under frames and hand-glasses; cabbages, garlic, lettuces, and shalots, under frames.

NOVEMBER.

Force seakale, rhubarb, and asparagus; take up endive, brocoli, and cauliflower, and lay them flat in dry ground; transplant suckers taken from the roots of the pear and codling plum, and prepare them for budding and grafting different fruits upon.

DECEMBER

Celery should now be earthed up, and in so careful a manner as not to require the operation again; force asparagus, also rhubarb, and seakale; lay in as early as possible this month the brocoli, purple and white.

GENERAL HINTS.

Operating on the Soil.—Trenching should always follow draining, or the latter will act but partially. Unless the ground be stirred pretty deeply, half the effect of draining will be lost. Both must be done in the autumn or early part of the winter, and the ground will then be in a good state for cropping in spring. Manuring may be done in early winter when the ground is somewhat frozen, as the material can then be wheeled on with greater ease, and the grounds and paths will be less cut up. Light.—Want of light is often the real cause of evils which are popularly ascribed to want of air, though both combined may occasionally be acting. Light may, however, be prejudicial to plants in certain stages, as after fresh planting or potting, when it stimulates them more than their crippled roots will bear. Dull weather is, therefore, best for both potting and planting, and a little shade after either process may often be beneficial.

TO TAILORS AND BOOTMAKERS!

OXFORD DÉPÔT FOR

NEWTON WILSON & Co.'s.

WORLD-RENOWNED PRIZE-MEDAL

SEWING MACHINES.

J. COLEGROVE,
75 HIGH STREET, OXFORD,

CALLS special attention to the undermentioned Machines, which may be seen at work at his establishment.

A BOON FOR TAILORS!

THE NEW AMERICAN

BUTTON-HOLE, OVER-SEAMING, & SEWING MACHINE,

Combines all the features of an ordinary sewing machine, with the making of button-holes, eyelet-holes, and over seaming. It makes the best button-hole ever produced, at the rate of 100 per hour, and can be changed in half a minute from button hole to plain sewing.

Prices: 18 and 20 Guineas.

THE ADMIRABLE TAILORS' MACHINE, COMPLETE,
9 Guineas.

IMPORTANT TO BOOTMAKERS.

CIRCULAR FEED MACHINE, 12 Guineas.

Specially adapted for BOOT-CLOSING, Repairing, and Stitching NEW ELASTICS into old side-spring boots.

NEW LOCK-STITCH HAND MACHINES FOR LADIES:—

"Dorcas," 4 Guineas. "Penelope," 5 Guineas.

The hand machines have only been introduced within the last two years. The want of something portable has long been felt, and medical men have frequently and properly interposed objections to the use of the treadle in the case of delicate constitutions. These hand machines meet the difficulty, and supply the want.

NEW FAMILY LOCK-STITCH MACHINE, with TREADLE,
6½ Guineas. Including Tools and Stands.

Illustrated Catalogue Free by Post. Machines Adjusted and Repaired.

IF you want Good-Fitting Apparel, select a Man of Skill; one that will deal with you honestly. My supporters recommend me: every week I have fresh faces at my shop. Such are the favours I require, and such I am sure to get. The reason is obvious: I can (by experience for thirty-five years) compete with any house in the trade; and with respect to materials, I will leave it with those to judge who have favored me with their patronage for the last 14 years. I return all thanks for past favours; and my patrons may depend that I shall still continue those principles which I have hitherto found to gain me support.

My material's good, my work secure,
If you want a good fit, don't pass my door!

THIS Series is produced by an entirely New Process, the Lines being printed direct from Copper Plates by Patented Machinery, thus securing an accuracy and finish much superior to that obtainable by any process hitherto employed. This system has been adopted successfully in France, and being approved by the Emperor, the books so produced are universally adopted in all the Public Schools throughout the Empire.

In the proper Gradation and Arrangement of the Lines, as well as in the Style of Writing and Engraving, much thought and care have been bestowed, and it is believed they will recommend themselves to all Practical Teachers as an improvement upon any existing series.

KINLOCH'S CATALAN.

THESE pure RED and WHITE WINES were introduced into this country by us in 1862, and we are the sole Proprietors and Importers. Their moderate price, their singular delicacy, high character, flavour, and natural fruitiness, combining all the qualities desired in the finest Ports and Sherries, have already made them known in every town in Great Britain, and thus created a new and vast branch of the Wine Trade. Their price brings them within the reach of all, and their quality is so fine that even those accustomed to expensive old Wines can drink them with the greatest pleasure. The great success of our introduction of these Wines has caused them to be imitated. Some Wine Merchants also seek to secure a sale for their Wines by recommending them as "the same as sold under the name of Catalan," but a comparison will show that the Wines are totally dissimilar. We caution our Customers to note that each Bottle of KINLOCH'S Catalan is capsuled and labelled with our Trade Mark, and to see that none but Bottles so marked are under any pretence supplied to them.

"CROWN" RED CATALAN.—Rich, full-bodied fruity flavoured, high-coloured, Port character, with remarkable restorative and strengthening properties, most agreeable to the palate, adapted for present use or laying down. Regularly supplied to Hospitals, Infirmaries, and Dispensaries.

Per Dozen, 20s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 8d. Bottles included.

DRY "CROWN" CATALAN.—An old Wine, dry, deep coloured, and full of flavour.

Per Dozen, 20s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 8d. Bottles included.

It is recommended as infinitely more drinkable & more nourishing, than unmatured Port.

"DIAMOND" RED CATALAN.—Deep coloured, generous, and fruity. Recommended for household use. Invaluable to those to whom a strengthening stimulant is prescribed.

Per Dozen, 17s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 5d. Bottles included.

"STAR" RED CATALAN.—Wine of excellent body and pleasant fruity flavour, and beautiful ruby colour, fit for immediate drinking. It will be approved of by those who think the "Crown" wine too rich and full flavoured.

Per Dozen, 15s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 3d. Bottles included.

"CROWN" WHITE CATALAN.—Full bodied, mellow, delicious, rich nutty flavour, Sherry character, perfectly suitable for a luncheon or after-dinner wine. To test the wonderful fine qualities of this Wine, it must be compared with expensive old East India Sherry.

Per Dozen, 20s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 8d. Bottles included.

"DIAMOND" WHITE CATALAN.—Pale, very soft, and singularly delicate in flavour.

Per Dozen, 17s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 5d. Bottles included.

Admirably suited for household use as a Dinner Wine.

"STAR" WHITE CATALAN.—This Wine will supply a want which has long been felt. It will be liked by those who think the "Crown" Wine too rich and full flavoured.

Per Dozen, 15s.; Per Bottle, 1s. 3d. Bottles included.

Post Office Savings Bank.

By 24 Victoria, cap. 14, deposits of one shilling, or of any number of shillings, or of pounds and shillings, will be received from any depositor at the Post Office Savings Banks, provided the deposit made by such depositor in any one year ending the 31st day of December do not exceed £30, and provided the total amount standing in such depositor's name in the books of the Postmaster-General do not exceed £150, exclusive of interest. When the principal and interest together standing to the credit of any one depositor amount to the sum of £200, all interest will cease, so long as the same funds continue to amount to the said sum of £200.

The interest is calculated to the 31st December in every year, and is then added to, and becomes part of the principal.

A depositor in any legally established Savings bank may transfer his account to the Post Office Savings Bank by simply applying to the managers of the Savings Bank for a certificate of transfer to the Post Office Savings Bank, and the amount of such certificate will be entered to his credit by the Post Office Savings Bank as so much cash. In the same way an account may be transferred from the Post Office Savings Bank to any other legally established savings bank.

Deposits may be made by, or for the benefit of any person under twenty-one years of age, and repayment will be made to such minor, after the age of seven years, in the same manner as if he were of full age. In case of minors under the age of seven years, the declaration must be made by one of the parents, or a friend, on behalf of the minor.

Deposits may be made by married women, and deposits so made, or made by women who shall afterwards marry, will be repaid to any such woman, unless her husband shall give notice of such marriage, in writing, to the Postmaster-General, and shall require payment to be made to him.

Registration of Births, &c.

FOR ENGLAND.

An infant should be registered within six weeks after its birth. No fee is payable; but after 42 days a fee of 7s 6d is chargeable.—Notice should be given of deaths to the district registrar Let this be done early that a certificate may be had to give the minister who performs the funeral service.

FOR SCOTLAND.

An infant must be registered within 21 days after birth.—A marriage must be registered within three days after the occurrence. — A death must be registered within eight days after the event.

THE KING'S STONE.

KINGSTON-ON-THAMES is among the oldest of English towns; and is said to have been "the metropolis of the Anglo-Saxon kings:" certainly it was a famous place when the Romans found and conquered the Britons in this locality; there are indeed arguments for believing that the "ford" which Cæsar crossed was here, and not at Walton; and indications of barrows, fosses, and ramparts of Roman origin are to be found in the neighbourhood. It is also probable that a bridge was constructed by the Romans here, and that a fortress was erected for its protection. The Saxons followed in due course, and here they had many contests with the Danes; but A.D. 838, Egbert convened at Kingston an assembly of ecclesiastics and nobles in council, and here, undoubtedly, many of the Saxon kings were crowned. Its first charter was from King John, and many succeeding sovereigns accorded to it various grants and immunities. During the war between Charles I. and the Parliament, Kingston was the scene of several "fights," being always on the side of the king. Perhaps the most interesting object now to be found in Kingston is "The King's Stone." It had long remained neglected, though not unknown, among disregarded heaps of debris in "the new court-yard," when it occurred to some zealous and intelligent antiquaries that so venerable a relic of remote ages was entitled to some show of respect. It was consequently removed from its degraded position, planted in the centre of the town, and enclosed by a "suitable" iron railing. It is now, therefore, duly and properly honoured, as may be seen by the above engraving.

THE PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT.

The Pyramids of Egypt, especially the two largest of the Pyramids of Jizeh, are the most stupendous masses of building, in stone, that human labour has ever been known to accomplish. The Egyptian Pyramids, of which, large and small, and in different states of preservation, the number is very considerable, are all situated on the west side of the Nile, and they extend, in an irregular line, and in groups, at some distance from each other, from the neighbourhood of Jizeh, in 30° N. lat. as far south as 29° N. lat., a length of between 60 and 70 miles.

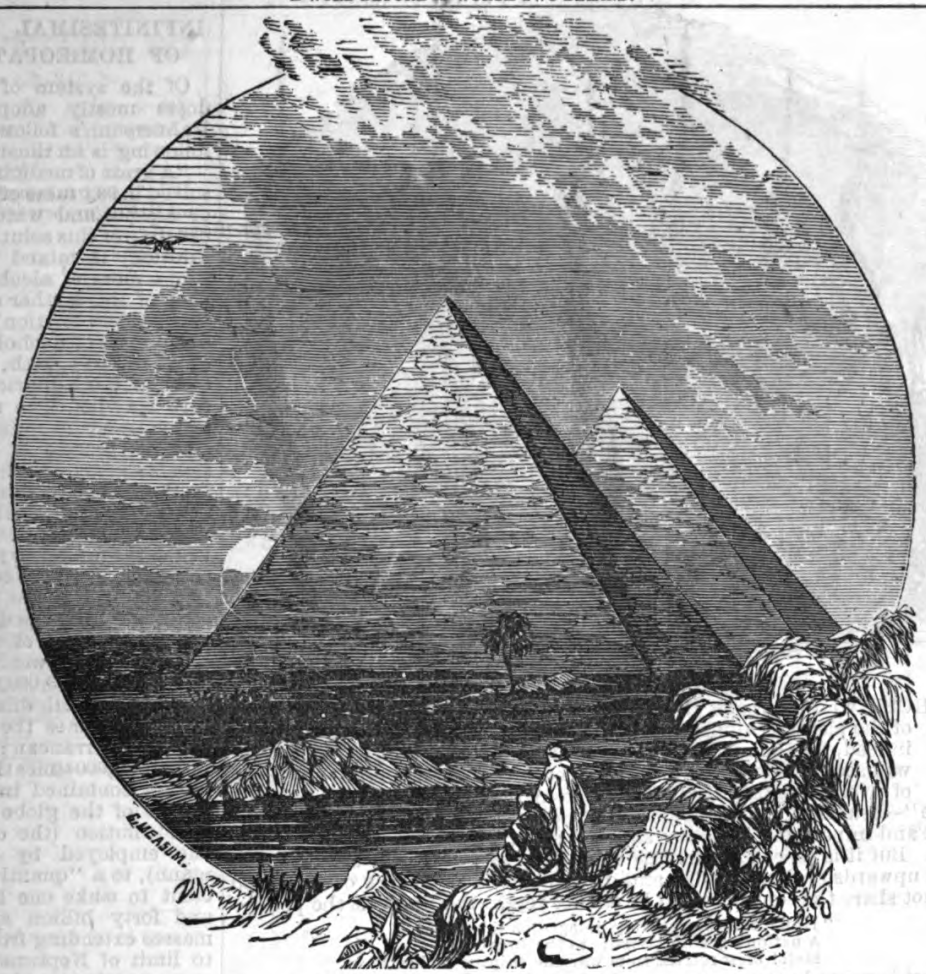

The Pyramids of Jizeh are nearly opposite to Cairo. They stand on a plateau or terrace of limestone, which is a projection from the Libyan mountain-chain. The surface of the terrace is barren and irregular, and is covered with sand and small fragments of rock; its height, measured from the base of the Great Pyramids, is 164 feet above the Nile in its low state, taken at an average of the years 1798 to 1801. The north-east angle of the Great Pyramid is 1700 yards from the canal which runs between the terrace and the Nile, and about five miles from the Nile itself.

Herodotus was informed by the priests of Memphis that the Great Pyramid was built by Cheops, King of Egypt, about 900 B. C., or about 450 years before Herodotus visited Egypt. He says that 100,000 men were employed twenty years in building it, and that the body of Cheops was placed in a room beneath the bottom of the Pyramid, surrounded by a vault to which the waters of the Nile were conveyed through a subterranean tunnel. A chamber under the centre of the Pyramid has indeed been discovered, but it does not appear to be the tomb of Cheops. It is about 56 feet above the low-water level of the Nile. The second Pyramid was built, Herodotus says, by Cephren, or Cephrenes, the brother and successor of Cheops; and the third by Mycerinus, the son of Cheops.

THE GREAT FROST OF 1814.

Few events in the domestic history of this country stand out more prominently than the Great Frost of 1814. Happily, great frosts are by no means common in this climate, and when such an event happens it excites much attention, and is long remembered. Remarkably severe winters occurred in the years 1716, 1788, 1808 and 1814; not to mention others of much earlier date. That of 1716 was celebrated, like the one we are about to describe, by a great fair held on the river Thames.

In the winter of 1813-14, the frost set in about the middle of January. The increase of cold was gradual, and though extremely severe was little felt, on account of its slow increase and the dryness of the air. The houses and trees were soon incrusted with sparkling spiracles, and the glass was covered with thick white frost. On the 26th January a slight thaw took place, and the ice which had formed on the Thames was broken up, and huge masses of it were hurried down the stream with much violence, and sounds like those of artillery. The thaw continued till Sunday the 30th, when a sharp frost again set in, and continued till the following Saturday. On Sunday the 30th January, the Thames was still full of blocks of ice, which were drifting against the bridges, and completely blockading the river. The return of the frost united these together, and on the next day several persons ventured to walk across the river. At one time, seventy persons walked from Queenhithe to the opposite shore; and on the next day the ice was so firmly knit that the tide had no effect whatever in moving it. Soon the river became a scene of festivity, and thousands flocked to see the novel scene which presented itself. On Wednesday Frost Fair was in full favour, and a grand walk was established between Blackfriars and London Bridges, called the "City Road." Several printing presses were erected, and papers commemorative of the "Great Frost" were printed and sold in abundance. On Thursday and Friday the ice seemed as firm as ever, but on Saturday the symptoms were unfavorable. In the evening a shower of rain fell; crack went a large slice of the ice, and away went the portion which had separated from the main body, carrying with it printing presses, booths, and merry-makers, to the dismay of publicans, typographers, and sojourners.

GREENWICH HOSPITAL.

THOSE who approach Greenwich Hospital by driving through any of the pleasant villages that divide it from London—nominally so, indeed, for the road is now a continuation of houses all the way—will see with exceeding delight the glory of England,—the pride of every Englishman! Taken from any point of view it is "a palace"—beautiful in construction, graceful in all its proportions, as grand and imposing a structure as any nation of the modern world can show. But it is especially striking when seen as we voyage the Thames, either upwards or downwards; and dead must be the heart of him who does not share the sentiment—if he cannot repeat the lines—of the poet:—

"Hail! noblest structure, imaged on the wave!
A nation's grateful tribute to the brave:
Hail! blest retreat from war and shipwreck, hail!"

It is not because here many monarchs had their chosen seat, that we

"Kneel and kiss the consecrated earth;"

but because here three thousand veterans repose after years of tempest and battle. The present hospital stands partly on the site of the Old Palace, and during the reign of William and Mary it was dedicated to its high and holy purpose—the good and merciful suggestion emanating from the queen. Although principally the work of the architect Wren, it was added to by successive sovereigns, and finally completed by George II., large sums having been supplied for its "finishing" out of the forfeited estates of the Earl of Derwentwater (in 1715), during the reign of George I. From these estates, the hospital still derives a revenue, augmented from other sources—a small tax upon all seamen, duties arising from certain light-houses, market-rents in the town, and forfeited and unclaimed prize-money.

REMAINS OF CHERTSEY ABBEY, SURREY.

These remains consist of a few stone walls, the graveyard (now a rich garden), and the fish-ponds, which even to-day hold water, by which cattle of the adjacent farm are refreshed. The abbey was founded A.D. 666, and held almost imperial rule over numerous villages, extending its "paternal sway" into Middlesex, and even so far as London, where its mitred abbot had a "fair lodging." It was of the Benedictine order, its foundation being almost coeval with the conversion of the Saxons, by Erchenwald, first abbot of Chertsey, and afterwards Bishop of London. Gradually it grew to be one of the wealthiest and most powerful abbeys of the kingdom, fostered and endowed by nearly every English monarch, from the Conqueror down, until the eighth Henry dissolved it, and gave its rich possessions to the Abbey of Bisham, which, having enjoyed them for a time, relinquished them in turn to various "civilians and laymen." Chertsey Abbey received the remains of the pious but unhappy Henry VI.,—

"Poor key-cold figure of a holy king, Pale ashes of the house of Lancaster,"— subsequently interred at Windsor. Its glory extended far and near; its jurisdiction in Surrey was almost unlimited; its wealth was prodigious; its abbot ranked with princes—and ruled them. It is now difficult to trace its site; of the enormous and very beautiful pile, scarcely one stone remains upon another. Those who delve the adjacent ground rarely do so without disinterring long-buried bones: indications of its ancient glories now and then present themselves—broken capitals, stone coffins, encaustic tiles, and fragments of painted glass; but Chertsey Abbey is little more than an historic memory. Our engraving exhibits all of it that yet remains.

INFINITESIMAL DOSES OF HOMŒOPATHY.

Of the system of minute doses mostly adopted by Hahnemann's followers, the following is an illustration:

"A grain of medicine is dissolved in 99 grains of alcohol, or alcohol and water; then one drop of this solution (first dilution) is mixed with 99 drops more of alcohol; one drop of this further attenuation (second dilution) with 99 drops more of alcohol; and so on to the 10th, 20th, 30th, or 600th to 1000th dilution, as the case may be. The result of this extraordinary and inconceivable process of subdivision is stated by Dr. Simpson, in the form of a calculation, revised by competent mathematical authorities, from which the following are illustrations: At the 6th dilution, had the entire original grain been furnished with its proper amount of alcohol, that quantity would have amounted to 13,000,000 gallons; at the 12th dilution, to a sea six times the size of the Mediterranean; at the 15th, to 46,000 times the whole waters contained in all the oceans of the globe; at the 30th dilution (the ordinary one employed by Hahnemann), to a "quantity sufficient to make one hundred and forty billion spherical masses extending from limit to limit of Neptune's orbit, or a quantity equal to many hundred spheres, each with a radius extending from the earth to the nearest fixed star."

We quote the above from Dr. Gardner's able paper on Homœopathy, in the Edinburgh Essays, 1856. The writer remarks, with well-placed humour—this strange doctrine "was only feebly expressed by Lord Jeffrey, when he said that an ounce of medicine, put into the Rhone at the upper end of the lake of Geneva, would physic all the Calvinists at the lower end."

THE BEGINNING OF CREATION.

Materialists have long entertained the question, Did the first egg proceed from a bird, or the bird from the egg? But the hundred and ninety-nine theories on the sources of life and organisation, are all fanciful, wild, and unphilosophical, having no ground to rest upon. Nothing is satisfactory until it is declared and believed that it has been the will of an Omnipotent Being to create,—to form the earth and to give life; and that it was He who appointed the changes to be wrought on the material, and gave the animating principle to produce organisation in correspondence with these changes.

MEDMENHAM ABBEY.

MEDMENHAM Abbey is situate on the banks of the Thames, and was founded in the reign of King Stephen. The Manor of Medmenham was given by its lord, Walter de Bolebec, to the Abbey of Cistercian Monks, at Woburn, in Bedfordshire. The abbey, as shown in the above cut, is a very picturesque ruin.

EDDYSTONE LIGHTHOUSE.

As the arts and sciences improved, so did the construction of Lighthouses, until one of the greatest accomplishments of engineering skill, ever attempted upon such works, was exhibited in the construction of the Eddystone Lighthouse, which is, indeed, much more entitled than the Pharos of Alexandria to be considered one of the wonders of the world. The rock on which this tower is built is placed about twelve miles south-west of Plymouth and consists of a series of submarine cliffs, stretching from the west side (which is so precipitous that the largest ship can ride close beside them) in an easterly direction, for nearly half-a-mile. At the distance of about a quarter of a mile more is another rock, so that a more dangerous marine locality can hardly be imagined. Both these rocks had proved the cause of many fatal shipwrecks, and it was at last resolved to make an attempt to obviate the danger. In the year 1696, a gentleman of Essex, named Winstanley, who had a turn for architecture and mechanics, was engaged to erect a lighthouse upon the Eddystone rock, and in four years he completed it. It did not, however, stand long, for while some repairs were in progress under his direction in 1703, on the 26th November, a violent hurricane came on which blew the lighthouse down, and Mr. Winstanley and all his men perished—nothing remaining of the edifice but a few stones and a piece of iron chain.—In the spring of 1706 an Act of Parliament was obtained for rebuilding the lighthouse, and a gentleman named Rudyerd, a silk mercer, was the engineer engaged. He placed five courses of heavy stones upon the rock and then erected a superstructure of wood. The lighthouse on the Bell Rock, off the coast of Fife, and the one placed at the entrance of the Mersey, on the Black Rock, are similarly constructed, so that there seemed to be good reason for adopting the principle. Mr. Smeaton thought that the work was done in a masterly and effective manner; but in 1755 the edifice was destroyed by fire, and he was next retained as the engineer for this important building.—The result of his labours has justly been considered worthy of the admiration of the world, for it is distinguished alike for its strength, durability, and beauty of form. The base of the tower is about twenty-six feet nine inches in diameter, and the masonry is so formed as to be a part of the solid rock, to the height of thirteen feet above the surface, where the diameter is diminished to nineteen feet and a half. The tower then rises in a gradually diminishing curve to the height of eighty-five feet, including the lantern, which is twenty-four feet high. The upper extremity is finished by a cornice, a balustrade being placed around the base of the lantern for use as well as ornament. The tower is furnished with a door and windows, and the whole edifice outside bears the graceful outline of the trunk of a mighty tree, combining lightness with elegance and strength. Mr. Smeaton commenced his labours in 1756, and completed the building in four years. Before commencing operations he took accurate drawings of the exterior of the rock, and the stones, which were brought from the striking and romantic district of Dartmoor, were all formed to fit into its crevices, and so prepared as to be dovetailed together, and strung by oaken plugs. When put into their places and then firmly cemented, the whole seemed to form, and does indeed constitute, a part of the solid rock.

THE NINE WORTHIES.

These are famous personages, often alluded to, and classed together rather in an arbitrary manner, like the Seven Wonders of the World, &c. The nine have thus been counted up as the Nine Worthies of the World by Richard Burton, in a book published in 1687:—

THREE GENTILES.

1 Hector, son of Priam.
2 Alexander the Great.
3 Julius Cæsar.

THREE JEWS.

4 Joshua, Conq. of Canaan.
5 David, King of Israel.
6 Judas Maccabæus.

THREE CHRISTIANS.

7 Arthur, King of Britain.
8 Charles the Great
9 Godfrey of Bouillon.

London had also Nine Worthies of her own, according to a pamphlet by Richard Johnson, author of the famous History of the Seven Champions. These worthies are:—

1 Sir William Walworth, fishmonger.
2 Sir H. Pritchard, vintner.
3 Sir W. Sevenoake, grocer.
4 Sir T. White, merchant-tailor.
5 Sir John Bonham, mercer.
6 Sir Chris. Croker, vintner.
7 Sir John Hawkwood, merchant-tailor.
8 Sir H. Calvert, silk-weaver.
9 Sir H. Maleverer, grocer.

Sir Thomas White seems to have been the only quite peaceable worthy among them, whose fame lives in St. John's College, Oxford, and Merchant Tailors' School, London, which school he founded.

From the fame of these personages, Butler formed his curious title of "Nineworthiness," meaning, it is presumed, that his hero (Hudibras) was equal in valour to any or all of the nine.

HOW THE BEE MAKES HONEY.

The honey is formed or naturally deposited in the nectaries of flowers, and is extracted from them by the working bees. They deposit it in their crop or honey-bag, which is an expansion of the gullet (œsophagus), and from this receptacle they disgorge it again when they return to the hive. In the interval, it is probably somewhat altered by admixture with the liquids which are secreted in the mouth and crop of the insect; so that the honey we extract from the hive may not be exactly in the same chemical condition as when it was sucked up by the bee.

DURATION OF THE PYRAMID.

The great season of the duration of the pyramid above all other forms is, that it is most fitted to resist the force of gravitation. Thus the Pyramids of Egypt are the oldest monuments in the world.

STOKE POGIS CHURCH.

IN the graveyard at Stoke Pogis, beneath the tomb he erected to his mother and his aunt, lie the remains of the poet Gray; it is the square tomb seen in our cut, and is without his name upon it, but a plain tablet on the wall records that "opposite this stone, in the same tomb upon which he has so feelingly recorded his grief at the loss of a beloved parent," his remains were deposited, August, 1771. The churchyard is well worthy of a pilgrimage—it is a pleasant field walk of about two miles from Slough, and retains many features alluded to in the famous "Elegy."

UPTON CHURCH.—THE IVY-MANTLED TOWER.

Still nearer Windsor is the ivy-covered tower of Upton, which is very ancient, and bears traces of Norman workmanship. It is believed by many to have been the one the poet had in mind, if not in eye, while writing. It certainly accords better than that at Stoke Pogis with his description—it is, and has been for centuries, "ivy-mantled." Upton was one of his early haunts; the gloomy character of the church and neighbourhood in twilight must have been well suited to the thoughts of the poet in this his most popular work.

"Save that from yonder ivy-mantled tower,
The moping owl does to the moon complain
Of such as, wandering near her sacred bower,
Molests her ancient solitary reign.

Beneath these rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade,
Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap;
Each in his narrow cell, for ever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

BRECON CASTLE.

Brecon is one of the pleasantest towns in South Wales, possessing architectural remains which connect it with the most important events of past ages and it is surrounded by natural objects of the most sublime and beautiful character. Centuries ago, Brecon was a regularly fortified town surrounded by a wall having ten towers and five gates, and a castle of great strength. Almost the only portion that remains of the stronghold is the tower seen in the engraving. The castle owes its origin to Bernard de Newmarch, a Norman baron, who founded it in the reign of Henry I. The history of this castle is intimately connected with the annals of England, especially during the wars of the Roses, but we have not space to enter upon it.

HOW THE GULF-STREAM REGULATES THE TEMPERATURE OF LONDON.

Great Britain is almost exactly under the same latitude as Labrador—a region of ice and snow. Apparently, the chief cause of the remarkable difference between the two climates arises from the action of the great oceanic Gulf-Stream, whereby this country is kept constantly encircled with waters warmed by a West-Indian sun. Were it not for this unceasing current from tropical seas, London, instead of its present moderate average winter temperature of six degrees above the freezing-point, might for many months annually be ice-bound by a settled cold of 10 to 30 degrees below that point, and have its pleasant summer months replaced by a season so short as not to allow corn to ripen, or only an alpine vegetation to flourish. Nor are we without evidence afforded by animal life of a greater cold having prevailed in this country at a late geological period. One case in particular occurs within 80 miles of London, at the village of Chillesford, near Woodbridge, where, in a bed of clayey sand of an age but little (geologically speaking) anterior to the London gravel, Mr. Prestwich has found a group of fossil shells in great part identical with species now living in the seas of Greenland and of similar latitudes, and which must evidently, from their perfect condition and natural position, have existed in the place where they are now met with.

THE FIRST HERMITS.

The first hermit was Paul, of Thebes, Egypt, who lived about the year 260; the second was St. Anthony, also of Egypt, who died in 345, at the age of 105.

THE BOUNDARY STONE.

NEAR the ancient town of Staines and standing on one of the aits of the river Thames may be seen the Boundary Stone of the City of London; and here its jurisdiction ends, or did end, for by a recent enactment all the rights and privileges—hitherto vested in the Mayor and Corporation—as regard the river Thames, were transferred to a "Commission."—It is to be hoped that the "improving" spirit of the age will not proceed so far as to remove this ancient boundary-mark; but that the inscription it still retains—"God preserve the City of London"—will be uttered as a fervent prayer by generations yet to come: for of a truth, upon the prosperity of the metropolis of England depends the welfare of the kingdom.

MAGNA CHARTA ISLAND.

Runnymede is a plain level field in Surrey, and near Windsor. We know not if by any tenure it has the right to be ever green; but we have always seen it during many years as a fair pasture—upon which to-day, as seven centuries ago, an army might assemble.

The small island—Magna Charta Island—is situate between Runnymede and Ankerwyke—now a modern mansion of the Harcourts, but once a nunnery, founded by Sir Gilbert de Montfichet and his son, in the reign of Henry II. Even the walls are all gone; but some ancient trees remain, under one of which tradition states the Eighth Henry met and wooed the beautiful and unfortunate Anne Boleyn. On this island was granted by King John to the Barons, the Great Charter, which has been viewed by after ages as the basis of English liberties. In the island which forms so charming a feature in the landscape, the Harcourts have built a small cottage It contains a large rough stone, on which is the following inscription:—

"Be it remembered, that on this island, in June, 1215, King John of England signed the Magna Charta, and in the year 1834 this building was erected in commemoration of that great event, by George Simon Harcourt, Esq."

The oppressions and exactions of a tyrannical and dastardly sovereign called into existence a confederacy of the barons, or tenants-in-chief of the crown, who took up arms for the redress of their grievances. Their demand was for the restoration of the laws of Henry I.; laws which might probably be characterised as an engrafting of the Norman feudalism on the "ancient customs of England," or previously existing Saxon and Danish free institutions, in which "ancient customs" were comprehended the laws of Edward the Confessor. The barons had refused to obey the king's summons to attend him in his own castle, and a convenient place, sufficiently distant from, yet near to Windsor, was appointed, on which to hold a meeting, the result of which is one of the events in the world's history. It is to be regretted that no monument marks the spot, at Runnymede, where the rights and liberties of the people of England were maintained and secured, although several attempts have been made to raise one here. The very name, however, is a memory imperishable; the island and meadow are places of pilgrimage to all who boast the Anglo-Saxon blood; and few are they who cross the Atlantic to visit Fatherland without offering homage to their great ancestors in this field of eternal fame!—repeating, with raised and hearty voice, the lines of the poet:—

"This is the place
Where England's ancient barons, clad in arms,
And stern with conquest, from their tyrant king
(Then rendered tame), did challenge and secure
The Charter of thy freedom. Pass not on
Till thou hast blessed their memory, and paid
Those thanks which God appointed the reward
Of public virtue."

MATERIALS OF A MAN.

Dr. Lankester has demonstrated the elementary composition of the human body, and exhibited in the lecture-room the absolute quantities of the elements contained in it, with the exception of four—oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, and fluorine. The three first could not be exhibited on account of their bulk; the last on account of its rarity.

A human body weighing 154 lbs. was stated to contain 111 lbs. of oxygen gas, which would occupy about 750 cubic feet; and 14 lbs. of hydrogen gas, which would occupy nearly 3,000 cubic feet of space: the nitrogen gas would occupy about 20 cubic feet. Among other elements there were 21 lbs. of carbon, 1¾ lbs. of phosphorus, 2 lbs. of the metal calcium, 1 oz. of sodium 100 grains of iron, 150 grains of potassium, 10 grains of magnesium, and 1 grain of silicon.

These elements, when mixed together as they are in the human body, were represented by 111 lbs. of water, 15lbs. of gelatine, 12lbs of fat, 8lbs. of fibrine and albumen, 7 lbs. of phosphate of lime, and a variety of other salts. It was shown that these substances are supplied to man through the agency of plants, and that it is in the tissues of plants that the great chemical changes go on which convert the inorganic elements into organic substances, fitted for the food of man and animals.

COMPENSATING FORCES IN CREATION.

Dr. Maury thus strikingly illustrates the admirable system of compensation, and the beauty and nicety with which things and principles are meted out in directions apparently the most opposite, but in proportions are exactly balanced. Thus, by the action of opposite and compensating forces, the earth is kept in its orbit, and the stars are held in suspension in the azure vault of heaven; and these forces are so exquisitely adjusted, that, at the end of a thousand years, the earth, the sun and moon, and every star in the firmament, is found to come and stand in its proper place at the proper moment.

When the little snow-drop was created, the whole mass of the earth, from pole to pole, and circumference to centre, must have been taken into account and weighed, in order that the proper degree of strength might be given to its tiny fibres.

THE SAVOY.

ALONG the banks of the Thames in olden time was a series of noble residences extending from Whitehall to the Temple. The old palace called the Savoy was one of these. It was a fortress-like building close upon the stream, and without the intervening garden which characterised the others. It was originally founded by the Earl of Savoy in the reign of Henry III., and rebuilt by Henry Duke of Lancaster. Here was imprisoned John, King of France, after he had been captured by Edward the Black Prince at the battle of Poictiers in 1356. It afterwards passed into the possession of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, and during that time was burned by the "rabble rout" who followed Wat Tyler. It lay in ruin and neglect for a long time after that event. In 1505 it was restored as a hospital by Henry VII., suppressed by Edward VI., re-endowed by Queen Mary, and continued as a hospital and sanctuary, "a nursery of rogues and masterless men throughout that century." It recovered some degree of respectability at the Restoration, and within its walls the meetings of the commissioners for the revision of the Liturgy were held in 1661, known as "the Savoy Conference." It consisted of twelve bishops and several Presbyterians. Strype describes the old building as very ruinous in 1720; but he adds, "in this Savoy, how ruinous soever it is, are divers good houses: first, the king's printing-press for proclamations, Acts of Parliament, gazettes, and such like public papers; next, a prison; thirdly, a parish church, and three or four of the churches and places for religious assemblies—viz., for the French, for Dutch, for High Germans and Lutherans, and lastly for the Protestant Dissenters. The building, which had gone gradually to decay, was destroyed in 1816 to form the approaches to Waterloo Bridge. The chapel, once within the walls, remains, and is a curious relic, containing many old monuments. Several noted men are buried here—the poets Gawin Douglas and George Wither, the African traveller Lander, and the historical painter Hilton.

THE MOSQUE OF ST. SOPHIA.

The Mosques of Constantinople are the most wonderful objects of that renowned city. More than 300 are picturesquely distributed in conspicuous parts, and form a most attractive feature to the eye of the traveller. The city itself is built upon seven gentle hills, which is the main cause not only of its grandeur of appearance, but also of its salubrity and comparative cleanliness. There are fourteen chief or imperial mosques, all lofty, and magnificent in their general dimensions, and built from base to dome of enduring materials, chiefly of white marble, slightly tinged with grey. Some of these have two, some four, and one (that of Sultan Achmet) has even six of those light, thin, lofty, arrowy, and most graceful towers called minarets. The mosque of Santa Sophia was once a Christian cathedral, and is rich in historical recollections. This mosque ranks as one of the grandest edifices. The ridge of the first hill on which the city stands, setting out from the north eastern part, is covered by the Serai, or palace of the Sultan, behind which, a little on the reverse of the hill, the dome of Santa Sophia shows itself. The colleges and hospitals, which are generally attached to or near the great mosques, offer no striking architectural features; but some of the detached chapels or sepulchres, where sultans, viziers, and other great personages repose, are handsome.

HEAT OF THE HUMAN BODY.

The temperature of the human body is always a fixed one; and if we place a thermometer upon the tongue, or under the arm, or in any other unexposed part of the body, we shall find that it stands at the point in the index of Fahrenheit's thermometer marked 90 degrees. This heat the human body maintains equally at the poles and at the tropics. No external temperature alters it, and we have thus conclusive evidence that it is produced from within. The cause of this heat is the combustion of the carbon and hydrogen contained in the carbonaceous group of foods. Starch, sugar, and oil are conveyed from the stomach into the blood; and whilst in the blood they are brought in contact with oxygen gas, which is taken in during respiration, the consequence of this contact being the union of the carbon and hydrogen with the oxygen, the foundation of carbonic-acid gas and water, and the giving out of heat. Man inspires annually about seven hundred-weight of oxygen, and about one-fifth of this burns some constituent, and produces heat. The whole carbon in the blood would, then, be burned away in about three days unless new fuel were introduced as food. The amount of food necessarily depends upon the number of respirations, the rapidity of the pulsations, and the relative capicity of the lungs. Cold increases the number of respirations, and heat diminishes them; hence the voracity of residents in the Arctic regions.

THE "MEDULLA OBLONGATA."

Dr. Herbert Mayo, in his Truths contained in Popular Superstitions, thus felicitously illustrates the poetic prevoyance of one of the greatest physiological discoveries of our time.

"At a point situated between the organs of the understanding and those of the will,—that is to say, somewhere at the juncture of the spinal marrow and the brain,—Magendie has ascertained that there is a small portion of nervous matter, pressure upon which causes immediately heavy sleep or stupor, while its destruction,—for instance, the laceration of the little organ with the point of a needle—instantaneously and irrevocably extinguishes life. This precious link in our system is beneficently stowed away in the securest part of our frame, that is to say, within the head, upon the strong central bone of the base of the skull."

TREASURES OF THOUGHT.

Thinkers are scarce as gold; but he whose thoughts embrace all his subject, and who pursues it uninterruptedly and fearless of consequences, is a diamond of enormous size.—LAVATER.

A Good Man's Wish.

I WOULD rather, when I am laid in the grave, that some one in his manhood should stand over me and say, "There lies one who was a real friend to me, and privately warned me of the dangers of the young; no one knew it, but he aided me in time of need; I owe what I am to him." Or would rather have some widow, with choking utterance, telling her children, "There is your friend and mine; he visited me in my affliction, and found you, my son, an employer, and you, my daughter, a happy home in a virtuous family." I would rather that such persons should stand at my grave, than to have erected over it the most beautiful sculptured monument of Parian or Italian marble. The heart's broken utterance of reflections of past kindness, and the tears of grateful memory shed upon the grave, are more valuable in my estimation than the most costly cenotaph ever reared.—DR. SHARPE.

Evil not a Necessity.

As surely as God is good, so surely there is no such thing as necessary evil. For by the religious mind, sickness, and pain, and death are not to be accounted evils. Moral evils are of your own making; and undoubtedly, the greater part of them may be prevented. Deformities of mind, as of body, will sometimes occur. Some voluntary cast-aways there will always be, whom no fostering kindness and no parental care can preserve from self-destruction: but if any are lost for want of care and culture, there is a sin of omission in the society to which they belong.—SOUTHEY.

Thinking of Self.

Of all that have tried the selfish experiment, let one come forth and say he has succeeded. He that has made gold his idol—has it satisfied him? He that has toiled in the fields of ambition—has he been repaid? He that has ransacked every theatre of sensual enjoyment—is he content? Can any answer in the affirmative? Not one. And when his conscience shall ask him, and ask it will, "Where are the hungry, whom you gave meat? The thirsty, whom you gave drink? The stranger, whom you sheltered? The naked, whom you clothed? The prisoned, whom you visited? The sick, whom you ministered unto?" How will he feel, when he must answer, "I have done none of these things, —I thought only for myself!"—JOHNSON.

The Universal Prayer.

Father of all! in every age,
In every clime adored,
By saint, by savage, and by sage,
Jehovah, Jove, or Lord!

Thou Great First Cause, least understood,
Who all my sense confined [stood,
To know but this, that Thou art good,
And that myself am blind;

Yet gave me, in this dark estate,
To see the good from ill;
And binding Nature fast in Fate,
Left free the human will.

What conscience dictates to be done,
Or warns me not to do,
This, teach me more than hell to shun,
That more than heaven pursue.

What blessings thy free bounty gives,
Let me not cast away;
For God is paid when man receives,
To enjoy is to obey.

Yet not to earth's contracted span
Thy goodness let me bound,
Or think Thee Lord alone of Man,
When thousand worlds are round:

Let not this weak, unknowing hand
Presume thy bolts to throw,
And deal damnation round the land,
On each I judge Thy foe.

If I am right, thy grace impart,
Still in the right to stay,
If I am wrong, O teach my heart
To find that better way!

Save me alike from foolish pride,
Or impious discontent,
At aught Thy wisdom has denied,
Or aught Thy goodness lent.

Teach me to feel another's woe,
To hide the fault I see;
That mercy I to others show,
That mercy show to me.

Mean though I am, not wholly so,
Since quickened by Thy breath;
O lead me wheresoe'er I go,
Through this day's life or death!

This day, be bread and peace my lot:
All else beneath the sun,
Thou knowst if best bestowed or not,
And let Thy will be done.

To Thee, whose Temple is all space,
Whose altar, earth, sea, skies,
One chorus let all Being raise!
All Nature's incense rise!

ALEXANDER POPE.

Benevolence.

Pecuniary aid, by those who have the means, is the most easy form in which benevolence can be gratified, and that which often requires the least, if any, sacrifice of personal comfort or self-love. The same affection may be exercised in a degree much higher in itself, and often much more useful to others, by personal kindness. The former, compared with the means of the individual, may present a mere mockery of mercy; while the latter, even in the lowest walks of life, often exhibits the brightest displays of active usefulness that can adorn the human character. This high and pure benevolence not only is dispensed with willingness, when occasion present themselves, but seeks out opportunity for itself, and feels in want of its natural and healthy exercise when deprived of an object on which it may be bestowed. —DR. ABERCROMBIE.

A Good Heart.

THERE was a great master among the Jews who bid his scholars consider and tell him what was the best way wherein a man should always keep. One came and said, that there was nothing better than a good eye, which is, in their language, a liberal and contented disposition. Another said a good companion is the best thing in the world. A third said a good neighbour was the best thing he could desire; and a fourth preferred a man that could foresee things to come; that is, a wise person. But, at last, came in one Eleazer, and he said a good heart was better than them all. True, said the master, thou hast comprehended in two words all that the rest have said. For he that hath a good heart will be both contented, and a good companion, and a good neighbour, and easily see what is fit to be done by him. —BISHOP PATRICK.

A noble heart, like the sun, showeth its greatest countenance in its lowest estate.—SIR PHILIP SYDNEY.

No Surrender.

Some are in the habit of shouting "No surrender;" but I say we should all surrender; we should surrender our passions, and our prejudices, and our uncharitableness towards others. We should seek to win as much as we can from the common humanity of our adversaries. The good and the wise will pursue this course, and they will succeed; whilst the treacherous, the arrogant, and the intolerant will dwindle far behind in the march, and will perish of self-contention, instead of coming up to win the laurels.—BAMFORD.

Self-Culture.

Is it asked, how can the labouring man find time for self-culture? I answer, that an earnest purpose finds time, or makes time. It seizes on spare moments, and turns fragments to golden account. A man who follows his calling with industry and spirit, and uses his earnings economically, will always have some portion of the day at command. And it is astonishing how fruitful of improvement a short season becomes, when eagerly seized and faithfully used. It has often been observed that those who have the most time at their disposal profit by it the least. A single hour in the day, steadily given to the study of some interesting subject, brings unexpected accumulations of knowledge.—W. E. CHANNING.

PAGE OF ANECDOTES.

Whenever we step out of domestic life, in search of felicity, we come back again disappointed, tired, and chagrined. One day passed under our own roof, with our friends and our family, is worth a thousand in another place.—EARL OF ORRERY.

Anecdotes of Domestic Life.

POOR JACK.

THE child of a drunken sailor asked him for bread. Irritated by his request, the dissolute father spurned him from him with his foot, and the child fell into the sea, from the beach. Nothing could be done from the shore, and the child soon disappeared; but the arm of Providence was extended over him, and by clinging to an oar or raft, that he came near, he floated, till picked up by a vessel then under weigh. The child could only tell them his name was Jack, but the humanity of the crew led them to take care of him. Poor Jack, as he grew up, was promoted to wait on the officers, received instruction easily, was quick and steady, and served in some actions. In the last, he had obtained so much promotion, that he was appointed to the care of the wounded seamen. He observed one with a Bible under his head, and showed him so much attention, that the man, when near dying, requested Jack to accept this Bible, which had been the means of reclaiming him from the ways of sin. By some circumstances, Poor Jack recognised, in the penitent sailor, his once cruel father.—Such was the affecting story, as related at a meeting of the Brighton Bible Society, by a stranger, who requested permission to address the company. It made a powerful impression on all present; which was not lessened, when the speaker added, with a modest bow, "And ladies and gentlemen, I am Poor Jack."

FENELON.

The virtuous Archbishop of Cambray, Fenelon, was void of all formality and full of the truest politeness, that of making everyone comfortable about him. One day there were two German noblemen at his table, who to show their respect for the archbishop, rose from their seats, and stood all the time they were drinking to him, according to the custom of their country. Some young French officers who were at the table at the same time, could scarcely withhold from laughing at such a novelty. The archbishop gave them a gentle reprimand by his look; called for wine, and stood up and drank to the Germans in the same manner that they had done to him. The officers afterwards owned how much they were ashamed of themselves, and they immediately felt how greatly the archbishop's hospitality was superior to that customary sort of politeness with which alone they had been acquainted.

EAGLE AND CHILD.

A servant maid at Munich, being in a garden with a child nine months old, set it down on the ground, when suddenly an eagle darted from the air, to seize upon it as a prey. The servant, who was fortunately close by, with the greatest courage and presence of mind threw a shawl at the bird, which covering his eyes, not only prevented him from seizing the infant, but even from escaping. She boldly caught hold of the robber, and in spite of his struggles, held him fast till some persons came to her assistance. His Majesty amply rewarded the heroine, who received some wounds in the contest, and sent the prisoner to the menagerie at Nymphenburg.

MRS. HOWARD.

The philanthropic Howard was blessed with a wife of singularly congenial disposition. On settling his accounts one year, he found a balance in his favour, and proposed to his wife to spend the money on a visit to the metropolis, for her gratification. "What a beautiful cottage for a poor family might be built with that money," was her benevolent reply. The hint was immediately taken, and the worthy couple enjoyed that greatest of all gratifications, the satisfaction of having done good for its own sake.

Anecdotes of Industry.

PETER THE GREAT.

IT was the custom of Peter the Great to visit the different workshops and manufactories, not only to encourage them, but also to judge of what other useful establishments might be formed in his dominions. Among the places he visited were the forges of Müller, at Istia, ninety wersts from Moscow. The Czar once passed a whole month there, during which time, after giving due attention to the affairs of state, which he never neglected, he amused himself with seeing and examining everything in the most minute manner, and even employed himself in learning the business of a blacksmith. He succeeded so well that on one of the last days of his remaining there he forged eighteen poods of iron, and put his own particular mark on each bar. The boyars and other noblemen of his suite were employed in blowing the bellows, stirring the fire, carrying coals, and performing the other duties of a blacksmith's assistant. When Peter had finished, he went to the proprietor, praised his manufactory, and asked how much he gave his workmen per pood. "Three copecks, or an altina," answered Müller. "Very well," replied the Czar, "I have then earned eighteen altinas." Müller fetched eighteen ducats, offered them to Peter, and told him that he could not give a workman like his majesty less per pood. Peter refused. "Keep your ducats," said he; "I have not wrought better than any other man; give me what you would give to another; I want to buy a pair of shoes, of which I am in great need." At the same time he showed him his shoes, which had been once mended, and were again full of holes. Peter accepted the eighteen altinas, and bought himself a pair of new shoes, which he used to show with much pleasure, saying, "These I earned with the sweat of my brow."

FRANKLIN.

Dr. Franklin, in his memoirs, is particularly anxious to inculcate the duties of industry, in order that his posterity may know the use of a virtue, to which he was so largely indebted. Throughout the whole of his long life, his precept was strengthened by an example of the most remarkable industry, of which he furnishes many instances. When a printer, he was engaged in a work of forty sheets, on which he worked exceeding hard, for the price was low. "I composed," says he, "a sheet a day, and Meredith worked it off at press; it was often eleven at night, and sometimes later, before I had finished my distribution for the next day's work; for the little jobs sent in by our other friends now and then put us back. But so determined was I to continue doing a sheet a day of the folio, that one night when having imposed my forms, and I thought my day's work over, one of them by accident was broken, and two pages were reduced to pie [a printer's term for the type getting mixed and in confusion], I immediately distributed and composed it over again before I went to bed; and this industry, visible to our neighbours, began to give us character and credit; particularly, I was told, that mention being made of the new printing office, at the merchants' every-night club, the general opinion was, that it must fail, there being already two printers in the place, Keimer and Bradford; but Dr. Baird, a native of St. Andrew's, in Scotland, gave a contrary opinion. 'For the industry of that Franklin,' said he, 'is superior to anything I ever saw of the kind; I see him still at work when I go home from the club, and he is at work again before his neighbours are out of bed.' This struck the rest, and we soon after had offers from one of them to supply us with stationery; but as yet we did not choose to engage in shop business."

GOOD MEN ARE HUMAN SUNS; THEY BRIGHTEN AND WARM THEIR SEVERAL SPHERES.

WHAT IS RESOLVED ONCE FOR ALL SHOULD BE LONG CONSIDERED.

THE WONDERFUL NUMBER SEVEN.

THE number is composed of the first two perfect numbers, equal and unequal, 3 and 4; for the number 2, consisting of repeated unity, which is no number, is not perfect, it comprehends the primary numerical triangle or trine, and square or quartile conjunction, considered by the favourers of planetry influence as of the most benign aspect. In six days creation was completed, and the 7th was consecrated to rest. On the 7th day of the 7th month, a holy observance was ordained to the children of Israel, who feasted 7 days, and remained 7 days in tents; the 7th year was directed to be a Sabbath of rest for all things and at the end of 7 times 7 years commenced the grand jubilee. Every 7th year the land lay fallow; every 7th year there was a general release from all debts, and all bondmen were set free. From this law may have originated the custom of our binding young men to 7 years' apprenticeship, and punishing incorrigible offenders by transportation for 7, twice 7, and three times 7, years. Every 7 years the law was to be read to the people. Jacob served 7 years for the possession of Rachel; and also other 7. Noah had seven days' warning of the flood, and was commanded to take the fowls of the air in by 7, and the clean beasts by 7. The ark touched ground on the 7th month; and in 7 days the dove was sent out, and again in 7 days after. The 7 years of plenty, and 7 years of famine were foretold in Pharaoh's dream by 7 fat and 7 lean beasts, and the 7 full and 7 blasted ears of corn. Nebuchadnezzar was 7 years a beast; the fiery furnace was 7 times hotter to receive Shadrach, &c. A man defiled was, by the Mosaic law, unclean 7 days; the young of both animals was to remain with the dam 7 days, and at the end of the 7th was to be taken away. By the old law, man was commanded to forgive his offending brother 7 times; but the meekness of the revealed law extended his humility to 70 times 7: if Cain shall be avenged 7 times, truly Lamech 70 times 7. In the destruction of Jericho, 7 priests bore 7 trumpets 7 days; on the 7th they surrounded the wall 7 times; after the 7th, the walls fell. Balaam prepared 7 years for a sacrifice: and 7 of Saul's sons were hanged to stay a famine. Laban pursued Jacob 7 days' journey. Job's friends sat 7 days and 7 nights, and offered 7 bullocks and 7 rams, as an atonement for their wickedness. In the 7th year of his reign, King Ahazuerus feasted 7 days, and on the 7th deputed his 7 chamberlains to find a queen, who was allowed 7 maidens to attend her. Miriam was cleansed of her leprosy by being shut up 7 days. Solomon was 7 years in building the Temple, at the dedication of which he feasted 7 days; in the Temple were 7 lamps; 7 days were appointed for an atonement upon the altar, and the priest's son was ordained to wear his father's garments 7 days. The children of Israel eat unleavened bread 7 days. Abraham gave 7 ewe-lambs to Abimelech, as a memorial for a well. Joseph mourned 7 days for Jacob. Naaman was cleansed of his leprosy by bathing 7 times in Jordan. The Rabbins say that God employed the power of this number to perfect the greatness of Samuel, his name answering the value of the letters in the Hebrew word, which signifies 7; whence Hannah his mother, in her thanksgiving, says, the barren hath brought forth 7. In Scripture are enumerated 7 resurrections: the widow's son, by Elias; the Shunamite's son, by Elisha; the soldier who touched the bones of the prophet; the daughter of the ruler of the synagogue; the widow's son of Nain; Lazarus, and our Lord. The apostles choose 7 deacons. Enoch, who was translated, was the 7th from Adam; and Jesus Christ was the 77th in a direct line. Our Lord spake 7 times on the cross, on which he was 7 hours; he appeared 7 times; and after 7 times 7 days sent the Holy Ghost. In the Lord's prayer are 7 petitions, containing in 7 times 7 words, omitting those of mere grammatical connection; within this number are concealed all the mysteries of apocalypse revealed to the 7 churches of Asia. There appeared seven golden candlesticks and 7 stars in the hand of him that was in the midst; 7 lamps before the 7 spirits of God; the book with 7 seals; the lamb with 7 horns and 7 eyes; 7 angels with 7 trumpets; 7 kings; 7 thunders; 7,000 men slain. The dragon with 7 heads and 7 crowns; and the beast with 7 heads; 7 angels bearing 7 plagues, and 7 vials of wrath. The vision of Daniel was of 70 weeks; and the elders of Israel were 70. There were also 7 heavens, 7 planets (query), 7 stars, 7 wise men, 7 champions of Christendom, 7 notes in music, 7 primary colours, 7 deadly sins, and 7 sacraments in the Catholic church. The 7th son was considered as endowed with pre-eminent wisdom; and the 7th son of a 7th son is still thought to possess the power of healing diseases spontaneously. Perfection is likened to gold 7 times purified in the fire; and we yet say you frightened me out of my 7 senses. The opposite sides of a dice make 7, whence the players at hazard make 7 the main. Hippocrates says the septenary number, by its occult virtues, tends to the accomplishment of all things, to be the dispenser of life, and fountain of all its changes; and, like Shakspeare, he divided the life of man into 7 ages; for as the moon changes her phases every seven days, this number influences all sublunary beings. The teeth spring out on the 7th month, and are shed and renewed in the 7th year, when infancy is changed into childhood; at twice 7 years puberity begins; at three times 7 the faculties are developed, and manhood commences, and we are become legally competent to all civil acts; at four times 7 man is in full possession of all his strength; at five times 7 he is fit for the business of the world; at six times 7 he becomes grave and wise, or never: at 7 times 7 he is in his apogee, and from that time decays; at eight times 7 he is in his first climacteric; at nine times 7, or 63, he is in his last or grand climacteric, or year of danger; and ten times 7, or three score years and ten, has, by the royal prophet, been pronounced the natural period of human life.

THE OLD CITIES OF ENGLAND.

There is the clearest evidence from the Doomsday book that not one city at the end of the ninth century (London and Winchester perhaps excepted) contained 10,000 inhabitants; and the greatest part of them contained only a few hundreds. York, which is the greatest city mentioned in that famous record, contained only 1,418 houses, of which there were 540 uninhabited.

VALUE OF PROPERTY IN LONDON IN 1566 AND 1866.

In the year 1566, Sir Thomas Gresham proposed to the corporation of London to erect, at his own expense, a commodious building for merchants to meet and transact their business, provided the corporation would provide a convenient and suitable spot for the same. The City readily acquiescing in his proposal, purchased 80 houses which formed two courts leading from Cornhill into Threadneedle-street, called New Saint Christopher-alley and Swan-alley, for £3,532, and sold the old materials of these houses for £478. The ground occupied by the present Royal Exchange, a successor to the building referred to above, is about 40,000 feet super, the above price would therefore be about 1s. 6d. per foot. The present value of the site, at a low estimate, is at least £20 per foot, or £800,000, being an increase of £2,650 per year on an original outlay of £3,000.

NOBLE SENTIMENTS.

"I will not encourage a hope," wrote one imprisoned woman to her friend, "because I will not purchase the miseries of a disappointment. I shall view with rapture, no doubt, the moment that restores me to life and liberty; and I will look without despair on that which shall devote me to the grave."

HE WHO CANNOT LIVE WELL TO-DAY WILL BE LESS QUALIFIED TO LIVE WELL TO-MORROW.

GARDENING OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR.

JANUARY.

Trench and manure, prepare hot-beds for asparagus, cucumbers, mint, potatoes, and the small salads. Sow the brown Dutch and grand admiral cabbages, curled parsley for transplanting; frame peas, horn carrots, mazagan beans, onions (to be allowed to grow large); plant out cabbage plants to succeed those which have been planted out in autumn.

FEBRUARY.

All the ground which is destined for early crops must now be prepared, and hot-beds be multiplied for cucumbers and early melons. Celery may be sown on a moderate hot-bed; also, sow cabbages, horn carrots, lettuces, leeks, parsnips, and in fact most of the table vegetables. Those plants, such as cabbages, chives, garlic, shalots, under ground onions, and horseradish, which are fit, should now be transplanted.

MARCH.

In open borders sow asparagus, cabbages, carrots, curled and Hamburgh parsley, Neapolitan kale, parsnips, onions, &c.; plant out such vegetables as have been already sown. Before sowing, dig carefully, and make the ground level and fine. Main crops may be sown in this month, such as early long-pod beans, peas, celery, turnips, and, indeed, most other vegetables. Mustard, cress, lettuce, spinach, and radishes, may be sown every week or fortnight, for succession. Chives, shalots, garlic, &c., may be planted; plant rhubarb, potatoes, and Jerusalem artichokes. Cuttings or slips of sweet herbs may be planted

APRIL.

Planting the vegetables which have been sown is now the chief business. Make hot-beds for cucumbers and melons; force kidney beans and Elford rhubarb. Plant out artichokes and potatoes; sow asparagus, beets, cabbages, celery, garden and kidney beans, Dutch turnips, lettuces, peas, radishes, small salading.

MAY

Sow carrots, lettuce, capsicums, cauliflowers, spinach, Knight's marrow-fat peas, &c. Transplant cabbages, winter greens, lettuces, and celery. Hoe and stake peas, water newly planted crops, and propagate aromatic plants by slips and cuttings. Protect from wind and rain choice tulips, ranunculuses, and anemonies. Propagate herbaceous plants by dividing the roots; wallflowers, sweet-williams, and rockets, by slips; and China roses, heliotropiums, &c., by cuttings.

JUNE.

Sow cape brocoli, kidney beans, peas, lettuces, radishes, campions, spinach, small salading, &c. The best peas for sowing now are Knight's marrow peas; they will bear till October. Hoe the beds of table vegetables, and pick out the most curled plants of curled parsley, cress, and chervil, for seed. Watering the freshly-planted crops must now be attended to in dry weather in the evenings, or very early in the mornings. Weeding and thinning out are also of importance, as well as hoeing, particularly with potatoes, cabbages, and peas.

JULY.

Plant cabbages, savoys, coleworts, brocoli, lettuce, celery, &c. Train and regulate the summer shoots both of wall trees and standards; prune vine and fig-trees, and shade ripe currents that are exposed to the full blaze of the sun. Place nets on the cherries to protect them from birds. Take up garlic, onions, and shalots, as their leaves begin to decay.

AUGUST.

Both cabbages, brocoli, endive, spinach, Welsh onions, turnips, and radishes should now be sown. The celery sown should be planted, and that already planted, as well as cardoons, should be earthed up.

SEPTEMBER.

Sow vegetable seed for a spring crop. Prick out cabbage plants, and gather ripe seeds. Endive and lettuce may be planted out on beds sloping to the south-west, and fenced round to drain off water. Hoe and clear the ground about turnips. Cabbage for collards in November, and German greens may be planted early in the month.

OCTOBER.

Sow magazan beans, and frame peas on a warm southern border; lay into the ground purple and white bocoli, within a few inches of their lower leaves, letting their heads face the north; transplant cauliflowers and purple brocoli under frames and hand-glasses; cabbages, garlic, lettuces, and shalots, under frames.

NOVEMBER.

Force seakale, rhubarb, and asparagus; take up endive, brocoli, and cauliflower, and lay them flat in dry ground; transplant suckers taken from the roots of the pear and codling plum, and prepare them for budding and grafting different fruits upon.

DECEMBER

Celery should now be earthed up, and in so careful a manner as not to require the operation again; force asparagus, also rhubarb, and sea-kale; lay in as early as possible this month the brocoli, purple and white.

GENERAL HINTS.

Operating on the Soil.—Trenching should always follow draining, or the latter will act but partially. Unless the ground be stirred pretty deeply, half the effect of draining will be lost. Both must be done in the autumn or early part of the winter, and the ground will then be in a good state for cropping in spring. Manuring may be done in early winter when the ground is somewhat frozen, as the material can then be wheeled on with greater ease, and the grounds and paths will be less cut up. Light.—Want of light is often the real cause of evils which are popularly ascribed to want of air, though both combined may occasionally be acting. Light may, however, be prejudicial to plants in certain stages, as after fresh planting or potting, when it stimulates them more than their crippled roots will bear. Dull weather is, therefore, best for both potting and planting, and a little shade after either process may often be beneficial.

HEALTH FOR A SHILLING!

Holloway's Pills.

Weakness and Debility.

In cases of debility, languor, and nervousness generated by excess of any kind, whether mental or physical, the effect of these Pills is in the highest degree bracing, renovating, and restorative. They drive from the system the morbid cause of disease; re-establish the digestion, regulate all the secretions, brace the nervous system, raise the patient's spirits, and bring back the frame to its pristine health and vigour. They increase the appetite, while they secure perfect digestion to all ordinary food, and release the invalid from restraint in diet.

A Word to Females.

There are two periods, especially in Woman's life, which require for safe passage, judgment and attention. Irregularity is apt at those critical times to take place, and to lay the foundation of future disease. These Pills, safe in action, and effective in result, should be taken at certain periods, and the issue will be marvellous both to the young and middle aged. They prevent nervousness, hysterics, dropsy, and a host of similar serious disorders, by expelling all impurities from the system, therefore none should ever be without them.

Coughs, Colds, and Asthma.

No medicine will cure colds, so quickly as these Pills, when of long duration or settled on the chest, or even though it has assumed the first stage of asthma, they may be relied on as a certain and never-failing cure, particularly if the Ointment be well rubbed into the chest and throat night and morning. If this catch the eye of any asthmatical person so bad as even not able to lie down in bed, let him well use these two preparations for only a week and the result will be marvellous.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:—

Ague	Dropsy	Liver Complaints	Tic-Doloureux
Asthma	Dysentery	Lumbago	Tumours
Bilious Complaints	Erysipelas	Piles	Ulcers
Blotches on the Skin	Female Irregularities	Rheumatism	Venereal Affections
Bowel Complaints	Fevers of all kinds	Retention of Urine	Worms of all kinds
Colics	Fits	Scrofula, or King's Evil	Weakness from whatever cause etc., etc.
Constipation of the Bowels	Gout	Sore Throats
Consumption	Headaches	Stone and Gravel
Debility	Indigestion	Secondary Symptoms
	Inflammation
	Jaundice

N.B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Box.

THE WORLD'S FRIEND!

Holloway's Ointment.

A Cure for Piles and Fistulas.

Inflammation of sensitive parts, piles, fistulas, and such like painful diseases may be presently relieved, and ultimately cured by the proper and diligent use of this cooling and healing Ointment, whose action should, in such cases, be assisted by judicious doses of Pills;—ere many days have elapsed the anxious patient will experience a wonderful degree of ease from this treatment. They are equally suitable to both sexes, and all ages.

A Man who refused to have his leg off.

From the Kilrush Advertiser, June 2nd, 1869.

BENJAMIN COX, ESQUIRE, Magistrate, said in the Board Room at Kilrush, that he knew a man who had been in the Infirmary and was actually turned out as incurable, on his way home to Kilrush, he purchased at Ennis, Holloway's Pills and Ointment, for, as he said, it could not be worse with him. "This man," said Mr. Cox, "became by their use as sound and as healthy as any man in the room." These celebrated Pills and Ointment will cure any wound, sore, or ulcer, of however long standing, if properly used according to the printed directions.

Gout and Rheumatism.

The essence of these diseases lies in the blood, which has floating through each vessel, the paingiving poison, which irritates every tissue it comes in contact with, and produces the hot, swollen, elastic enlargement about the joints so characteristic of gouty diseases. The philosophy of cure consists in overcoming this depravity in the blood, which is rapidly purified by the use of the Pills. The Ointment, when rubbed upon the skin, penetrates the system through the pores, acts in unison with the Pills, and soon effects a cure.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:—

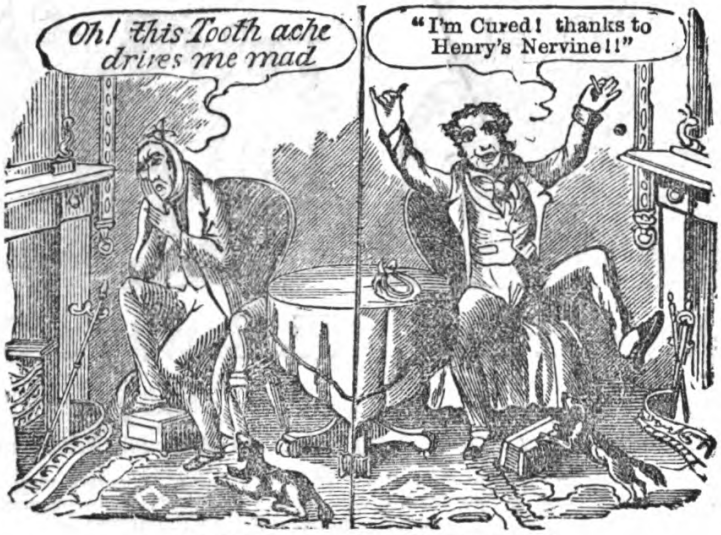

Bad Legs	Chilblains	Gout	Sore Throats
Bad Breasts	Chapped Hands	Glandular Swellings	Skin Diseases
Burns	Corns (Soft)	Lumbago	Scurvy
Bunions	Cancers	Piles	Sore Heads
Bite of Mosquitoes and Sand Flies	Contracted and Stiff Joints	Rheumatism	Tumours
Coco-bay	Elephantiasis	Scalds	Ulcers
Chiego foot	Fistulas	Sore Nipples	Wounds
			Yaws

N.B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Pot.

Sold at the Establishment of PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY, 533 Oxford Street (late of 244 Strand), London; also by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines throughout the civilised world, at the following prices:—1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s., and 33s. each Box or Pot.

 There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. B

THE MOST WONDERFUL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE!

TO ALL SUFFERERS FROM

Tooth-Ache, Tic-Doloreux, Rheumatism,

(WHEREVER SITUATE)

Nervous Head-Ache, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Paralytic and other Nervous Affections, and Deafness,

HENRY'S NERVINE,

OR

NEURALGIC EMBROCATION,

Is with the utmost confidence recommended as the most speedy and unfailing Remedy ever yet brought before the Public.

THE great superiority of HENRY'S NERVINE over all other remedies for the above complaints may be judged by the following features:—It is an outward application only, thus preventing any fear in its use, and obviating the necessity of taking nauseating medicine, and its action being specially on the nerves, the effects of its application are almost instantaneous. Relief in all cases where the nerves lie near the skin being obtained in a few seconds, differing totally in this respect from other remedies, which require to be persevered in for weeks before any effect is produced, leaving it a matter of doubt whether the relief obtained has been derived from the Medicine itself, or is the result of a reaction of the constitution. This invaluable Medicine will speak for itself; and one trial will be quite sufficient to convince the most sceptical of its astounding efficacy.

OBSERVE—THIS IS AN OUTWARD APPLICATION ONLY,

And 1s. 1½d. Bottle is sufficient for TWENTY-FIVE ATTACKS.

Ask for HENRY'S NERVINE—Beware of spurious imitations.

Any Chemist not having it in stock, will readily order it if requested to do so.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. each, by all respectable Medicine Vendors:—Wholesale by the Proprietor, PAGE D. WOODCOCK, "LINCOLN HOUSE," ST. FAITH'S, NORWICH, who will send it Post-free as follows:—1s. 1½d. Bottle, 14 Stamps: 2s. 9d. ditto, 33 Stamps, 4s. 6d. ditto, 54 Stamps.

Sold by Mr. Chaundy, Mr. Luff, & Mr. Spencer, Chemists, Oxford.

IRISH TESTIMONY

TO THE GREAT VALUE OF

PAGE WOODCOCK'S

WIND PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF INDIGESTION.

COPY of a letter from Mr. J. WALKER, Patent Medicine Vendor, Linenhall Street, Newtownlimavady, dated February 22nd, 1869.

SIR,—I have been requested by a Farmer in this Neighbourhood, named Mr. JOHN M'LAUGLIN, of Largy, to express his thanks to you and warmest wishes for the success and spread of the Wind Pills of your Manufacture. He has experienced complete relief by their use. During the last TEN OR TWELVE YEARS he could not use any Potatoes nor any other Vegetable whatever. He purchased a Box of me, and he had only taken about a Dozen of these Small Pills, when he perceived the advantage they were. He has no objection to his name being used in any way you may think proper in making these valuable Pills more generally known.

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours respectfully,
JOHN WALKER.

To Mr. WOODCOCK,
St. Faith's, Norwich.

Sufferers from Wind in the Stomach, Indigestion, Costiveness, Giddiness, Sick Head-Ache, Heartburn, Disturbed Sleep, Palpitation of the Heart, Cholic, Ague, Biliousness, Erysipelas, Liver Complaints, Tic-Doloreux, Skin Eruptions, &c., &c., should lose no time in availing themselves of this most excellent medicine.

They are sold by respectable Medicine Vendors throughout the Kingdom, in Boxes at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. each, or should any difficulty occur, enclose 14, 33, or 54 stamps, according to size, to PAGE D. WOODCOCK, "LINCOLN HOUSE," ST. FAITH'S, NORWICH, and they will be sent free by return of post.

Sold by Mr. Chaundy, Mr. Luff, & Mr. Spencer, Chemists, Oxford.

ALDEN'S
OXFORD MUSIC REPOSITORY,
35 CORN MARKET STREET.

H. ALDEN begs respectfully to intimate that he has now on hand a very large and choice stock of the newest and most fashionable Music, from all the first-class publishers, AT HALF PRICE, including

PIANOFORTE COMPOSITIONS:

Suited either for brilliant execution, for school or private practice, or for elementary lessons. An extensive collection of very Easy Pieces for children.

THE NEWEST DANCE MUSIC:

Waltzes, Polkas, Quadrilles, Galops, &c., &c., as played at the Nobility's Balls.

SECULAR AND SACRED VOCAL MUSIC:

Solos, Duets, Trios, by favourite modern composers. Also an unusually good assortment of PIANOFORTE DUETS AND TRIOS.

The considerable enlargement recently effected in his shop, enables H. ALDEN to offer to customers increased facilities for inspecting the stock, which, he is convinced, will be found not inferior, either in quantity or style, to that of any Music Shop in Oxford.

 SPECIAL ATTENTION ***

Is requested to the unusual facilities offered to customers in the speed and regularity with which any pieces not in stock are procured from London: as H. ALDEN's arrangements with all the leading Publishers enable him to receive direct,

NEW MUSIC PARCELS TWICE A WEEK,

And oftener when required. He can therefore guarantee the execution of all orders received up to Monday night on the following Wednesday: up to Thursday night on the Saturday following, and so on; thus obviating the unpleasant delay so often experienced by persons ordering Music.

Music sent out for selection if desired. A liberal discount allowed to the Profession.

In addition to the Half-price Music, the publications of the Musical Bouquet Office are kept in stock: about 12,000 sheets, at 3d. per sheet. The series comprise an extensive assortment of Pianoforte Music, by the best foreign composers: Vocal Music—classical German and Italian, the modern Christy's Minstrels' Songs, &c. Dance Music, by Montgomery and others; Sacred Music; Pianoforte Duets; Glees, &c., &c.—Complete Catalogues, 1d. each.

These important publications are not kept in stock anywhere else in Oxford.

WOODCOCK'S
PECTORAL COUGH PILLS,

A SAFE AND EFFECTUAL CURE FOR COUGHS, COLDS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, AND REMOVING PHLEGM, &c.

THEY promote free expectoration, and hence prevent the accumulation of phlegm, which causes a sense of choking; they allay irritability and tickling in the throat, and by producing a gentle determination to the skin, relieve the sense of oppression, fulness, and difficulty of breathing, which nightly deprive the patient of rest. If they be had recourse to in the incipient stages of consumption they will most effectually retard its progress; and in the most advanced stages they will be found efficacious in allaying the urgency of the symptoms, and producing general tranquillity.

HOLBEACH, OCTOBER 22nd, 1866.

SIR,—For a considerable time have I suffered somewhat severely from Cough and a Tightness of the Chest, and been continually trying to obtain relief from various antidotes that have been recommended to me, the last being your COUGH PILLS. I obtained a box of Mr. MITCHELL, Stationer, and when my complaint was at the worst took two Pills, and to my great satisfaction and surprise, received almost instant relief.

I can positively say that since taking them I have never been so seriously affected.

I am, Sir,
Yours obediently,
J. R. CAPP, Talbot Inn.

To Mr. WOODCOCK.

To Mr. PATE, Druggist, Ely.

SIR,—Mrs. HAWKINS and myself having received so very much relief in the most severe Colds and Tightness in the Chest, from the use of WOODCOCK'S COUGH PILLS, I wish to testify to the fact for the benefit of all those whom it may concern. I may further state that you are welcome to make use of this communication in any way conducive to the good of those who have, or may suffer like ourselves.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,

Extract from "The Grocer," Sept. 22, 1866.
"Our Business Houses, No. 24."

"It is with pleasure that we record the discovery of a veritable old-fashioned Sausage Factory, situated in the heart of a rich agricultural district, where the genuine material is very plentiful. In addition to the manufacture of mild smoked Bacon, HILLIER'S BACON CURING COMPANY LIMITED make a large quantity of Sausages from the finest pork, and we are pleased at having the opportunity of here saying from personal observation, that a dealer may, without fear of committing himself to untruth or exaggeration, recommend those made by this Joint Stock Company to the notice of his customers, and if sceptics still doubt, our evidence may be produced in proof of that recommendation."

THE BEST REMEDY FOR INDIGESTION.

NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS are confidently recommended as a simple but certain Remedy for Indigestion, which is the cause of nearly all the diseases to which we are subject, being a medicine so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that it is with justice called the "Natural Strengthener of the Human Stomach." "Norton's Pills" act as a powerful tonic and gentle aperient; are mild in their operation, safe under any circumstances, and thousands of persons can now bear testimony to the benefits to be derived from their use, as they have been a never-failing Family Friend for upwards of 30 years.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 11s. each, in every Town in the Kingdom.

CAUTION.

Be sure to ask for "NORTON'S PILLS," and do not be persuaded to purchase an imitation.

ECONOMY in domestic matters well becomes all who aim at comfort and independence. By a small outlay in the purchase of a Family Mangle a permanent saving can be made in every household. A lady who has tried it writes:—"The mangle pleases me much. I find it a great saving, not only of the money I used to pay out for mangling, but I now mangle many articles which were formerly ironed, and thus save fuel as well as time. Besides this, there is the convenience of having the things done when I like." Write to the Makers, Robertson, Cook, & Co., London, or one of their numerous Agents, for diagrams of these cheap and portable Mangles.

INDIA RUBBER first came into notice about the beginning of last century, when it was sold at a guinea the ounce. One of the most valuable inventions of this century is the process of vulcanising this material, by which it is now applied to an almost incredible variety of purposes, both ornamental and useful. Amongst the latter is a little domestic Machine called the "Universal Clothes Wringer," which the Times newspaper describes as "a cheap, but most wonderfully efficient Wringing Machine. Its principle consists simply of two rollers of India Rubber, kept at a tight pressure by means of screws, and on turning a handle, the articles of clothing are drawn between, and washed and pressed completely dry, without the slightest injury to the fabric. So great and perfectly equal is the pressure, that the same machine will press dry a thick woollen carpet lifted directly from a tub of water, or a thin sheet of paper that has been immersed for hours." They are sold at 30s., 40s., 60s., and 80s. each. Robertson, Cook, & Co., Bow, London, E.

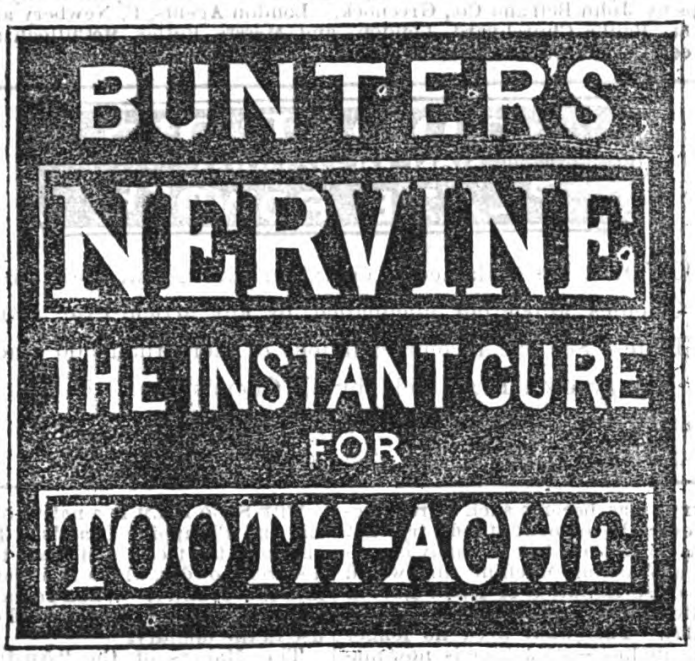

GRAPHITE is a mineral substance of a metallic lustre, soft to the touch, and under the name of Black Lead is used for giving a gloss to the surface of cast iron. When used in its pure state a very small quantity will be sufficient to accomplish this thoroughly; but unprincipled manufacturers have combined with it a large proportion of some worthless powder, the result of which is that a polish cannot be obtained even with a wasteful application of the material.

The "Medallion Black Lead" is put up in an elegant design, entirely novel, and supplied to the public pure as it is imported from the mine, and all who value cleanliness and economy should insist upon its use.

CHEMISTRY has done much of late years to increase the comfort of every household. Formerly an ounce of that beautiful Blue called Ultramarine cost Five Guineas. Now, through the discoveries of science, an article equally valuable for laundry purposes can be had for use in every household, at a price within the reach of the humblest.

The "Imperial Laundry Blue" imparts to linen a beautiful azure tinge, which can be regulated to the nicest degree, and it will not permanently darken the colour of the clothes. It is easy to use, very economical, and contains nothing that will injure the finest fabric.

Ask your Grocer for Robertson, Cook, & Co.'s "Imperial Laundry Blue."

A sample Bottle sent carriage paid to any Address for 48 stamps by John Bell and Co., Greenock. London Agents, F. Newbery and Sons, 44, and 45, St. Paul's Churchyard, London, and Messrs. Butler, McCulloch and Co., 13, Hart Street, Covent Garden Market, London.

GODDARD'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE POWDER.

This POWDER has sustained a reputation throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies altogether unequalled by any article ever introduced for Cleaning Plate. See the recommendations of more than 500 leading Firms which accompany each Box. Sold by all Chemists and the Principal Ironmongers and Silversmiths, in Boxes, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each; and by the Inventor, J. GODDARD, Chemist, Leicester.

MACHINERY has become such a great necessity in every department of industry, that a want has long been felt in many households for a Washing Machine that would provide a close imitation of Hand Labour to alleviate the miseries of the dreaded washing day. This want need no longer remain unsupplied,—a Machine is now manufactured by Robertson, Cook, & Co., Bow, which abolishes the drudgery formerly inseparable from laundry work. By its use the hours of hard rubbing belonging to a family wash become much fewer, and while it effects a great saving in time and labour, it prevents the weakest fabric from being torn.

HOW TO MAKE LIGHT AND WHOLESOME PASTRY has often perplexed clever cooks. This, however, is secured by the use of the "Royal Baking Powder." The purity of this article is guaranteed, and soon becomes a favourite in the kitchen because of its excellence. A lady says "I have been prejudiced against using baking powders, having frequently spoilt my pastry by using them, when they have turned out worthless. Acting on the recommendation of a friend, I procured the 'Royal' Baking Powder, which proved a perfect success, so that I shall always continue its use. I send you also a recipe for making delicious Drop Cakes. To one pound of flour add a teaspoonful of the Royal Baking Powder, eight ounces of butter, six ounces of loaf sugar, as much ground nutmeg as will stand on a sixpence, two eggs, one ounce of lemon peel. Make into thirty cakes, and put into a quick oven for twenty minutes."

THE SAGO PALM is a native of the Moluccas and Philippine Islands. The Natives cut down the trees, and from them extract a starch powder, which is imported largely into this country. When refined and purified it forms the strongest kind of Starch for use in the laundry.

The Makers of the "Australian Satin Glaze Starch" have carried this process to the utmost perfection, and have long produced an article which for imparting beauty of finish, purity of colour, and an elastic stiffness, not affected by the dampest atmosphere, is totally unrivalled.

One Pound of the "Australian Starch" is equal to 1½ lb. of any other. It is used exclusively by the Lace Dresser to Her Majesty, the Laundress for Buckingham Palace, and by upwards of 1,000 Metropolitan Laundresses. Those who once become accustomed to its use will have no other.

BOOTS AND SHOES are a serious item in the expenses of every large family; but the durability of these very necessary articles is often destroyed by the use of a polish which contains powerful acids, and before the Boots are half worn out the leather cracks.

The "Horse Guards' Blacking" is entirely a new preparation, containing nothing but what softens the leather and renders it durable, while it bestows a brilliant polish, not to be obtained by using any of the worthless preparations of ignorant makers. Every packet is enwrapped in a skin printed "Horse Guards' Blacking." None other is genuine.

DR. HOFFMAN'S ESSENCE OF LIFE.

FRAMPTON'S PILL OF HEALTH.

This Excellent Family Medicine is the most Effective Remedy for Indigestion, Bilious and Liver Complaints, Sick Headache, Loss of Appetite, Drowsiness, Giddiness, Spasms, and all Disorders of the Stomach and Bowels; and where an Aperient is required, nothing can be better adapted.

PERSONS OF A FULL HABIT, who are subject to headache, giddiness, drowsiness, and singing in the ears, arising from too great a flow of blood to the head, should never be without them, as many dangerous symptoms will be entirely carried off by their use.

For FEMALES, these Pills are truly excellent, removing all obstructions, the distressing headache so very prevalent with the sex, depression of spirits, dulness of sight, nervous affections, blotches, pimples, and sallowness of the skin, and give a healthy, juvenile bloom to the complexion.

Sold by Medicine Vendors, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box, or obtained through any Chemist.

RELIEF FROM COUGHS IN TEN MINUTES.

It promotes Expectoration, abates Fever, and allays the Cough. Being agreeable to the palate, it may be administered with ease and safety to Children. It will be found to give instantaneous and perfect relief, and, if persevered in, seldom fails to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Sold in Bottles, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

Prepared only by CHARLES HOPPER, Chemist, Doncaster.

AND SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND PATENT MEDICINE VENDORS.

BLAIR'S GOUT AND RHEUMATIC PILLS.

PRICE 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d per BOX.

This Preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the Gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this Medicine is so fully demonstrated, by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age.

These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all Medicine Vendors, or obtained through any Chemist.

DO YOU WANT
BEAUTIFUL HAIR, WHISKERS, &c.?

THE PURE HERBAL MEDICINE.
DR. THOMSON'S INVIGORATING PILLS

Are a well known Certain Remedy for Lumbago, Gravel, Pains in the Back and Loins, Headache, Depression of Spirits, Rheumatism, Gout, Discharges of all kinds, Piles, and all Affections of the Kidneys and Bladder. All Diseases arise from Impure Blood and Weakness. These Pills cleanse and purify the fluids, remove general or local debility, give tone to the stomach, restore the spirits, enrich the blood, impart energy and vivacity, eradicate every trace of disease, and invigorate the whole system. In every complaint, however virulent or long standing, they afford instant relief and a speedy cure. The daily receipt of testimonials from men and women in every position of life, who have been cured of skin eruptions, sore eyes, ulcers and scurf on the head, sore throat, pains in the limbs, neuralgia, epilepsy, stone in the bladder, disease of the kidneys, &c., by their use, and accounts of surprising recoveries from severe illnesses when all other medicines and doctors had failed, has induced Dr. THOMSON to publish their virtues, in the earnest hope that blessings so great may be more widely diffused and appreciated.

Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box.

(To protect the Public from Imitations, Her Majesty's Commissioners have ordered the words RALPH THOMSON, LONDON, to be engraved in white letters on the Government Stamp affixed to each Package, to imitate which is felony and transportation).

Sold by all Chemists in the world; or will be sent direct, packed privately, in a letter, on receipt of 14, 33, or 54 stamps, by DR. THOMSON, 21, Harrington Square, Hampstead Road, London.

"Four doses of your Pills cured my pains in the back which had annoyed me for many years.—H.M."

"I tried them for pains in the back; they cured me in a few hours.—G.R."

"I had been troubled for years with an eruption on the face. Your Pills have quite cured me.—REV. J. S."

"I have never had an attack of gout or rheumatism since I used your Pills.—W. DAVIS."

"They quite cured my sick headache and bilious attacks.—MRS. ELLIS."

"The pains in the back are quite cured; I can stoop with ease now.—J. WEISS."

Every sufferer, whatever the symptoms may be, is advised to try these Pills, with the honest assurance that they must find relief.

THE WAY TO OBTAIN SOUND HEALTH.

1st,--Cleanse the Stomach from all offensive accumulations, which so usually produce Functional Derangement, vitiating the food.

ADVANTAGES OF THE SYSTEM.

1. It is the production of an experienced Schoolmaster.
2. It gradually advances from the simple stroke to a superior small hand.
3. The assistance given in the Primal Lessons is reduced as the learner progresses until all guidance is safely withdrawn.
4. The number and variety of the copies secure attention, and prevent the pupils copying their own writing as in books with single head lines.
5. The system insures the progress of the learner, and greatly lightens the labours of the teacher.

"For teaching writing, I would recommend the use of Darnell's Copy-Books. I HAVE NOTICED A MARKED IMPROVEMENT WHEREVER THEY HAVE BEEN USED."—Report of Mr. Maye, (N.S. Organiser of Schools) to the Worcester Diocesan Board of Education.

"There are features in this work of uncommon merit, but we shall say enough if we recommend it unreservedly to all who seek a manual of instruction well arranged, intelligible, and effective."—Musical World, April 23.

"While every care has been taken to cull all that was useful from the old régime, much that is altogether modern and thoroughly practical is here to be met with for the first time. In particular, it seems to have been the author's purpose to lead the student by gentle degrees, and to ensure that one thing shall be properly acquired before another is attempted."—The Queen, April 30.

"The aim of the author seems to have been to supply as much information in as few words as possible, while aiding and directing the self-intelligence of the learner; and he certainly has succeeded admirably."—Examiner, April 30.

"The author leads the pupil on by carefully graduated instructions; the exercises are also admirably progressive, and in the appendix a capital collection of suitable and attractive pieces is given, many of them entirely new, and all judiciously fingered for the instrument of which he is so skilful a master."—Lady's Newspaper, May 7.

IMMENSELY POPULAR MUSIC.—FAR AWAY.—Melody by Miss LINDSAY. Transcribed for the pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. 4s. "Miss Lindsay's air has achieved a considerable amount of popularity, and this will not be lessened by Mr. Richards' transcription. All the tenderness of the original air is preserved, while the embroidery is brilliant and attractive."—Vide The Scotsman.

LOW AT THY FEET.—Sacred Song. By Miss M. LINDSAY. 3s. "This is a model of a sacred song—words and music are alike simple and expressive, and should be generally known. Those who have not got it already should get it."—Vide The Scotsman.

ALONE. Sacred song. By Miss M. LINDSAY. 3s. "There is great simplicity and sweetness in this song. It is within easy compass, and the accompaniment is skilful and at the same time easy."—Vide The Scotsman.

EXERCISES on ARPEGGIOS, for the pianoforte. By CHARLES CHAULIEU. 2s. "These are well-known exercises, and it may be said of them that the more they are known the better they will be liked. They are excellent."—Vide The Scotsman. All at half-price, and free by post.

UNE CASCADE DE FLEURS. Bagatelle de Salon. For the piano. By FREDERICK LEMOINE. 4s. "M. Lemoine has shown great ingenuity and great brilliancy in this composition, which, as a show-piece, will not be easily surpassed."—Vide The Scotsman.

SPEAK WELL OF THE ABSENT. Song. Words by C. P. RUSSELL. Music by W. T. WRIGHTON. 3s. "Like most of Mr. Wrighton's songs, this one is tuneful and catching. It is very simple and easy, and admirably suited for any voice which can sing from E below the stave to F—that is to say for most voices."—Vide The Scotsman.

REGRET. Song. Words by Miss FRANCIS BLACKWOOD. Music by ANNE FRICKER. 3s. "For a contralto, mezzo-soprano, or baritone voice, this song is admirably suited. It has a pleasant melody, soft and plaintive, and the accompaniment well played will add greatly to the attractiveness of the piece."—Vide The Scotsman.

SOUVENIR OF MASANIELLO. Arranged for the pianoforte. By G. F. WEST. 3s. "Mr. West is a conscientious musician who has done good work in making the music from some of the best operas familiar in most households. This is another composition of the kind."—Vide The Scotsman. All at half price and post free.

THIS Series is produced by an entirely New Process, the Lines being printed direct from COPPER PLATES BY PATENTED MACHINERY, thus securing an accuracy and finish much superior to that obtainable by any process hitherto employed. This system has been adopted successfully in France, and being approved by the Emperor, the books so produced are universally adopted in all the Public Schools throughout the Empire.

In the proper Gradation and Arrangement of the Lines, as well as in the Style of Writing and Engraving, much thought and care have been bestowed, and it is believed they will recommend themselves to all Practical Teachers as an improvement upon any existing series.

Two oz.	1½d.
Four oz.	2d.
Six oz.	2½d.
Eight oz.	3d.
Ten oz.	3½d.
Twelve oz.	4d.

Any letter exceeding the weight of 12 oz. will be liable to a postage of 1d. for every ounce or fraction of an ounce, beginning with the first ounce. A letter posted unpaid will be charged with double postage, and a letter posted insufficiently paid will be charged with double the deficiency. An Inland Letter must not exceed the dimensions of one foot six inches in length, nine inches in width, and six inches in depth.

Halfpenny Post Cards.

Post Cards which bear a halfpenny impressed stamp are available for transmission between places in the United Kingdom only. The front side is intended for the address only. Anything may be written on the reverse side.

Registered Letters.

On payment of a fee of 4d., any inland letter, newspaper, or packet on which the postage has been prepaid in stamps, may be registered. The Post Office will not undertake the safe transmission of valuable enclosures in unregistered letters. And letters found to contain coin, will, on delivery, be charged a double registration fee.

Post Office Savings Bank.

By 24 Victoria, cap. 14, deposits of one shilling, or of any number of shillings, or of pounds and shillings, will be received from any depositor at the Post Office Savings Banks, provided the deposit made by such depositor in any one year ending the 31st day of December do not exceed £30, and provided the total amount standing in such depositor's name in the books of the Postmaster-General do not exceed £150, exclusive of interest. When the principal and interest together standing to the credit of any one depositor amount to the sum of £200, all interest will cease, so long as the same funds continue to amount to the said sum of £200.

The interest is calculated to the 31st December in every year, and is then added to, and becomes part of the principal.

A depositor in any legally established Savings bank may transfer his account to the Post Office Savings Bank by simply applying to the managers of the Savings Bank for a certificate of transfer to the Post Office Savings Bank, and the amount of such certificate will be entered to his credit by the Post Office Savings Bank as so much cash. In the same way an account may be transferred from the Post Office Savings Bank to any other legally established savings bank.

Deposits may be made by, or for the benefit of any person under twenty-one years of age, and repayment will be made to such minor, after the age of seven years, in the same manner as if he were of full age. In case of minors under the age of seven years, the declaration must be made by one of the parents, or a friend, on behalf of the minor.

Deposits may be made by married women, and deposits so made, or made by women who shall afterwards marry, will be repaid to any such woman, unless her husband shall give notice of such marriage, in writing, to the Postmaster-General, and shall require payment to be made to him.

FOR SCOTLAND.

An infant must be registered within 21 days after birth.—A marriage must be registered within three days after the occurrence. — A death must be registered within eight days after the event.

WALMER CASTLE.

Curiosities of Science.

COLOURS HIT MOST FREQUENTLY DURING BATTLE.

It would appear from numerous observations that soldiers are hit during battle according to the colour of their dress in the following order: red is the most fatal colour; the least fatal, Austrian grey. The proportions are, red, 12; rifle-green, 7: brown, 6; Austrian bluish-grey, 5.

THE LEANING TOWER OF PISA.

Sir John Leslie used to attribute the stability of this tower to the cohesion of the mortar it is built with being sufficient to maintain it erect, in spite of its being out of the condition required by physics — to wit, that "in order that a column shall stand, a perpendicular let fall from the centre of gravity must fall within the base." Sir John describes the Tower of Pisa to be in violation of this principle; but, according to later authorities, the perpendicular really falls within the base.

THE MICROSCOPE AND THE SEA

What myriads has the microscope revealed to us of the rich luxuriance of animal life in the ocean, and conveyed to our astonished senses a consciousness of the universality of life! In the oceanic depths every stratum of water is animated, and swarms with countless hosts of small luminiferous animalcules, mammaria, crustacea, peridinea, and circling nereides, which, when attracted to the surface by peculiar meteorological conditions, convert every wave into a foaming band of flashing light.

WALMER CASTLE.

The Castle of Walmer, in Kent, at some distance from the village of the same name, is one of the seaside fortresses erected by command of Henry VIII. It consists of a large central round tower, surrounded by a wall of considerable strength. There are clear remains of a Roman entrenchment close to the castle. This fortress is appropriated to the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports; and here Mr. Pitt, who held that office, and that of Colonel of the Cinque Ports Cavalry, used frequently to pass some of the summer months. The Castle was the official residence of Arthur, first Duke of Wellington, during his wardenship, or from January 29, 1829, to the hour of his lamented death, at twenty-five minutes past three o'clock, P.M., Sep. 14, 1852. Walmer was a favourite retirement of the duke many years before he took possession of the Castle, as Lord Warden. A house of the better class in Castle-street, Walmer, is to this day known as "the Duke's House," and was for some time tenanted by him before entering on his Peninsular campaigns.

Walmer Castle, according to some authorities, occupies the identical spot whereon Cæsar landed nineteen centuries since; that our modern Cæsar should breathe his last upon this spot is one of those strange coincidences that fill men's minds with special wonder. The fortress has been well described as "just the sort of residence that would have been pointed out by an imaginative mind as appropriate to such an event. Placed behind the high shingly beach, which the incessant action of the waves has formed on this part of the coast, and surrounded on the landward side by lofty trees, it does not arrest notice by any pretentious prominence, and the modern windows in the old thick walls denote that warlike uses had been laid aside for the milder and more peaceful influences of the times in which we live. There are, however, some heavy guns upon the upper walls pointed towards the Downs, and below a battery of smaller pieces, that seemed to include foreign invasion among the contingencies to which we are still exposed. It was a place of strength built for rough work in stormy times. It has become a quiet seaside residence, within ear-shot of the surf as it breaks upon the beach, and within sight of those essentially English objects, the chalk cliffs of Dover, the Goodwin sands, and the shipping in the sands."

Curiosities of Science.

WHAT WAS ADAMANT?

Professor Tennant replies, that the adamant described by Pliny was a sapphire, as proved by its form, and by the fact that when struck on an anvil by a hammer it would make an indentation in the metal. A true diamond, under such circumstances, would fall into a thousand pieces.

TRAVELS OF VOLCANIC DUST.

On the 2nd of September, 1845, a quantity of volcanic dust fell in the Orkney Isles, which was supposed to have originated in an eruption of Hecla, in Iceland. It was subsequently ascertained that an eruption of that volcano took place on the morning of the above day (September 2), so as to leave no doubt of the accuracy of the conclusion. The dust had thus travelled about 600 miles!

TEMPERATURE OF THE PLANET MERCURY.

Mercury being so much nearer to the sun than the earth, he receives, it is supposed, seven times more heat than the earth. Mrs. Somerville says: "On Mercury, the mean heat arising from the intensity of the sun's rays must be above that of boiling quicksilver, and water should boil even at the poles." But he may be provided with an atmosphere so constituted as to absorb or reflect a great portion of the superabundant heat; so that his inhabitants (if he have any) may enjoy a climate as temperate as any on our globe.

Books are a Guide in Youth and an Entertainment in Age.

The books of Nature and of Revelation equally elevate our conceptions and invite our piety; they mutually illustrate each other; they have an equal claim on our regard, for they are both written by the finger of one, eternal, incomprehensible God.—WATSON.

Value of Books.

Except a living man, there is nothing more wonderful than a book!—a message to us from the dead—from human souls whom we never saw, who lived, perhaps, thousands of miles away; and yet these, in those little sheets of paper, speak to us, amuse us, terrify us, teach us, comfort us, open their hearts to us as brothers. . . . . I say we ought to reverence books, to look at them as useful and mighty things. If they are good and true, whether they are about religion or politics, farming, trade, or medicine, they are the message of Christ, the maker of all things, the teacher of all truth.—KINGSLEY.

It is chiefly through books that we enjoy intercourse with superior minds; and these invaluable means of communication are in the reach of all. In the best books great men talk to us, give us their most precious thoughts and pour their souls into ours. God be thanked for books, they are the voices of the distant and the dead, and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages. Books are the true levellers. They give to all, who will faithfully use them, the society, the spiritual presence, of the best and greatest of our race. No matter how poor I am; no matter though the prosperous of my own time will not enter into my obscure dwelling; if the sacred writers will enter and take up their abode under my roof; if Milton will only cross my threshold to sing to me of Paradise, and Shakspeare to open to me the worlds of imagination and the workings of the human heart, and Franklin to enrich me with his practical wisdom, I shall not pine for want of intellectual companionship, and I may become a cultivated man though excluded from what is called the best society in the place where I live.—W. ELLERY CHANNING.

KENILWORTH CASTLE.

Curiosities of Science.

FOR WHAT PURPOSE WERE THE STARS CREATED?

Surely not (says Sir John Herschel) to illuminate our nights, which an additional moon of the thousandth part of the size of our own would do much better; nor to sparkle as a pageant void of meaning and reality, and bewilder us among vain conjectures. Useful, it is true, they are to man as points of exact and permanent reference; but he must have studied astronomy to little purpose, who can suppose man to be the only object of his Creator's care, or he who does not see in the vast and wonderful apparatus around us provision for other races of animated beings. The planets derive their light from the sun; but that cannot be the the case with the stars. These, doubtless, then, are themselves suns; and may perhaps, each in its sphere, be the presiding centre round which other planets, or bodies of which we can form no conception from any analogy offered by our own system, are circulating.

NUTRIMENT IN APPLES.

Chemical researches by Mr. J. H. Salisbury, of Albany, show that good varieties of the apple are richer in those bodies which strictly go to nourish the system than potatoes are; or, in other words, to form muscle, brain, nerve, and, in short, assist in sustaining and building up the organic part of all the tissues of the animal body.

KENILWORTH CASTLE.

In the year of Henry I., the manor of Kenilworth was bestowed by the King on Geoffrey de Clinton, who built a strong Castle, and founded a Monastery here. On the death of Geoffrey, the fortress descended to his son, from whom it was transferred to the Crown; and was garrisoned by Henry II. during the rebellion of his son. In the reign of Henry III. it was used as a prison; and in 1254 the King gave to Simon de Montfort, who had married Eleanor, the King's sister, the Castle in trust for life. In 1286, a grand chivalric meeting of one hundred knights of high distinction, English and foreign, and the same number of ladies, was held at Kenilworth; and at this festival, it is said, silks were worn for the first time in England. The Earl of March was the promoter of the festival, and was the principal challenger of the tilt-yard. In the reign of Edward II., the Castle again came into the hands of the Crown, and the King intended to make it a place of retirement for himself; but in the rebellion which soon followed, he was taken prisoner in Wales, and brought to Kenilworth; here he was compelled to sign his abdication, and was soon after privately removed to Berkeley Castle, where he was inhumanly murdered in 1327. Very long after the termination of the Civil Wars, Queen Elizabeth bestowed Kenilworth upon her ambitious favourite, Dudley, Earl of Leicester. That wealthy nobleman spared no expense in beautifying the Castle, and in making many splendid additions, called after him, Leicester's Buildings. The most memorable event in the history of Kenilworth Castle, is the Royal State entertainment given by Leicester to Queen Elizabeth, who came attended by thirty-one barons, besides her ladies of the Court, who, with four hundred servants, were all lodged in the fortress. The festival continued for seventeen days, at an expense estimated at one thousand pounds a day—a very large sum in those days. Kenilworth is a favourite resort for picnic parties, who, by permission of the present noble owner, Lord Clarendon, are enabled to appreciate the interest of this famous historic site.

Curiosities of Science.

COMPENSATING FORCES IN CREATION.

Dr. Maury thus strikingly illustrates the admirable system of compensation, and the beauty and nicety with which things and principles are meted out in directions apparently the most opposite, but in proportions are exactly balanced. Thus, by the action of opposite and compensating forces, the earth is kept in its orbit, and the stars are held in suspension in the azure vault of heaven; and these forces are so exquisitely adjusted, that, at the end of a thousand years, the earth, the sun, and moon, and every star in the firmament, is found to come and stand in its proper place at the proper moment.

When the little snowdrop was created, the whole mass of the earth, from pole to pole, and circumference to centre, must have been taken into account and weighed, in order that the proper degree of strength might be given to its tiny fibres.

INVENTION OF THE SAW.

The invention of the saw has been ascribed by Pliny to Dædalus; but it has been traced to much higher antiquity—the age of the fourth dynasty of Egypt. In sawing, the Egyptians use a large hand-saw: they frequently fixed the wood upright secured by pins in lieu of a vice, or with pins passing through the piece of timber itself, in order to support the planks as they were cut apart; which is the practice of modern sawyers.—WILKINSON.

The morning hour has gold in its mouth.

Make full use of time if thou valuest eternity. Yesterday cannot be recalled; to-morrow cannot be assured; to-day only is thine, which, if thou procrastinatest, thou losest; which, lost, is lost for ever. FULLER.

I would have inscribed on the curtains of your bed, and the walls of your chamber, "If you do not rise early, you can make progress in nothing. If you do not set apart your hours of reading; if you suffer yourself or any one else to break in upon them, your days will slip thro' your hands unprofitable and frivolous, and unenjoyed by yourself."

LORD CHATHAM.

When you find an unwillingness to rise early in the morning, endeavour to rouse your faculties, and act up to your kind, and consider that you have to do the business of a man; and that action is beneficial, and the end of your being.—ANTONINUS.

EARLY-RISING.

Rise with the lark, and with the lark to bed:
The breath of night's destructive to the hue
Of ev'ry flower that blows. Go to the field,
And ask the humble daisy why it sleeps
Soon as the sun departs? Why close the eyes
Of blossoms infinite, long ere the moon
Her oriental veil puts off?
Give to repose the solemn hour she claims,
And from the forehead of the morning steal
The sweet occasion. O there is a charm
Which morning has, that gives the brow of age
A smack of earth, and makes the lip of youth
Shed perfume exquisite. Expect it not,
Ye who till noon upon a down-bed lie,
Indulging feverish sleep. HURDIS.

Few ever lived to a great age, and fewer still ever became distinguished, who were not in the habit of early rising. You rise late, and, of course, commence your business at a late hour, and everything goes wrong all day. Franklin says, that he who rises late, may trot all day, and not have overtaken his his business at night. —TODD.

The difference between rising at five and seven o'clock in the morning, for the space of forty years, supposing a man to go to bed at the same hour at night, is nearly equivalent to the addition of ten years to a man's life. DODDRIDGE.

CARRISBROOK CASTLE.—INTERIOR.

Curiosities of Science.

VALUE OF RICE AS FOOD.

From the earliest period the most general food in India has been rice, which is the most nutritive of all the cerealia, contains an enormous proportion of starch (from 83·8 to 85·07 per cent), and yields to the labourer an average return of at least sixty-fold.

CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD IN MAN AND THE WHALE.

Those who have not considered the subject must be surprised at the quantity of blood which is propelled through the heart of any moderately-sized animal in the course of twenty-four hours. In man the quantity of blood existing in the body at any given moment is probably from thirty to forty pints. Of these an ounce and a half, or about three tablespoonfuls, are sent out at every stroke, which, multiplied into seventy-five (the average rate of the pulse), gives 112 ounces, or seven pints in a minute, i.e. 429 pints, or nearly 54 gallons in an hour, and 1260 gallons, i.e. nearly 24 hogsheads, in a day. Now, if we recollect that the whale is said to send out from his heart at each stroke fifteen gallons, the imagination is overwhelmed with the aggregate of the quantity that must pass through the heart of that leviathan of the deep in 24 hours. It is a general law that the pulse of the larger animals is slower than that of the smaller; but even if we put the pulse of the whale as low as twenty in a minute, the quantity circulated thro' the heart, calculated at 15 gallons for each pulsation, will be 432,000 gallons, nearly equal to 7,000 hogsheads, in twenty-four hours.

CARISBROOK CASTLE.

Among the fortresses of the Isle of Wight, Carisbrook Castle claims the pre-eminence, from its great antiquity and impregnable strength. That it was originally a British camp may be inferred from the shape of the hill upon which it is placed; and there can be little doubt that Vespasian (who, according to Suetonius, in the time of the Emperor Claudius, fought thirty times with the British enemy, and reduced upwards of twenty towns, two powerful nations, and the Isle of Wight, under the Roman power) found on his arrival here a fortress, which he immediately garrisoned.

Adjoining to the present church of Carisbrook are the ruins of a priory of Cistercian monks, founded soon after the Norman Conquest by Fitz-Osborne, Earl of Hereford. There is scarcely enough of the priory left to make a picturesque ruin. Not so of the Castle which stands opposite to it, but on a much higher eminence, where towers, keep, and barbican, ramparts and battlements, frown along the steep, and are just sufficiently ruined and ivy-clad to be eminently romantic and picturesque. The Keep, and the artificial mound it stands on, which lies to the north, and is much higher than the ground-plan of the rest of the fortress, are generally supposed to have been raised by the Saxons as early as the sixth century. The outer wall of the fortress form an irregular pentagon, and are faced with stone, and defended by five bastions, having a break in the centre of the north side. These fortifications were the work of Queen Elizabeth, who, at the instigation of Sir George Carey, gave £4,000 towards the repair of the fortress, when the Spanish Armada was expected. The gentlemen of the Island raised £400, and the commonalty cheerfully dug the outer ditch gratuitously. Camden tells us (1594) that the Castle had been lately restored in a magnificent manner by the Captain of the Island.

Carisbrook Castle was in one instance made memorable by its having been that to which the unhappy Charles I. fled from Hampton Court on November 5, 1647, attended by two confidential servants, but without having determined upon any particular place of refuge.

Curiosities of Science.

THE CHEMISTRY OF MORTAR.

When limestone is burnt, the carbonic-acid gas is expelled from it, and there remains nothing but a pure alkaline earth. Then, if water be mixed with it, as in making mortar, the lime reabsorbs carbonic acid, acquires hardness, and again becomes limestone.

HOW THE BEE MAKES HONEY.

The honey is formed or naturally deposited in the nectaries of flowers, and is extracted from them by the working bees. They deposit it in their crop or honey-bag, which is an expansion of the gullet (œsophagus), and from this receptacle they disgorge it again when they return to the hive. In the interval, it is probably somewhat altered by the admixture with the liquids which are secreted in the mouth and crop of the insect; so that the honey we extract from the hive may not be exactly in the same chemical condition as when it was sucked up by the bee.

COMPOSITION OF SUGAR.

Every variety of sugar is made up of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, in various proportions The one remark, however, applies to all,—that the carbon and hydrogen exist in the exact proportion to form water; moreover, no variety of sugar contains nitrogen: this latter fact is expressive of the purpose which sugar subserves when taken as an aliment. It is unable to contribute nitrogen to the animal economy; but it powerfully contributes to the fixation of carbon in the form of fat, besides contributing to the animal temperature by the combustion of another portion of carbon.

From the lowest depth there is a path to the loftiest height.

Influence of Hope.

HOPE is a vigorous principle; it is furnished with light and heat to advise and execute; it sets the head and heart to work, and animates a man to do his utmost. And thus, by perpetually pushing and assurance, it puts a difficulty out of countenance, and makes a seeming impossibility give way.

JEREMY COLLIER.

Hope is the ruddy morning ray of joy, recollection is its golden tinge; but the latter is wont to sink amid the dews and dusky shades of twilight; and the bright blue day which the former promises, breaks indeed, but in another world, and with another sun.—RICHTER.

HOPE.

The wretch condemn'd with life to part,
Still, still on hope relies;
And every pang that rends the heart,
Bids expectation rise.
Hope, like the glimmering taper's light,
Adorns and cheers the way;
And still, as darker grows the night,
Emits a brighter day.

GOLDSMITH

Proper Use of Hope.

USED with due abstinence, hope acts as a healthful tonic; intemperately indulged, as an enervating opiate. The visions of future triumph, which at first animate exertion, if dwelt upon too intently, will usurp the place of the stern reality; and noble objects will be contemplated not for their own inherent worth, but on account of the day-dreams they engender. Thus hope, aided by imagination, makes one man a hero, another a somnambulist, and a third a lunatic; while it renders them all enthusiasts.—SIR J. STEPHEN.

Hope deferred, maketh the heart sick; but when the desire cometh, it is a tree of life.—SOLOMON.

MANORBEER CASTLE.

Curiosities of Science.

THE CHALK FORMATION.

Mr. Horner, F.R.S., among other things in his researches in the Delta, considers it extremely probable that every particle of chalk in the world has at some period been circulating in the system of a living animal.

FATAL EXPERIMENT WITH LIGHTNING.

These experiments are not without danger; and a flash of lightning has been found to be a very unmanageable instrument. In 1753, M. Richman, at St. Petersburgh, was making an experiment of this kind by drawing lightning into his room, when, incautiously bringing his head too near the wire, he was struck dead by the flash, which issued from it like a globe of blue fire, accompanied by a dreadful explosion.

TO TELL THE APPROACH OF STORMS.

The proximity of storms has been ascertained with accuracy by various indications of the electrical state of the atmosphere. Thus Professor Scott, of Sandhurst College, observed in Shetland that drinking-glasses, placed in an inverted position upon a shelf in a cupboard on the ground-floor of Belmont House, occasionally emitted sounds as if they were tapped with a knife, or raised a little and then let fall on the shelf. These sounds preceded wind; and when they occurred, boats and vessels were immediately secured. The strength of the sound is said to be proportioned to the tempest that follows.

MANORBEER CASTLE.

Near Tenby, in the most delightful part of Pembrokeshire, is Manorbeer, or "the Manor of the Lords," an ancient castle, "set in a framework of hills," and considered to be the most perfect residence of an old Norman baron, with its "church, mill, dovehouse, pond, park, and grove, still to be traced, and the houses of his vassals at such a distance as to be within call." It is the most entire structure of its class in Wales. It has escaped the ravages of enemies, of fire, and siege, and it has been tenantless since the feudal age; hence its entirety. The buildings have stone roofs, many of which are perfect. The founder is stated to have been of the family of De Barri, of which Giraldus Sylvester, surnamed Cambrensis, was born here, in the year 1146; and journeyed through the rough and mountainous parts of Wales, in order to preach to the people the necessity of a crusade, which he has chronicled in his Itinerary. He died at St. David's, in the 74th year of his age, and was buried in the Cathedral Church, where his effigy still remains upon an altar-tomb, beneath an ornamented arch. "Noble in his birth," says Sir Richard Colt Hoare, who has given a full account of the MS. of his work, "and comely in his person; mild in his manners, and affable in his conversation; zealous, active, and undaunted in maintaining the rights and dignities of the Church; moral in his character, and orthodox in his principles; charitable and disinterested, though ambitious; learned, though superstitious;—such was Giraldus. And in whatever point of view we examine the character of this extraordinary man, whether as a scholar, a patriot, or a divine, we may justly consider him as one of the brightest luminaries that adorned the annals of the twelfth century." As an historian, however, he was full of credulity; and as a man, as his works prove, one of the vainest upon record.

The Manor and Castle passed from the family of De Barri early in the reign of Henry VI.; they were next bestowed on John de Windsor, from whom they reverted to the Crown; they were then purchased by Thomas Owain, of Trellwyn, from whose family they passed to that of Lord Milford.

Curiosities of Science.

THE ELEPHANT AND TORTOISE

The idea of an elephant standing on the back of a tortoise was often laughed at as an absurdity, until Captain Cautley and Dr. Falconer at length discovered in the hills of Asia the remains of a tortoise in a fossil state of such a size that an elephant could easily have performed the above feat.

TIME LOST IN ELECTRIC MESSAGES.

Although it may require an hour, or two or three hours, to transmit a telegraphic message to a distant city, yet it is the mechanical adjustment by the sender and receiver which really absorbs this time; the actual transit is practically instantaneous, and so it would be from here to the antipodes, so far as the current itself is concerned.

TRANSPARENCY OF THE OCEAN

Captain Glynn, U.S.N., has made some interesting observations, ranging over 200 degrees of latitude, in different oceans, in very high latitudes, and near the equator. His apparatus was simple: a common white dinner-plate slung so as to lie in the water horizontally, and sunk by an iron pot with a line. Numbering the fathoms at which the plate was visible below the surface, Captain Glynn saw it on two occasions, at the maximum, twenty-five fathoms (150 feet) deep; the water was extraordinarily clear, and to lie in the boat and look down was like looking down from the masthead; and the objects were clearly defined to a great depth.

Youth is the time for Enterprise and Hope.

Happy season of virtuous youth, when shame is an impassable barrier, and the sacred air-cities of hope have not shrunk into the mean clay hamlets of reality; and man, by his nature, is yet definite and free.—CARLYLE.

BESTOW thy youth so that thou mayest have comfort to remember it when it hath forsaken thee, and not sigh and grieve at the account thereof. Whilst thou art young, thou wilt think it will never have an end; but behold, the longest day hath its evening, and that thou shalt enjoy it but once, that it never turns again; use it, therefore, as the spring time, which soon departeth, and wherein thou oughtest to plant and sow all provisions for a long and happy life.—SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

A SERMON FOR THE YOUNG.

An American journal, in giving a sketch of the life and character of the late President Lincoln, gives the following as a short sermon which he was in the habit of preaching to his children:—"Don't drink. Don't smoke. Don't chew. Don't swear. Don't gamble. Don't lie. Don't cheat. Love your fellow-man as well as God. Love truth. Love virtue, and be happy."

YOUTH is ever confiding; and we can almost forgive its disinclination to follow the counsels of age, for the sake of the generous disdain with which it rejects suspicion.

HARRISON.

Youth is not the age of pleasure; we then expect too much, and we are, therefore, exposed to daily disappointments and mortifications. When we are a little older, and have brought down our wishes to our experience, then we become calm and begin to enjoy ourselves.—LORD LIVERPOOL.

HE WHO CANNOT LIVE WELL TO-DAY WILL BE LESS QUALIFIED TO LIVE WELL TO-MORROW.

BOLSOVER CASTLE.

Curiosities of Science.

THE ALPINE TUNNEL.

The total expenses of the Mont Cenis Tunnel amount to 65,000,000f.; of these, 20,000,000f. are to be contributed by the Victor Emmanuel Railway, or Railway of Northern Italy. This sum was to be paid on or before the opening of the tunnel. The French Government was to pay 19,000,000f. if the work was accomplished within 20 years, reckoning from 1862. But if the work was accomplished at an earlier date France bound herself to pay 500,000f. more for every year gained upon the stipulated time. As there have been 11 years thus gained, France will have to pay 5,500,000f. besides the 20,000,000 of the original stipulation. She has, besides, to pay 5 per cent. interest on the money due for the work as it proceeded from year to year. Thus the charge borne by Italy in this enterprise will be something less than 20,000,000f., an advantage fairly gained by her diligence in carrying on the work, a diligence stimulated by the very conditions of the contract. It must be observed that had the construction of the tunnel continued beyond the stipulated term of 20 years, it was Italy that would have lost 500,000f. for every year in excess of that period. There was a time in which the hard quartz with which the excavators fell in on the side of Modane rendered it extremely difficult to foretell how long it might be before the tunnel could be terminated. Fortunately, the quartz stratum was only 880 metres thick, and no very serious resistance was met elsewhere.

BOLSOVER CASTLE.

Bolsover, a populous village on the eastern verge of Derbyshire, has been for ages celebrated for its Castle, which occupies the plain of a rocky hill, and is a landmark for the surrounding country. At the time of the Domesday, the manor of Bolsover belonged to William Peverell, who is supposed to have built the first Castle. Not long after the forfeiture of his property by William Peverell, the younger, for poisoning Ranulph, Earl of Chester, in 1153, we find Bolsover given with the manor by Richard I. in 1189, to his brother John, on his marriage. The Castle was in the possession of the Barons in 1215.

Leland mentions the first Castle as in ruins in his time, and no vestige of it now remains. That which is now called the Castle is a domestic residence, with somewhat of a castellated appearance. It was begun about the year 1613, immediately after the purchase was made by Sir Charles Cavendish, who then removed what remained of the old Castle. It is a square, lofty, and embattled structure of brown stone, with a tower at each angle, the northern being much higher than the others. The interior has small rooms, wainscoted, and fancifully inlaid and painted; and the ceilings of the best apartments are carved and gilt. There is a small hall, the roof of which is supported by pillars; and there is a large room, called "the star-chamber." The drawing-room was formerly "the pillar parlour," from its having in the centre a stone column, from which springs an arched ceiling, while round the lower part of the shaft is placed the dining table of right chivalric form. Hitherto we have spoken but of that part of Bolsover Castle which was formerly denominated the Little House, to distinguish it from the more magnificent structure adjoining. This was, probably, the residence of Cavendish, a range of apartments now roofless and rent into fissures, and of which only the outside walls are standing. The Castle now belongs to the Duke of Portland, whose family derived it from the Newcastle Cavendishes. The whole pile is wearing away; though the remains have little of the picturesqueness of decay.

Curiosities of Science.

THE NINE WORTHIES.

These are famous personages, often alluded to, and classed together rather in an arbitrary manner, like the Seven Wonders of the World, &c.

The Nine have been thus counted up as the Nine Worthies of the World by Richard Burton, in a book published in 1687:

Three Gentiles—
1. Hector, son of Priam.
2. Alexander the Great.
3. Julius Cæsar.

Three Jews—
4. Joshua, conqueror of Canaan.
5. David, king of Israel.
6. Judas Maccabæus.

Three Christians—
7. Arthur, king of Britain.
8. Charles the Great, or Charlemagne.
9. Godfrey of Bullen [Bouillon].

London had also Nine Worthies of her own, according to a pamphlet by Richard Johnson, author of the famous "History of the Seven Champions." These worthies are—1. Sir Wm. Walworth, fishmonger; 2. Sir H. Pritchard, vintner; 3. Sir W. Sevenoake, grocer; 4. Sir T. White, merchant-tailor; 5. Sir John Bonham, mercer; 6. Sir Christopher Croker, vintner; 7. Sir J. Hawkwood, merchant-tailor; 8. Sir Hugh Calvert, silk-weaver; 9. Sir Henry Maleverer, grocer. Sir Thomas White seems to have been the only quite peaceable worthy among them, whose fame lives in St. John's College, Oxford, and Merchant Tailors' School London, which school he founded.

Beware of little expenses: a small leak will sink a great ship.

IT is no small commendation to manage a little well. He is a good waggoner that can turn in a little room. To live well in abundance is the praise of the estate, not of the person. I will study more how to give a good account of my little, than how to make it more.—BISHOP HALL.

I had rather see my courtiers laugh at my avarice, than my people weep at my extravagance.—LOUIS XII.

Let honesty and industry be thy constant companions, and spend one penny less than thy clear gains: then shall thy hide-bound pocket soon begin to thrive, and will never again cry with the empty belly-ache.—FRANKLIN.

ECONOMY.

All to whom want is terrible, upon whatever principle, ought to think themselves obliged to learn the sage maxims of our parsimonious ancestors, and attain the salutary arts of contracting expense; for WITHOUT ECONOMY NONE CAN BE RICH, AND WITH IT FEW CAN BE POOR. The mere power of saving what is already in our hands must be of easy acquisition to every mind; and as the example of Lord Bacon may show that the highest intellect cannot safely neglect it, a thousand instances every day prove that the humblest may practise it with success.

JOHNSON.

ECONOMY is the parent of integrity, of liberty, and of ease; and the beauteous sister of temperance, of cheerfulness, and health: and profuseness is a cruel and crafty demon, that gradually involves her followers in dependence and debts; that is, fetter them with "irons that enter into their souls."—JOHNSON.

No man is rich whose expenditure exceeds his means; and no one is poor, whose incomings exceed his outgoings.

He that is taught to live upon little, owes more to his father's wisdom, than he that has a great deal left him, does to his father's care.—PENN.

Economy is of itself a great revenue.—CICERO.

PAPER-HANGINGS AND PICTURES.

The paper of the wall against which pictures are suspended should have no pattern, and be of one uniform colour; and if borders are introduced, they should not contain flowers, but be of some geometrical or conventional style of ornament. The best colours for the wall-paper are red, inclining to crimson (especially for landscapes), or tea-green. Bright carpets, and all gaudy colours in the hangings, furniture, or elsewhere, are likewise injurious to the effect of pictures.

CURE FOR STAMMERING.

Dr. Warren, of the United States, has devised an easy and effectual cure for stammering, which is known to be generally a mental, and not a physical, defect. The method is, simply, at every syllable pronounced to tap at the same time with the finger; by doing which the most inveterate stammerer will be surprised to find that he can pronounce quite fluently, and by long and constant practice he will pronounce perfectly well. This may be explained in two ways: either by a sympathetic consentaneous action of the nerves of voluntary motion in the finger and those of the tongue,—which is most probable, for we know that a stammerer, who cannot speak a sentence in the usual way, can articulate perfectly well when he introduces a rhythmical movement, and sings it; or it may be that the movement of the finger distracts the attention of the individual from his speech.

WARWICK CASTLE.

Warwick Castle is one of the very few baronial residences now remaining which are connected with our early history; and rears its round and lofty turrets in the immediate vicinity of the town of Warwick. It stands on a rocky eminence, 40 feet perpendicular height, and overhanging the river which washes its rocky base. The most ancient part of the present Castle, according to Domesday Book, was erected in the reign of Edward the Confessor; which document informs us that it was "a special stronghold for the midland part of the kingdom." In the reign of William the Norman it received considerable additions; when Turchill, then vicecomes of Warwickshire, was ordered to enlarge and repair it. The Conqueror, however, being distrustful of Turchill, committed the custody of it to one of his followers, Henry de Newburgh, whom he created Earl of Warwick, the first of that title of the Norman line. The second earl garrisoned the Castle for King Stephen. To the Newburgs succeeded the Beauchamps; Annie, daughter and heiress of Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, in the reign of Henry VI., married Richard Neville, who assumed the title of Earl of Warwick in the reign of Henry VI., by right of his wife, and was called the King-maker. After his death, at the battle of Barnet, the Duke of Clarence who had married his daughter, was created Earl of Warwick by King Edward IV., and put in possession of the Castle; to which he made great additions. The title of the Earl of Warwick was given by James I. to Robert Rich, whose property it continued till 1759. The Castle was granted by the same King to Sir Fulke Greville, Lord Brook, after having passed through the successive lines of Beauchamp, Neville, Plantagenet, and Dudley. Sir Fulke Greville found the Castle in a ruinous condition, and expended large sums in its restoration. Francis Lord Brook was created Earl Brook of Warwick Castle in 1746; and in 1759 Earl of Warwick. The gatehouse tower of the Castle is flanked by embattled walls, covered with ivy, having at the extremity Cæsar's Tower and Guy's Tower. Many of the rooms of the Castle are hung with tapeslry, and ancestral portraits, and a collection of ancient and modern armour.

Curiosities of Science.

TREES STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Meteorologists have found in trees struck by lightning no traces of electricity on the upper branches, but it appears to strike at the main trunk. When the colour of the electric discharge is red, it indicates that the electricity is very high.

AT WHAT SEASON MAN WEIGHS MOST.

Season has an influence on the weight of man. Thus Mr. Milner weighed the prisoners in Hull gaol for five years, and found that they regularly increased in weight from April to November, and decreased in weight from November to March. The diet was the same all the year round, as was also the temperature.

FILTERING WATER.

In a lecture recently delivered at the Royal Institution, Dr. Lankester insisted upon the necessity for filtering all water used in drinking or cooking, from whatever source; and proved to his audience, by chemical analysis, that unfiltered water, however clear and bright, may contain the most deleterious if not the most deadly constituents. The lecturer the more impressively substantiated the fact by the analysis of the water from a notoriously favourite pump. The water was quite cool, fresh, and tasteless to the palate, owing to a peculiar combination of nitric acid; but, upon chemical tests being applied, it yielded a large amount of deleterious matter.

Adversity, like winter weather, is of use to kill those vermin which the summer of prosperity is apt to produce and nourish.

There is a commodity of which the value rises as as long as we live.

GOOD ADVICE.

Because you flourish in worldly affairs,
Don't be haughty and put on airs,
With insolent pride of station!
Don't be proud, and turn up your nose
At poorer people, in plainer clothes,
But learn, for the sake of mind's repose,
That wealth's a bubble that comes and goes!
And that all proud flesh, wherever it grows,
Is subject to irritation.

A man will soon think lightly of his own misfortunes, by comparing them with those of others.

The first thing saved is the first thing gained.

Life is too short to be spent in nursing animosities or registering wrongs.

Accustom the mind to the best company by introducing it to the best books.

A word, a look, a frown, are little things, but they are powerful for good or evil.

Economy is no disgrace; it is better to live on a little than to outlive a great deal.

Let no one overload you with favours; you will find it an insufferable burden.

A bad habit is more easily conquered to-day than to-morrow.

Industry and economy will get rich while sagacity and intrigue are laying their plans.

LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC ANECDOTES.

Early Translations of the Bible.

The Translation of the Bible was begun very early in this kingdom. Some part of it was done by King Alfred. Adelmus translated the Psalms into Saxon in 709. Other parts were done by Edfrid, or Egbert, 750; the whole by Bede. In 1357, Trevisa published the whole in English. Tindall's translation appeared in 1334, was revised and altered in 1538, published with a preface of Cranmer's in 1549, and allowed to be read in churches. In 1551 another translation was published, which, being revised by several bishops, was printed with their alterations in 1560. In 1613 a new translation was published by authority, which is that in present use. There was not any translation of it into the Irish language till 1685. The Pope did not give his permission for the translation of it in any language till 1759.

"The Book of Jeshur." See Joshua x. 13, and 2 Samuel i. 18.

"The Book of Iddo the Seer." See 2 Chron. ix. 29, and xii. 15.

"The Book of Nathan the Prophet." See as above.

"The Prophecies of Ahijah the Shilonite." See as above.

"The Acts of Rehoboam, in the Book of Shemaiah." See 2 Chron. xii. 15.

"The Book of Jehu the son of Hanani." See 2 Chron. xx. 34.

"The Five Books of Solomon, treating on the nature of trees, beasts, fowls, serpents, and fishes." See 1 Kings iv. 33.

Force of Imagination.

Dr. Buckland, the distinguished geologist, one day gave a dinner, after dissecting a Mississippi alligator, having asked a good many of the most distinguished of his class to dine with him. His house and all his establishment were in good style and taste. His guests congregated; the dinner-table showed splendidly, with glass, china, and plate, and the meal commenced with excellent soup.

"How do you like the soup?" asked the Doctor, after having finished his own plate, addressing a famous gourmand of the day.

"Very good, indeed," answered the other. "Turtle, is it not? I only ask because I do not find any green fat."

The Doctor shook his head.

"I think it has somewhat of a musky taste," said another; "not unpleasant, but peculiar."

"All aligators have," replied Buckland; "the cayman peculiarly so. The fellow whom I dissected this morning, and whom you have just been eating—"

There was a general rout of the whole guests. Every one turned pale. Half-a-dozen started up from the table. Two or three of them ran out of the room and vomited; and only those who had stout stomachs remained to the close of an excellent entertainment.

"See what imagination is," said Buckland. "If I told them it was turtle, or terrapin, or bird's-nest soup—salt water amphibia or fresh, or the gluten of a fish from the maw of a sea-bird, they would have pronounced it excellent, and their digestion been none the worse. Such is prejudice."

"But was it really an alligator?" asked a lady.

"As good a calf's head as ever wore a coronet," answered Buckland.

First English Almanack.

The first almanack in England was printed in Oxford, in 1673. "There were," says Wood, "near thirty thousand of them printed, besides a sheet almanack for twopence, that was printed that year; and because of the novelty of the said almanack, and its title, they were all vended. Its sale was so great, that the Society of Booksellers in London bought off the copy for the future, in order to engross the profits in their own hands."

Abernethy—His Wit and Eccentricity.

A lady consulted him on a nervous disorder, and gave him a long, frivolous, and fantastical detail of her symptoms. He referred her, as was his wont, to his "book," but she persisted in endeavouring to extract further information from him. "May I eat oysters, Doctor? may I take supper?" "I'll tell you what, madam," replied Mr. Abernethy, impatiently, "you may eat anything but the poker and the bellows; for the one is too hard of digestion, and the other is full of wind."

A Royal Critic.

Some very abusive satire in verse was once sent to King James the First; and as the passages were being read before him, he often said, "That if there were no more men in England, the rogue should hang for it." At last being come to the conclusion, which was (after all his railing)—

"Now God preserve the king, the queen, the peers,
And grant the author long may wear his ears."

This pleased his majesty so well, that he broke into a laughter, and said, "By my soul, so thou shalt for me. Thou art a bitter, but thou art a witty knave."

Franklin as a Bookseller.

One fine morning when Franklin was busy preparing his newspaper for the press, a lounger stepped into the store, and spent an hour or more looking over the books, &c., and finally taking one in his hand, asked the shop-boy the price.

"One dollar," was the answer.

"One dollar," said the lounger, "can't you take less than that?"

"No, indeed; one dollar is the price."

Another hour had nearly passed, when the lounger said—

"Is Mr. Franklin at home?"

"Yes, he is in the printing-office."

"I want to see him," said the lounger.

The shop-boy immediately informed Mr. Franklin that a gentleman was in the store, waiting to see him. Franklin was soon behind the counter, when the lounger, with book in hand, addressed him thus:

"Mr. Franklin, what is the lowest you can take for that book?"

"One dollar and a quarter," was the ready answer.

"One dollar and a quarter! Why, your young man asked me only a dollar."

"True," said Franklin, "and I could have better afforded to have taken a dollar then, than to have been taken out of the office."

The lounger seemed surprised, and wishing to end the parley of his own making, said—

"Come, Mr. Franklin, tell me what is the lowest you can take for it?"

"One dollar and a half."

"A dollar and a half! Why, you offered it yourself for a dollar and a quarter."

"Yes," said Franklin, "and I had better have taken that price then, than a dollar and a half now."

The lounger paid down the price, and went about his business—if he had any—and Franklin returned into his printing office.

Strasburg Cathedral.

The cathedral is thought by the Strasburghers to be sadly damaged; perhaps the fact tbat the Germans have taken possession of it is considered by them as only a trifle less horrible than if it had been actually razed to the ground; but it must be confessed that to strangers' eyes it looks, externally, much as it did eight years ago. When the effect of the balls was pointed out, one could of course perceive that here a statue had lost an arm or leg; there a long piece of parapet shot away; and, farther on, the mullion of a window was splintered; yet these misfortunes were not very noticeable to the eyes of strangers. But on going within the beautiful edifice it was grieving to see the fearful gaps—now closed by boards—and numerous speckings all over the grand coloured glass of the windows. The one most seriously damaged is in the clear-story of the nave, immediately facing the organ. The large cinque-foil in the head of this is entirely shot away, and great damage is done to other portions of this and the neighbouring windows. A horrible "obus"—a huge pointed cartridge—came crashing through the glass, flew across the nave of the cathedral, and, smashing in the organ-pipes, lodged in the organ itself. Here, wonderful to tell, it remained without exploding! Had it burst, of course annihilation of not only the beautiful organ, but also of a great part of the cathedral itself, must have been the consequence. The custodian of the tower has had the dreadful missile mounted on a foot of marble, and on it is fixed a brass plate telling the day (or rather the night), month, and year when this fearful hail of iron and fire fell on the devoted town. The organ-pipes have not yet been replaced, but white linen blinds are drawn down over the cruel gaps. More than half of the organ is so covered, thus showing the extent of the damage done. The marvellous mechanical clock, an object of surpassing interest to all interested in mechanical art, is apparently uninjured.

Opportunity.

Uttered out of time, or concealed in its season, good savoureth of evil. TUPPER.

There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries:
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures. SHAKSPEARE.

How often do we sigh for opportunities of doing good, whilst we neglect the openings of Providence in little things, which would frequently lead to the accomplishment of most important usefulness! Good is done by degrees. However small in proportion the benefit which follows individual attempts to do good, a great deal may thus be accomplished by perseverance, even the midst of discouragements and disappointments. CRABBE.

TIME.

Why sitt'st thou by that ruin'd hall,
Thou aged carle so stern and grey?
Dost thou its former pride recall,
Or ponder how it pass'd away?

"Know'st thou not me?" the Deep Voice cried,
"So long enjoy'd, so oft misused—
Alternate, in thy fickle pride,
Desired, neglected, and accused?

Before my breath, like blazing flax,
Man and his marvels pass away;
And changing empires wane and wax,
Are founded, flourish, and decay.

Redeem thine hours—the space is brief—
While in my glass the sand-grains shiver,
And measureless thy joy or grief,
When Time and thou shalt part for ever!"

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

You do well to improve your opportunity; to speak in the rural phrase, this is your sowing time, and the sheaves you look for can never be yours, unless you make that use of it. The colour of our whole life is generally such as the three or four first years in which we are our own masters, make it. Then it is that we may be said to shape our own destiny, and to treasure up for ourselves a series of future successes or disappointments. COWPER.

The moment comes—
It is already come—when thou must write
The absolute total of thy life's vast sum.
The constellations stand victorious o'er thee,
The planets shoot good fortune in fair junctions,
And tell thee, "Now's the time!" SCHILLER.

Feeble souls are like those tracts of land which have neither depth nor richness of soil, yet however arid, produce something to serve the world. The sandy and stony deserts of the Cape are covered with heath of every hue and form to beautify the scene and to charm the traveller's eye. Even so the feeblest soul can display some phase of feeling and character that shall add a beauty to its sphere. The world wants the heath as well as the oak, and the genial heavens shine alike on both. DAVID THOMAS.

Alfred the Great Learning to Read.

Alfred the Great ascended the throne in 872. Born when his country was involved in the most profound darkness and deplorable condition, and when learning was considered rather as a reproach than an honour to a prince, he was not taught to know one letter from another till he was above twelve years of age, when a book was put into his hand, by accident more than by previous design. Judith, his stepmother, was sitting one day, surrounded by her family, with a book of Saxon poetry in her hands. With a happy judgment, she proposed it as a gift to him who would first learn to read it. The elder princes thought the reward inadequate to the task, and retired from the field of emulation. But the mind of Alfred, captivated by the prospect of information, and pleased with the neatness of the writing and the beauty of the illuminations, inquired if she actually intended to give it to the person who would soonest learn to read it. His mother repeating the promise, with a smile of joy at the question, he took the book, found out an instructor, and learned to read it, recited it to her, and received it for his reward. It is said that he imbibed such a passion for reading that he never stirred abroad without a book in his bosom. He founded and endowed schools (among others Oxford), and brought teachers of learning from all parts of the world, purchased books, ordered the Bible to be translated into the Anglo-Saxon, undertaking the version of the Psalms himself, but did not live to complete it; and, in short, encouraged education and learning equally by precept and example.

It is manifest that all government of action is to be obtained by knowledge, and knowledge, best by gathering many knowledges, which is reading.

Profits of Recent Authorship.

The late Mr. Tegg, the publisher in Cheapside, gave the following list of remunerative payments to distinguished authors in his time; and he is believed to have taken considerable pains to verify the items:—Fragments of History, by Chas. Fox, sold by Lord Holland, for 5,000 guineas. Fragments of History, by Sir James Macintosh, £500. Lingard's History of England, £1683. Sir Walter Scott's Bonaparte was sold, with the printed books, for £18,000; the net receipts of copyright on the first two editions only must have been £10,000. Life of Wilberforce, by his sons, 4,000 guineas. Life of Byron, by Moore, £4,000. Life of Sheridan, by Moore, £2,000. Life of Hannah More, £2,000. Life of Cowper, by Southey, £1,000. Life and times of George IV., by Lady C. Bury, £1,000. Byron's Works, £20,000. Lord of the Isles, half share, £1,500. Lalla Rookh, by Moore, £3,000. Rejected Addresses, by Smith, £1,000. Crabbe's Works, republication of, by Mr. Murray, £3,000. Wordsworth's Works, republication of, by Mr. Moxon, £1050. Bulwer's Rienzi, £1,600. Marryat's Novels, £500 to £1,500 each. Trollope's Factory Boy, £1800. Hannah More derived £30,000 per annum for her copyrights, during the latter years of her life. Rundell's Domestic Cookery, £2,000. Nicholas Nickleby, £3000. Eustace's Classical Tour, £2,100. Sir R. Inglis obtained for the beautiful and interesting widow of Bishop Heber, by the sale of his Journal, £5,000.

Origin of the word Teetotal.

The word teetotal originated with a Lancashire working-man, who, being unused to public speaking and wishing to pronounce the word "total" in connection with "abstinence from all intoxicating liquors," hesitated, and pronounced the first letter by itself, and the word after it, making altogether t-total. This fact it is well to be acquainted with, because it sufficiently refutes the vulgar notion that tee has reference to tea.

Formation of Character.

Kindred objects kindred thoughts inspire,
As summer clouds flash forth electric fire.

The subject of a man's thoughts contributes much to the formation of his character. He whose imagination is wont to dwell on the world and worldly things, will be apt to contract a character of a worldly cast. He will be "of the earth, earthy." But he who is used to lift up his thoughts to high and heavenly things, and delights to feed his mind with the prospect "of the glory that shall be revealed" in the bodies of just men raised incorruptible, and in their spirits made perfect: of the excellency of their abode, and the purity of their joys, and the holiness of their companions, and the unmingled godliness of their pursuits and occupations in the presence of God and of Christ, will hardly fail of deriving thence by God's blessing, and infusing into his own character, some particles of a celestial spirit; and of advancing, by means of these "exceeding great and precious promises," in that improvement of the inner man, which St. Peter terms a "partaking of the divine nature."—BISHOP MANT.

A Psalm of Life.

Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
"Life is but an empty dream!"
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.

Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
"Dust thou art, to dust returnest,"
Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way;
But to act, that each to-morrow
Find us farther than to-day.

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time;—

Footprints, that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again.

Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labour and to wait.

LONGFELLOW.

Thought Lives.

Beautiful it is to understand and know that a thought did never yet die; that, as thou, the originator thereof, hast gathered it, and created it from the whole past,—so thou wilt transmit it to the whole future. It is thus that the heroic heart, the seeing eye of the first times, still feels and sees in us of the latest, that the wise man stands ever encompassed and spiritually embraced by a cloud of witnesses and brothers; and there is a living literal communion of saints, wide as the world itself, and as the history of the world.—CARLYLE.

Every man has in himself a continent of undiscovered character. Happy is he who acts the Columbus to his own soul.—SIR J. STEVENS.

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavour to be what you desire to appear.—SOCRATES.

Triumphs of Science.

It has lengthened life; it has mitigated pain; it has extinguished diseases; it has increased the fertility of the soil; it has given new securities to the mariner; it has furnished new arms to the warrior; it has spanned great rivers and estuaries with bridges of form unknown to our fathers; it has guided the thunderbolt innocuously from heaven to earth; it has lighted up the night with the splendour of day; it has extended the range of the human vision; it has multiplied the power of the human muscles; it has accelerated motion; it has annihilated distance; it has facilitated intercourse, correspondence, all friendly offices, all despatch of business; it has enabled man to descend to the depths of the sea, to soar into the air, to penetrate securely into the noxious recesses of the earth, to traverse the land in cars which whirl along without horses, and the ocean in ships which go ten knots an hour against the wind. These are but a part of its fruits, and of its first fruits. For it is a philosophy which never rests, which has never attained, which is never perfect. Its law is progress. A point which yesterday was invisible is its goal to-day, and will be its starting-post to-morrow.

The Czar and the Monk.

Peter the Great having directed the translation of Puffendorff's Introduction to the Knowledge of the States of Europe into the Russian language, a monk to whom this translation was committed, presented it to the Emperor when finished, who turned over the leaves, and exclaimed with an indignant air, "Fool! what did I order you to do? Is this a translation?" Then referring to the original, he showed him a paragraph in which the author had spoken with great asperity of the Russians, but the translator had omitted it. "Go instantly," said the Czar, "and execute my orders rigidly. It is not to flatter my subjects that I have this book translated and printed, but to instruct and reform them."

GARDENING OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR.

JANUARY.

Trench and manure, prepare hot-beds for asparagus, cucumbers, mint, potatoes, and the small salads. Sow the brown Dutch and grand admiral cabbages, curled parsley for transplanting; frame peas, horn carrots, mazagan beans, onions (to be allowed to grow large); plant out cabbage plants to succeed those which have been planted out in autumn.

FEBRUARY.

All the ground which is destined for early crops must now be prepared, and hot-beds be multiplied for cucumbers and early melons. Celery may be sown on a moderate hot-bed; also, sow cabbages, horn carrots, lettuces, leeks, parsnips, and in fact most of the table vegetables. Those plants, such as cabbages, chives, garlic, shalots, under ground onions, and horseradish, which are fit, should now be transplanted.

MARCH.

In open borders sow asparagus, cabbages, carrots, curled and Hamburgh parsley, Neapolitan kale, parsnips, onions, &c.; plant out such vegetables as have been already sown. Before sowing, dig carefully, and make the ground level and fine. Main crops may be sown in this month, such as early long-pod beans, peas, celery, turnips, and, indeed, most other vegetables. Mustard, cress, lettuce, spinach, and radishes, may be sown every week or fortnight, for succession. Chives, shalots, garlic, &c., may be planted; plant rhubarb, potatoes, and Jerusalem artichokes. Cuttings or slips of sweet herbs may be planted

APRIL.

Planting the vegetables which have been sown is now the chief business. Make hot-beds for cucumbers and melons; force kidney beans and Elford rhubarb. Plant out artichokes and potatoes; sow asparagus, beets, cabbages, celery, garden and kidney beans, Dutch turnips, lettuces, peas, radishes, small salading.

MAY

Sow carrots, lettuce, capsicums, cauliflowers, spinach, Knight's marrow-fat peas, &c. Transplant cabbages, winter greens, lettuces, and celery. Hoe and stake peas, water newly planted crops, and propagate aromatic plants by slips and cuttings. Protect from wind and rain choice tulips, ranunculuses, and anemonies. Propagate herbaceous plants by dividing the roots; wallflowers, sweet-williams, and rockets, by slips; and China roses, heliotropiums, &c., by cuttings.

JUNE.

Sow cape brocoli, kidney beans, peas, lettuces, radishes, campions, spinach, small salading, &c. The best peas for sowing now are Knight's marrow peas; they will bear till October. Hoe the beds of table vegetables, and pick out the most curled plants of curled parsley, cress, and chervil, for seed. Watering the freshly-planted crops must now be attended to in dry weather in the evenings, or very early in the mornings. Weeding and thinning out are also of importance, as well as hoeing, particularly with potatoes, cabbages, and peas.

JULY.

Plant cabbages, savoys, coleworts, brocoli, lettuce, celery, &c. Train and regulate the summer shoots both of wall trees and standards; prune vine and fig-trees, and shade ripe currents that are exposed to the full blaze of the sun. Place nets on the cherries to protect them from birds. Take up garlic, onions, and shalots, as their leaves begin to decay.

AUGUST.

Both cabbages, brocoli, endive, spinach, Welsh onions, turnips, and radishes should now be sown. The celery sown should be planted, and that already planted, as well as cardoons, should be earthed up.

SEPTEMBER.

Sow vegetable seed for a spring crop. Prick out cabbage plants, and gather ripe seeds. Endive and lettuce may be planted out on beds sloping to the south-west, and fenced round to drain off water. Hoe and clear the ground about turnips. Cabbage for collards in November, and German greens may be planted early in the month.

OCTOBER.

Sow magazan beans, and frame peas on a warm southern border; lay into the ground purple and white bocoli, within a few inches of their lower leaves, letting their heads face the north; transplant cauliflowers and purple brocoli under frames and hand-glasses; cabbages, garlic, lettuces, and shalots, under frames.

NOVEMBER.

Force seakale, rhubarb, and asparagus; take up endive, brocoli, and cauliflower, and lay them flat in dry ground; transplant suckers taken from the roots of the pear and codling plum, and prepare them for budding and grafting different fruits upon.

DECEMBER

Celery should now be earthed up, and in so careful a manner as not to require the operation again; force asparagus, also rhubarb, and seakale; lay in as early as possible this month the brocoli, purple and white.

GENERAL HINTS.

Operating on the Soil.—Trenching should always follow draining, or the latter will act but partially. Unless the ground be stirred pretty deeply, half the effect of draining will be lost. Both must be done in the autumn or early part of the winter, and the ground will then be in a good state for cropping in spring. Manuring may be done in early winter when the ground is somewhat frozen, as the material can then be wheeled on with greater ease, and the grounds and paths will be less cut up. Light.—Want of light is often the real cause of evils which are popularly ascribed to want of air, though both combined may occasionally be acting. Light may, however, be prejudicial to plants in certain stages, as after fresh planting or potting, when it stimulates them more than their crippled roots will bear. Dull weather is, therefore, best for both potting and planting, and a little shade after either process may often be beneficial.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH.

Mr. TUCK'S new description of Artificial Teeth, with all the latest Improvements, are fitted Without Springs, Wires, Bands, or Visible Fastenings. They so perfectly

RESEMBLE THE NATURAL TEETH,

as not to be distinguished from the original by the closest observer. They will Never change Colour or Decay; there is no sharp edge or undue pressure; the method does not require the Extraction of Roots or Teeth, and is Without any Pain; will Support and Preserve Teeth that are loose, and will restore Articulation, Mastication and Beauty. They are as

FIRM AS THE NATURAL TEETH,

but can be taken out and re-placed at pleasure, and will last a lifetime!

AND THEY ARE SUPPLIED AT CHARGES WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL.

TEETH STOPPED WITH WHITE ENAMEL, GOLD, &c.

DISCOLOURED TEETH SCALED AND RENOVATED. CHILDREN'S TEETH REGULATED.

TEETH REMOVED BY THE PAINLESS MODE OF EXTRACTION.

CHARGES STRICTLY MODERATE, CONSULTATION FREE.

SEVENTY YEARS OF SUCCESS

HAVE PROVED BEYOND QUESTION THAT

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL

Possesses extraordinary properties for PROMOTING THE GROWTH and IMPROVING and BEAUTIFYING THE HUMAN HAIR.

It prevents Hair from falling off or turning Grey, strengthens weak HAIR, cleanses it from Scurf and Dandriff, and makes it BEAUTIFULLY SOFT, PLIABLE, and GLOSSY. For CHILDREN, it is especially recommended as forming the basis of A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR.

Price 3s. 6d. and 7s.—Family Bottles (equal to 4 small), 10s. 6d., and double that size, 21s.

ROWLANDS' KALYDOR,

AN ORIENTAL BOTANICAL PREPARATION

FOR IMPROVING AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION AND SKIN.

This Royally-patronized and Ladies'-esteemed Specific exerts the most soothing, cooling, and purifying action on the skin, eradicates Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Spots, Discolouration, and other Cutaneous Visitations, and renders

THE SKIN SOFT, CLEAR, AND BLOOMING.

During the heat and dust of Summer, the Frost and Bleak Winds of Winter, and in cases of Sunburn, Stings of Insects, or incidental Inflammation, its virtues are universally acknowledged.

Price 4s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per bottle.

WHITE AND SOUND TEETH

Are indispensable to PERSONAL ATTRACTION, and to health and longevity by the proper mastication of food.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO,

OR, PEARL DENTIFRICE,

Compounded of ORIENTAL INGREDIENTS, is of inestimable value in IMPROVING and BEAUTIFYING THE TEETH, STRENGTHENING THE GUMS, and in rendering THE BREATH PURE AND FRAGRANT. It eradicates Tartar from the Teeth, removes Spots of incipient decay, and polishes and preserves the enamel, to which it imparts

A PEARL-LIKE WHITENESS.

Price 2s. 9d. per box.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

The high and universal reputation of these articles induces some Shopkeepers to give the same names to cheap preparations of their own. It is highly necessary on purchasing to see that the word "ROWLANDS'" is on the Wrapper of each, and their Signature in RED ink, "A. ROWLAND & SONS," as all others are spurious imitations.

Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers everywhere.

WILLIAM J. HARBUD,

CARPENTER,

Cabinet Maker & Undertaker,

2 PARADISE SQUARE, & 14 NEW STREET,

ST. EBBE'S, OXFORD.

FUNERALS FURNISHED WITH STRICT ECONOMY.

G. GARE,

PRACTICAL BOOT MAKER,

117 HIGH STREET, OXFORD.

PORPOISE WALKING, FISHING, & SHOOTING BOOTS.

G. G. begs most respectfully to inform the Nobility, Gentry, and inhabitants of Oxford and its vicinity that he continues to make BOOTS AND SHOES of the very best quality, and hopes by unremitting personal attention to all orders entrusted to him, combined with the best materials and workmanship and the lowest remunerative charges, to merit a share of public patronage, feeling assured from the many years' experience he has had in the trade, he will be able to meet the demands of the times, every article being guaranteed.

"Some time since we were asked by Mr. GARE to test his Porpoise-hide Fishing and Shooting Boots; we have done so, and find them to be all that can be desired. The leather is of an exceedingly soft but apparently durable texture. That they are perfectly waterproof, several successive days' paddling in squashy water-meadows without any sign of the least dampness within, will testify."

CARFAX CONDUIT.

THE singular-looking structure represented in the above engraving was erected as a conduit early in the seventeenth century at Carfax in the city of Oxford; whence in the year 1787 it was removed to Nuneham Park, the seat of Earl Harcourt, where it still remains. Amongst other curious emblematical decorations, are figures of the "Nine Worthies" (mentioned in the page facing September and October of this Almanack); the architect, however, in flattery of King James, substituted his statue for one of Joshua, the first Jewish "worthy."

A very minute and interesting description of the conduit, from a contemporary record, will be found in Alden's Oxford Monthly Illustrated Journal for April, 1870, from which the above engraving is taken; and a beautiful view of Nuneham Cottages and rustic bridge is contained in the number for September, 1871. (One Penny each.)

Alden's Illustrated Journal is the only illustrated Oxford magazine of local information and general literature. It is published on the first of each month, twenty-four pages, crown quarto size, on toned paper, with full-page and other engravings; and the price is only one penny per month. Every purchaser of Alden's Almanack should take in Alden's Monthly Journal. For a complete list of engravings of churches, colleges, antiquities, and places of interest in Oxford and its vicinity which have appeared in numbers already published, see page 13 of this Almanack.

TO ADVERTISERS.

THE Publisher of this Almanack, while tendering his best thanks to those whose advertisements appear herein, desires respectfully to call their attention to his Monthly Illustrated Journal, as offering the undermentioned advantages:—

1.—The Monthly Journal occupies a middle place between the extremes of a single annual announcement in an Almanack and its too frequent repetition in a weekly paper. Advertisers can vary their announcements from month to month, if desired, without extra charge.

2.—The peculiar features of the Monthly Journal: its Monthly Calendar of Local events and Engagements; interesting illustrated Articles on objects of interest in Oxford and neighbourhood (see page 13); its Alphabetical Railway Guide: added to the general interest of its contents, place it in an entirely different position from a mere advertising sheet, and proportionately enhance its value to advertisers.

3.—Its character as a high-class magazine, as well as its handy size and form, ensure a permanence that cannot be guaranteed by weekly newspapers. The latter are usually cast aside after the first perusal; while, on the contrary, ALDEN'S ILLUSTRATED JOURNAL is preserved for binding, with the same care as any other good magazine.

4.—In addition to a large and increasing number of influential subscribers, and its extensive general sale, Alden's Journal is read and referred to throughout the month in every Club-room, Reading-room, and Hotel in the city, and in the Common-rooms of every College and Hall.

The terms, which are moderate, may be known on application. Advertisers in Alden's Almanack treated with at reduced rates.

16 MARKET STREET, OXFORD.

THE MISSES JONES, in publicly announcing the lamented death of their Mother, desire to inform the Nobility, Clergy, Gentry, and Public of the City and County of Oxford, that they will, with competent assistance, carry on the business as it has hitherto been conducted. They wish to thank the Public for the liberal patronage given to their deceased Mother, and to give them the assurance that every endeavour will be made on their part to maintain the present good reputation of the Establishment. They appeal to all, in undertaking the management of the OXFORD DYEING ESTABLISHMENT, for similar liberal support to that which was so generously bestowed upon the late Mrs. Mary A. Jones.

ADDENDA.

Dec. 21st, 1871.

Since the preceding sheets were printed off, the following appointments have been made:—

In some parishes, alterations have also occurred in the curacies, which we have no space to particularise.

(Page 59.) In the list of places of worship, we inadvertently omitted the Chapel in Alfred st., in which the service of the Church of Scotland is conducted by the Rev. H. C. B. Bazeley, B.C.L.

(Page 61.) "Religious Societies."—A branch of the Young Men's Christian Association has recently been established, meeting in the City rooms. Hon. Sec., N. Lower Gedye, Esq., The Cottage, Park Town.

The WORLD of WIT AND HUMOUR.

PART I. NOW READY.

MIRTH

Extract from Introduction.

HAS long been acknowledged to be the true medicine of the soul. It is proposed to give, in the pages of the "World of Wit and Humour," a pleasant patchwork of the merry speeches and blundering doings, real and fictitious, of the present and the past. Our field is wide, and glowing with flowers of fancy and wild blossoms of wit.

WE INVITE ALL, YOUNG AND OLD; FOR NO NAUSEOUS WEED OR POISONOUS GROWTH IS HERE, ONLY THE PLEASANT AND THE GOOD ARE CULLED.

Cassell, Petter, and Galpin, Ludgate Hill, London; Paris; and New York.

Little Folks.

THE NEW MAGAZINE FOR CHILDREN.

PUBLISHED IN

Weekly Numbers, 1d.; Monthly Parts, 6d.; Half-Yearly Vols., 3s.

COMMENCEMENT OF VOLUME III.

Sunday Afternoons with our Young Folks.

THE success which has attended this publication, both in its serial form—as supplying each week, at a cost of One Penny, and each month at a cost of Sixpence, instruction and delight for the Little Ones, and in its Volume issue, as a book of permanent pleasure to which they can turn at any unoccupied moment—has made it quite evident to the Editor and Publishers that the need of such a Magazine for Children existed, and induces them to believe that that need is so far met. They believe, however, that, as suggested by many friends, it will be possible to make "LITTLE FOLKS" the delight of the Sunday as well as of the week-day, by the introduction of matter of a kind more entirely suited for Little Folks on that sacred day. In Volume 3, therefore, a certain number of pages of each Weekly Number will, under the title of be devoted to Tales, Poems, Pictures, and Sunday Lessons, which will, it is hoped, help in making the Sunday, as it should be, the brightest, happiest, as it is the holiest day in the week, for our little friends in their many homes.—Extract from Prospectus to Vol. III.

And in Vol. III. will be commenced

CASSELL'S
HISTORY OF THE WAR.

MONTHLY, 7d.; WEEKLY, 1½d.

This most graphically written and copiously Illustrated History of the War between FRANCE and GERMANY is increasing in interest, and is now approaching that part which deals with the exciting incidents of the BOMBARDMENT OF PARIS, the FAMINE in that City, and the CAPITULATION to the Germans.

Part XI., for December, ready Nov. 25, price 7d.

The Back Parts have been several times reprinted, and are on sale at all Booksellers.

CASSELL'S HISTORY OF THE WAR INCLUDES

PLANS OF THE BATTLE FIELDS,

Showing, at a glance, the relative positions of the respective forces at the most important crises of the principal battles.

NOTICE.—A Series of

LARGE PRESENTATION PLATES,

Suitable for framing, are being issued, free of charge, with this History of the War.

1. THE BATTLE OF GRAVELOTTE, Large Presentation Plate, is issued, free of charge, with Part I.
2. THE SIEGE OF STRASBURG, Large Presentation Plate, is issued, free of charge, with Part II.
3. THE BATTLE OF ORLEANS, Large Presentation Plate, is issued, free of charge, with Part VII.
4. THE BATTLE BEFORE BELFORT, Large Presentation Plate, is issued, free of charge, with Part X.

EXTRACT FROM PROSPECTUS.

"While thus recording the stern facts of history, we shall be, in truth, writing a narrative more absorbing in its interest, more startling in its issues, more varying in its details, than any tale of warfare or adventure which it would be possible for a master of fiction to conceive. And as these events themselves are permanent in their interest and results, so our narrative of them will not be merely an ephemeral issue, but, we trust, a contribution of lasting importance and value to the popular historical literature of the country.

"No expense is spared to render the Work, in all its details, worthy of the great events which it represents. It is printed on a page 10¾ in. × 7¾ in., so that while the size of the work is convenient for the library, it affords ample scope for justice to be done to the illustrations with which it abounds."

THE CHILD'S BIBLE NARRATIVE.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE great success which has attended the production of THE CHILD'S BIBLE in its full-sized quarto form of 800 pages, with 220 large Illustrations (published at One Guinea), coupled with the testimonies received from high dignitaries in the Church, bearing witness to its having "provided for a great necessity," has led the Publishers to yield to the desire that a work of a corresponding character should be produced upon a plan and at a price that should bring it within the reach of every household. The Publishers have therefore arranged to issue under the above title a work of a character corresponding with THE CHILD'S BIBLE, to be published as a small Portable Volume, at a price which, it is believed, will bring it into universal use.

Now ready,

The CHILD'S BIBLE NARRATIVE:

Being a Selection from the Holy Bible, in the Words of the Authorised Version. 464 Pages, square crown 8vo, with 24 Full-page Illustrations by GUSTAVE DORÉ, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, price 5s.

And in order to consult more completely the convenience of all classes of purchasers, THE CHILD'S BIBLE NARRATIVE, in addition to its being published in One Volume at 5s., is issued in Two separate Volumes, the one consisting of

The OLD TESTAMENT NARRATIVE,

THIS Series is produced by an entirely New Process, the Lines being printed direct from COPPER PLATES BY PATENTED MACHINERY, thus securing an accuracy and finish much superior to that obtainable by any process hitherto employed. This system has been adopted successfully in France, and being approved by the late Emperor, the books so produced are universally adopted in all the Public Schools throughout the Empire.

In the proper Gradation and Arrangement of the Lines, as well as in the Style of Writing and Engraving, much thought and care have been bestowed, and it is believed they will recommend themselves to all Practical Teachers, as an improvement upon any existing series.

STARCH,

is the only kind used in Her Majesty's Laundry.

IF THERE ARE ANY LADIES who have not yet used the GLENFIELD STARCH, they are respectfully solicited to give it a trial, and carefully follow out the directions printed on every package,

They will say, like the Queen's Laundress,

IT IS THE FINEST STARCH THEY EVER USED.

When you ask for GLENFIELD STARCH, see that you get it,

AS INFERIOR KINDS ARE OFTEN SUBSTITUTED FOR THE SAKE OF EXTRA PROFIT.

Any information that will lead to the conviction of parties selling imitations of Glenfield Starch, will be rewarded.

SYDNEY SMITH'S METHOD FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

Sixty-four Pages, full Music Size. Price 5s.

"There are features in this work of uncommon merit, but we shall say enough if we recommend it unreservedly to all who seek a manual of instruction well arranged, intelligible, and effective."—Musical World, April 23.

"While every care has been taken to cull all that was useful from the old régime, much that is altogether modern and thoroughly practical is here to be met with for the first time. In particular, it seems to have been the author's purpose to lead the student by gentle degrees, and to ensure that one thing shall be properly acquired before another is attempted."—The Queen, April 30.

"The aim of the author seems to have been to supply as much information in as few words as possible, while aiding and directing the self-intelligence of the learner; and he certainly has succeeded admirably."—Examiner, April 30.

"The author leads the pupil on by carefully graduated instructions; the exercises are also admirably progressive, and in the appendix a capital collection of suitable and attractive pieces is given, many of them entirely new, and all judiciously fingered for the instrument of which he is so skilful a master."—Lady's Newspaper, May 7.

KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS

Life without health is a misery that often can scarcely be borne. How invaluable, therefore, must a restorative medicine be found by the sufferer! KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS afford this desideratum, and instantly give relief to the afflicted.

Sold by all Chemists and other Dealers in Patent Medicines, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box.

KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS.

These Pills are especially adapted for the use of Females at all periods of life; they remove both the cause and effect of complaints peculiar to the sex, and being composed of vegetable matter alone, may be safely taken under all circumstances.

Sold by all Chemists and other Dealers in Patent Medicines, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box.

KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS.

Impure blood, no matter how caused, is the foundation of all disease, hence the value of KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS, which effectually cleanse the vital fluid from all impurities. They strengthen all the organs, and restore impaired health when all other remedies have failed.

Sold by all Chemists and other Dealers in Patent Medicines, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box.

PARSONS, FLETCHER, AND CO.'S
INDIAN STARCH.

This superior Starch is strongly recommended to Laundresses and Heads of Families, by whom a trial is respectfully solicited. For its

PURITY, STRENGTH, AND QUALITY

it has never been surpassed. It does not require boiling, and is guaranteed to be entirely free from acid, so injurious to linen. Owing to its careful manufacture, it imparts to muslins, collars, lace, &c., a brilliant, glossy, firm, and elastic finish.

To be obtained of all Grocers and Oilmen,

"For the Blood is the Life."—See Deuteronomy, 11th chapter, 23rd verse.

CLARKE'S

WORLD FAMED

BLOOD MIXTURE

THE GREAT

BLOOD PURIFIER AND RESTORER,

For Cleansing and Clearing the Blood from All Impurities, from whatever cause arising, cannot be too highly recommended.

For Scrofula, Scurvy, Old Sores, Ulcerated Sores on the Neck, Ulcerated Sore Legs, Blackheads or Pimples on the Face, Scurvy Sores, Glandular Swellings, Cancerous Ulcers, and Blood and Skin Diseases of all kinds, it is a never-failing and permanent cure.

The following facts prove that the health of all depends entirely upon the state of the Blood, and that the merest sore is sufficient to taint and render impure every particle of Blood in the system:—

THE CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD.

THE HEART.—The heart bears the same relation to the circulation of the blood as the engine does to a railway train—it supplies the necessary propelling force. But there is this important difference between them: we know how the steam engine is set in motion, but we do not know how the heart is. This important organ is not much larger than a man's fist in a full grown person; it weighs about a pound, is conical in shape, and is found under the cartilages of the ribs and the breast-bone, between the two lobes of the lungs. There are four distinct chambers in the heart, two being on the right side and two on the left. From the left ventricle a large blood-vessel, called the aorta, proceeds, and soon divides into several branches, which ascend and descend by innumerable ramifications, and penetrate every part of the body. When the ventricle on the right side contracts, the blood is propelled with so much force that it reaches the remotest parts of the body. The motion is called the pulse, caused by the pulsation of the heart, which is quicker or slower according to the frequency of its contractions. These two ventricles send out the blood, and the other two receive it from the veins—one as it comes immediately from the body, the other as the same blood comes back a second time after its circulation through the lungs. It has been computed that the heart contracts four thousand times in one hour, and that there passes through the heart every hour three hundred and fifty pounds of blood! The whole mass of blood is said to be about twenty-five pounds, so that this quantity passes through the heart fourteen times in one hour, or about once in every four minutes. When we consider the complexity of its mechanism, and the delicacy of its parts, we are astonished that it does not suffer more frequently from derangement; yet this wonderful machine continues its work, day and night, for eighty, and sometimes a hundred, years together, at the rate of one hundred thousand strokes every twenty-four hours. It is of the utmost consequence, therefore, to keep the blood pure. Clarke's world-famed Blood Mixture is the most reliable medicine for the purpose, as it is pleasant to the taste, and warranted free from anything injurious to the most delicate constitution of either sex, the proprietor solicits sufferers to give it a trial to test its value.

IMPORTANT ADVICE TO ALL.—Cleanse the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed or sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

SKIN DISEASES, ERUPTIONS, BLOTCHES, SPOTS, PIMPLES, PUSTULES, BOILS, CARBUNCLES, RINGWORMS, SCALD HEADS, SORE EYES, ERYSIPELAS, ITCH, SCURFS, DISCOLOURATIONS OF THE SKIN, HUMOURS AND DISEASES OF THE SKIN OF WHATEVER NAME OR NATURE, ARE LITERALLY CARRIED OUT OF THE SYSTEM IN A SHORT TIME BY THE USE OF THIS WORLD-FAMED MEDICINE.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS FROM ALL PARTS.

The following Testimonials have been received, with thousands of others from all parts:—

CURE of ULCERATED KNEE.
From Mr. Marfleet, Orby, near Spisby.
"Sir,—I can with confidence speak to the grand curative properties of your mixture. I had a one dozen box of it for a female who had a very bad ulcerated knee, which had baffled the skill of several medical men for months—I may say years—until we really thought there was no cure for it, when I was at last induced to try your medicine, which cured it long before she had taken the whole. It is now twelve months ago, and I am happy to say she has not had the slightest relapse. Accept my best thanks."

MARVELLOUS CURE of ABSCESSES after being in EIGHT HOSPITALS.
From William Fox, Potterhanworth, Lincolnshire.
"Sir,—Allow me to tender you my sincere and heartfelt thanks. The Blood Mixture has restored me to health after years of pain and suffering. My loins and legs were covered with abscesses. I had been in eight hospitals, and was pronounced by all incurable. When I commenced taking the Blood Mixture, it was with the utmost difficulty I could move about with the assistance of two sticks. I now walk three miles to my employment.—July 1, 1871."

CURE of DROPSY and BAD LEG.
Mrs. Robinson, Post Office, Marton, near Gainsbro'.
"Cured of a bad ulcerated leg and dropsy, after twenty years of pain and suffering.—September 12th, 1871."

CURE of BLOOD DISEASE.
From Mr. Footit, Navenby, Lincolnshire.
"The Blood Mixture cured me of a blood disease that had laid me up for years. I was under the doctor's hands the whole of the time without deriving any benefit.—Dec. 17, 1871."

CURE of ULCERATION.
Mr. Chas. Brumby, Highwood, near Torksey.
"Cured of a bad leg of three years' standing.—Jan. 30, 1872."

CURE of a BLOOD DISEASE.
From Mr. Robt. Watts, Marham, Norfolk.
"I thank you for your Blood Mixture. I was unable to work for a year. I tried every physician all round, but none of them did me any good till I heard of your Blood Mixture, which quite cured me.—Feb. 10, 1872."

EXTRAORDINARY CURES of SKIN DISEASES.
Mrs. Newcomb, Friesthorpe, near Market Rasen.
"Cured of a very bad skin disease, after having spent over £100 in medical advice in the neighbourhood.—Jan. 14, 1871."
Mr. John Timms, Miller, Waddington.
"Cured of a very bad ulcerated arm, after having medical advice for twelve years without obtaining any relief."
Mrs. Low Ranby, Moulton Chapel, near Spalding.
"Cured of a bad skin disease, after years of suffering."

CURE of ULCERATED ANKLE.
Mr. John Yarnall, Washingborough.
"Cured of an ulcerated ankle, after having been under medical advice in the neighbourhood for months.—March 11, 1871."

CURE of ULCERATED LEG.
Mr. Gray, Joiner, Gainsbro'.
"Cure of an ulcerated leg which had been bad twenty years.—May 1, 1871."

CURE of BOILS and ERUPTIONS.
From W. R. Reeves, Pool Anthony, Tiverton, Devonshire.
"Sir,—For two years I suffered dreadfully with boils and eruptions all over my body. I was under the care of several medical men, none of whom did me any real good. Through a small advertisement of yours, I was induced to try your medicine, which entirely cured me, and I am gratified to say I am now in better health than I have been for years."

CURE of LARGE BLOTCHES and SORES of TWO YEARS.
Mrs. Bishell, College Street, Spittlegate, Grantham.
"Cured of large blotches and sores all over the body, after having been under the first medical men of the neighbourhood for two years without deriving any benefit.—June 17, 1871."

CURE of ULCERATED NECK.
From Thomas Layton, Sawley, Notts.
"I am happy to say your Blood Mixture has quite cured me of a very bad ulcerated neck from which I had suffered for three years.—March 12, 1871."

WONDERFUL CURES of SCROFULOUS SORES.
From Thos. Foster, Gardener, Rasen Lane, Lincoln.
"Sir,—Your Mixture ought to be well-known all the world over. My son had a frightful scrofulous sore on his neck; every one thought it had come for his end. He was under a medical man for seven months, all the time gradually getting worse, when at last he was induced to try your Mixture, which quite cured and healed up the sore in a month. Every one who saw it says it is a most wonderful cure. You are quite welcome to publish this."
"Spilsby, April 17, 1872.
"Miss Harriett Bird was covered with large scrofulous blotches; had fifteen weeks' treatment in the Lincoln Hospital, and pronounced incurable. Is now quite cured after taking six bottles of the Blood Mixture."

TESTIMONIAL from a CHEMIST.
From John Cox, Chemist, Grantham.
"I have much pleasure in testifying to the surprising efficacy of your world-famed Blood Mixture. It commands a very extensive and increasing sale in this part of the county, and if testimonials were wanting to more firmly establish its renown, I could forward you hundreds of them.—Oct. 2, 1871."

TESTIMONIAL from a CHEMIST.
From Mr. Richard Sheppard, Chemist, Newark.
"It affords me much pleasure to add my testimony to the wonderful effects of your Blood Mixture. The best test of the genuine character of an article is its ready sale, and I can truly say that your medicine has the largest sale in this neighbourhood of any other medicine for which I am agent—in fact, it is the only agency I have ever taken which has proved a real success.—Nov. 10, 1871."

TESTIMONIAL from a CHEMIST.
From Mr. E. T. Towle, Chemist, Lister Gate, Nottingham.
"Please forward me another gross of your Blood Mixture, and six cases by train to-morrow. Orders and testimonials are pouring in from all parts."

Sold in Bottles, 2s. 3d. each, and in cases containing Six Bottles, 11s. each—sufficient to effect a permanent cure in the great majority of long-standing cases—

ADVANTAGES OF THE SYSTEM.

1. It is the production of an experienced Schoolmaster.
2. It gradually advances from the simple stroke to a superior small hand.
3. The assistance given in the Primal Lessons is reduced as the learner progresses, until all guidance is safely withdrawn.
4. The number and variety of the copies secure attention, and prevent the pupils copying their own writing as in books with single head lines.
5. The system insures the progress of the learner, and greatly lightens the labours of the teacher.

For teaching writing, I would recommend the use of Darnell's Copy-Books. I HAVE NOTICED A MARKED IMPROVEMENT WHEREVER THEY HAVE BEEN USED."—Report of Mr. Maye, (N.S. Organiser of Schools) to the Worcester Diocesan Board of Education.

REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS, &c.

FOR ENGLAND.

An infant should be registered within six weeks after its birth. No fee is payable; but after 42 days a fee of 7s. 6d. is chargeable.—Notice should be given of deaths to the district registrar. Let this be done early, that a certificate may be had to give the minister who performs the funeral service. For the register offices in this district, see page 57.

FOR SCOTLAND

An infant must be registered within 21 days after birth. A marriage must be registered within three days after the occurrence. A death must be registered within eight days after the event.

VACCINATION ACT.

It is imperative that parents should have every child vaccinated within three calendar months after birth, eithe by the legally qualified medical attendant of the family, or by the appointed public vaccinator. If other than the parents are left in charge of the child, the vaccination must be within four months of birth.

A WATCHWORD FOR 1873.

"Who shall roll away the stone?"

WHAT poor weeping ones were saying
Eighteen hundred years ago,
We, the same weak faith betraying,
Say in our sad hours of woe:
Looking at some trouble lying
In the dark and dread unknown,
We too often ask with sighing,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Thus with care our spirits crushing
When they might from care be free,
And in joyous song out-gushing,
Rise in raptures, Lord, to Thee:
For before the way was ended,
Oft we've had with joy to own,
Angels have from Heaven descended,
And have rolled away the stone.

Many a storm-cloud sweeping o'er us
Never pours on us its rain;
Many a grief we see before us
Never comes to cause us pain.
Ofttimes in the feared to-morrow
Sunshine comes—the cloud has flown.
Ask not then in foolish sorrow,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Burden not thy soul with sadness,
Make a wiser, better choice,
Drink the wine of life with gladness;
God doth bid thee, man, "Rejoice!"
In to-day's bright sunlight basking,
Leave to-morrow's cares alone;
Spoil not present joys by asking,
"Who shall roll away the stone."

NEW YEAR'S COUNSEL.

So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, that moves
To the pale realms of shade—where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Then go not like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon; but, sustain'd and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.—BRYANT.

IFFLEY CHURCH.

IFFLEY Church stands on an eminence commanding picturesque views of the Thames scenery, and is considered one of the finest specimens in England of a Norman parochial church. It was founded in the 12th cent., and the west front particularly is an exceedingly noble specimen of the architecture of that date. In the churchyard, as shown in our engraving, is an aged yew-tree of enormous girth, so old that it requires no stretch of fancy to believe it was planted when the first stone of the structure was laid. Indeed it is supposed by some that the tree is of a date more ancient than the church. See Alden's Journal, March, 1872.

The Moon's Changes. — First Quarter, 4th, 10.6 a.m.; Full Moon, 12th, 11.33 a.m.; Last Quarter, 20th, 11.23 a.m.; New Moon, 27th, 3.22 a.m.

Mercury is a morning star until the 16th, and an evening star until the end of the month; in conjunction with the Moon on the 27th, at 9.26 a.m.

Venus is an evening star throughout the month; on the 22nd at 8.40 p.m. at greatest elongation, 16°30′ E.

Mars is a morning star throughout the month; in conjunction with the Moon on the 18th at 7.10 p.m.

Jupiter is a morning star until the 17th, and an evening star until the end of the month.

HOW TO RULE YOUR CHILDREN.

O'er wayward childhood wouldst thou hold firm rule,

HEADINGTON CHURCH.

St. Andrew's Church, Headington, affords to the archæological student a good example of the styles prevalent in this country from the twelfth to the sixteenth century. It has recently been in large part restored, and a new south aisle erected, as shown in our engraving, kindly supplied by the esteemed curate, the Rev. Lewis S. Tuckwell, M.A., of Magdalen Coll. See Alden's Journal, April, 1871.

UNIVERSITY BARGES.

OUR illustration this month represents the Oxford University Boat Club Barge and that belonging to the Exeter College Club, moored on the Isis at Christ Church Meadows. The "procession of boats" will probably take place this year as usual on the 16th June, when the river, its embankment, and its barges, will present a lively and interesting spectacle.

Keep your view of men and things extensive, and depend upon it that a mixed knowledge is not a superficial one. As far as it goes, the views that it gives are true; but he who reads deeply in one class of writers only gets views which are almost sure to be perverted, and which are not only narrow, but false. Adjust your proposed amount of reading to your time and inclination—that is perfectly free to every man; but, whether that amount be large or small, let it be varied in its kind, and widely varied.—DR. NUNEHAM COTTAGES.

THIS engraving will at once be recognised as a truthful representation of one of the loveliest and most enjoyable spots in the neighbourhood of Oxford. It is impossible to estimate how many thousands have spent pleasant and long-to-be-remembered hours at Nuneham, through the liberality of E. W. Harcourt, Esq., and his esteemed predecessors. Many interesting particulars of Nuneham will be found in the numbers of our Monthly Illustrated Journal for April, 1870, and September, 1871.

THE BOCARDO, OXFORD.

THE North Gate of the City of Oxford formerly stood at the end of Corn-Market street, close to St. Michael's Church. The room over the gateway was for many years used as a common prison (known as "Bocardo"); and it is chiefly remarkable as the place where the Reformers, Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer, were confined previous to their martyrdom. Ridley and Latimer were executed on 16th October, 1555, in the ditch beyond the north wall now covered by the houses and roadway of Broad street; and it is said that from one of the windows of Bocardo, Archbp. Cranmer witnessed their sufferings which he was doomed so soon to share. Many interesting particulars of the events of 1555 and 1556 are given in our Monthly Journal for Oct., 1870, and for March, July and October, 1871. The engraving represents the old gateway and prison as it appeared in 1770, looking south On the left of the gate is the tower of St. Michael's Church, and on the right one of the bastions of the old city wall. Our publishing house (No. 35 Corn-Market street) now occupies the site of this bastion, which was demolished a century ago.

WINTER.

O Winter! ruler of the inverted year,
Thy scattered hair with sleet-like ashes filled,
Thy breath congealed upon thy lips, thy cheeks
Fringed with a beard made white with other snows
Than those of age: thy forehead wrapped in clouds,
A leafless branch thy sceptre, and thy throne
A sliding car indebted to no wheels,
But urged by storms along its slippery way;
I love thee, all unlovely as thou seem'st
And dreaded as thou art.—Cowper.

VALUABLE HINTS ON THE TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

PATIENCE.—When we remember the difficulties with which children have to struggle, from their own tempers and dispositions, we should surely help them by being very patient with them. Patience does not consist in bearing a trial for a time only, while it is easy for us to bear it; but it is "continuance in well-doing," "endurance to the end." We often fail just at the most important point, where if we had not yielded we should have reaped happily. "Let patience have her perfect work." It is sad to lose the blessing, after having borne much, by just failing at the last.

CHEERFULNESS.—To Patience we must add Cheerfulness. A gloomy, sulky imitation of patience, which only keeps from outward expression of displeasure, will do no good. We must try to help children to struggle against their manifestations of temper, and to bear their disappointments and difficulties, by making them happy through our cheerfulness. We must never complain of children in a fretful irritated manner before them. Nothing lessens our authority over them so much as this letting them see the power they have over us to annoy us. We must try to control our own hearts, our own tongues and countenances, so that no angry feeling, no irritable word, no fretful look may set a bad example, and reflect itself upon their hearts and words and looks. Children are very quick in taking the impression of outward things; and if we observe we shall often find that they are only like mirrors, giving us back the reflection of our own tempers and feelings. If we murmur before them at such things as annoy us, we must not be surprised if they murmur at anything we ask them to do which annoys them.

GENTLENESS.—To our Cheerfulness we must add Gentleness. We must not let our cheerfulness be of an exciting but of a soothing nature. Excitement leads to irritability, to impatience, to passion;—but gentle cheerfulness refreshes the mind and preserves it from these evil feelings. Cheerfulness, flowing like a clear stream, refreshes the green pastures through which it passes, while it reflects upon its surface the light of Heaven. Boisterous mirth, like a turbulent river, rushes impetuously on, confuses all it passes with its noise and tumult, and bears no impress of Heaven on its bosom.

FIRMNESS, OR CONSISTENCY.—To Patience, Cheerfulness, Gentleness, we must add Firmness as the cement to bind all these together, and to build them as a sheltering wall round the young plants entrusted to our care. To help us to be firm we must make the fewest possible rules; and we must think well, before making a rule, whether it be a necessary one. If we feel it is, we shall have courage to be firm about it; and the children will know what to expect from us, and will grow accustomed to our keeping it and to keeping it themselves. These rules we must make rather for ourselves than for the children. Young children must not be expected to remember rules: we must remember the rules for them, and help them to keep them until they become habits.—Extracted from "Thoughts on the Training of Children" (pub. by Alden, Oxford).

GARDENING OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR.

JANUARY.

Trench and manure, prepare hot-beds for asparagus, cucumbers, mint, potatoes, and the small salads. Sow the brown Dutch and grand admiral cabbages, curled parsley for transplanting; frame peas, horn carrots, mazagan beans, onions (to be allowed to grow large); plant out cabbage plants to succeed those which have been planted out in autumn.

FEBRUARY.

All the ground which is destined for early crops must now be prepared, and hot-beds be multiplied for cucumbers and early melons. Celery may be sown on a moderate hot-bed; also, sow cabbages, horn carrots, lettuces, leeks, parsnips, and in fact most of the table vegetables. Those plants, such as cabbages, chives, garlic, shalots, under ground onions, and horseradish, which are fit, should now be transplanted.

MARCH.

In open borders sow asparagus, cabbages, carrots, curled and Hamburgh parsley, Neapolitan kale, parsnips, onions, &c.; plant out such vegetables as have been already sown. Before sowing, dig carefully, and make the ground level and fine. Main crops may be sown in this month, such as early long-pod beans, peas, celery, turnips, and, indeed, most other vegetables. Mustard, cress, lettuce, spinach, and radishes, may be sown every week or fortnight, for succession. Chives, shalots, garlic, &c., may be planted; plant rhubarb, potatoes, and Jerusalem artichokes. Cuttings or slips of sweet herbs may be planted

APRIL.

Planting the vegetables which have been sown is now the chief business. Make hot-beds for cucumbers and melons; force kidney beans and Elford rhubarb. Plant out artichokes and potatoes; sow asparagus, beets, cabbages, celery, garden and kidney beans, Dutch turnips, lettuces, peas, radishes, small salading.

MAY

Sow carrots, lettuce, capsicums, cauliflowers, spinach, Knight's marrow-fat peas, &c. Transplant cabbages, winter greens, lettuces, and celery. Hoe and stake peas, water newly planted crops, and propagate aromatic plants by slips and cuttings. Protect from wind and rain choice tulips, ranunculuses, and anemonies. Propagate herbaceous plants by dividing the roots; wallflowers, sweet-williams, and rockets, by slips; and China roses, heliotropiums, &c., by cuttings.

JUNE.

Sow cape brocoli, kidney beans, peas, lettuces, radishes, campions, spinach, small salading, &c. The best peas for sowing now are Knight's marrow peas; they will bear till October. Hoe the beds of table vegetables, and pick out the most curled plants of curled parsley, cress, and chervil, for seed. Watering the freshly-planted crops must now be attended to in dry weather in the evenings, or very early in the mornings. Weeding and thinning out are also of importance, as well as hoeing, particularly with potatoes, cabbages, and peas.

JULY.

Plant cabbages, savoys, coleworts, brocoli, lettuce, celery, &c. Train and regulate the summer shoots both of wall trees and standards; prune vine and fig-trees, and shade ripe currents that are exposed to the full blaze of the sun. Place nets on the cherries to protect them from birds. Take up garlic, onions, and shalots, as their leaves begin to decay.

AUGUST.

Both cabbages, brocoli, endive, spinach, Welsh onions, turnips, and radishes should now be sown. The celery sown should be planted, and that already planted, as well as cardoons, should be earthed up.

SEPTEMBER.

Sow vegetable seed for a spring crop. Prick out cabbage plants, and gather ripe seeds. Endive and lettuce may be planted out on beds sloping to the south-west, and fenced round to drain off water. Hoe and clear the ground about turnips. Cabbage for collards in November, and German greens may be planted early in the month.

OCTOBER.

Sow magazan beans, and frame peas on a warm southern border; lay into the ground purple and white bocoli, within a few inches of their lower leaves, letting their heads face the north; transplant cauliflowers and purple brocoli under frames and hand-glasses; cabbages, garlic, lettuces, and shalots, under frames.

NOVEMBER.

Force seakale, rhubarb, and asparagus; take up endive, brocoli, and cauliflower, and lay them flat in dry ground; transplant suckers taken from the roots of the pear and codling plum, and prepare them for budding and grafting different fruits upon.

DECEMBER

Celery should now be earthed up, and in so careful a manner as not to require the operation again; force asparagus, also rhubarb, and seakale; lay in as early as possible this month the brocoli, purple and white.

GENERAL HINTS.

Operating on the Soil.—Trenching should always follow draining, or the latter will act but partially. Unless the ground be stirred pretty deeply, half the effect of draining will be lost. Both must be done in the autumn or early part of the winter, and the ground will then be in a good state for cropping in spring. Manuring may be done in early winter when the ground is somewhat frozen, as the material can then be wheeled on with greater ease, and the grounds and paths will be less cut up. Light.—Want of light is often the real cause of evils which are popularly aseribed to want of air, though both combined may occasionally be acting. Light may, however, be prejudicial to plants in certain stages, as after fresh planting or potting, when it stimulates them more than their crippled roots will bear. Dull weather is, therefore, best for both potting and planting, and a little shade after either process may often be beneficial.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH.

Mr. TUCK'S new description of Artificial Teeth, with all the latest improvements, are fitted without Springs, Wires, Bands, or Visible Fastenings. They so perfectly

RESEMBLE THE NATURAL TEETH,

as not to be distinguished from the original by the closest observer. They will Never change Colour or Decay; there is no sharp edge or undue pressure; the method does not require the Extraction of Roots or Teeth, and is Without any Pain; will Support and Preserve Teeth that are loose, and will restore Articulation, Mastication and Beauty. They are as

FIRM AS THE NATURAL TEETH,

but can be taken out and replaced at pleasure, and will last a lifetime!

AND THEY ARE SUPPLIED AT CHARGES WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL.

TEETH STOPPED WITH WHITE ENAMEL, GOLD, &c.

DISCOLOURED TEETH SCALED AND RENOVATED. CHILDREN'S TEETH REGULATED.

TEETH REMOVED BY THE PAINLESS MODE OF EXTRACTION.

CHARGES STRICTLY MODERATE, CONSULTATION FREE.

Groups, Landscapes, Interiors, Animals, &c., Terms very cheap. Distance no object.

TO PERSONS ABOUT TO SIT FOR A PHOTOGRAPH.

It is erroneous to suppose that the best portraits are taken in sunshine. Persons with light eyes are particularly recommended to sit in dull weather. Too much attention cannot be paid to the arrangement of dress, appropriate colours, &c.—HINTS ON DRESS: Dark colours, black browns, very dark blues, dark green, grey, prints, checks, grey mixtures, with trimmings and ribbons of black, crimson, scarlet, or orange, all have a very good effect; a black lace shawl arranged over a light dress looks well in a picture. Ladies' dresses should be sufficiently long in front to touch the ground when the wearer stands upright. Dresses with large or very marked patterns, large plaids, spots, stripes, &c., should be avoided; also, light blues, greens, lavenders, and most light colours, fail to produce an agreeable photographic tint. Every information can be obtained at the Studio.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Publisher of this Almanack, while tendering his best thanks to those whose advertisements appear herein, desires respectfully to call their attention to his Monthly Illustrated Journal, as offering the undermentioned advantages:—

1.—The Monthly Illustrated Journal occupies a middle place between the extremes of a single annual announcement in an Almanack and its too frequent repetition in a weekly paper. Advertisers can vary their announcements from month to month without extra charge.

2.—Its character as a high-class magazine, as well as its handy size and form, ensure a permanence that cannot be guaranteed by weekly newspapers. The latter are usually cast aside after the first perusal; while, on the contrary, ALDEN'S ILLUSTRATED JOURNAL is preserved for binding with the same care as any other good magazine.

3.—The peculiar features of the Monthly Illustrated Journal: its Monthly Calendar of Local events and Engagements; interesting illustrated Articles on objects of interest in Oxford and neighbourhood (see page 21); its Alphabetical Railway Guide; added to the general interest of its contents, place it in an entirely different position from a mere advertising sheet, and proportionately enhance its value to advertisers.

4.—In addition to a large and increasing number of influential subscribers, and its extensive general sale, Alden's Journal is read and referred to throughout the month in every Club-room, Reading-room, and Hotel in the city, and in the Common-rooms of every College and Hall.

The terms, which are moderate, may be known on application. Advertisers in Alden's Almanack treated with at reduced rates.

INLAND.

Letter Postage.

Not exceeding 1oz. in weight					1*d.*
Exceeding 1 oz., but under 2 ozs.					1½*d.*
,, 2	,,	4	,,		2*d.*
,, 4	,,	6	,,		2½*d.*
,, 6	,,	8	,,		3*d.*
,, 8	,,	10	,,		3½*d.*
,, 10	,,	12	,,		4*d.*

Over 12 ounces, 1*d.* per oz. for every oz.; thus a letter weighing between 15 and 16 ozs. must be prepaid by 1*s.* 4*d.*

A letter unpaid will be charged double on delivery, and if insufficiently prepaid, double the deficiency.

Newspapers, properly registered, are charged ½*d.* each, postage prepaid by an adhesive stamp, or by a stamped wrapper; any cover being open at each end, and the newspaper folded so that its title can be inspected. If any enclosure be made other than that of a newspaper or its supplement (unless of the nature of a book-packet, book-post paid accordingly) the whole will be charged as a letter. Any writing, except the address, on any part of the paper, subjects it to a similar charge.

Post Cards (6½*d.* per dozen), may be transmitted between places in the United Kingdom with letters written or printed on the back only.

Registration of Letters, newspapers, books, or other packets, to any place in the United Kingdom or Colonies, 4*d.* in addition to the postage. Coin, if posted in an unregistered letter, will cause the letter to be charged 8*d.* on delivery.

Book Post.—A book packet may consist of books; paper, whether plain or written on, provided the latter be not in the nature of a letter; photographs on paper; circulars wholly or chiefly printed, engraved, or lithographed; engravings mounted on rollers for their safe transmission. Postage for 2 oz. or fraction of 2 oz., ½d., paid by adhesive stamps, or by a stamped wrapper. If the packet be unpaid, it will be charged with double postage; and if only partially paid, double the deficiency. A book-packet must not contain any writing in the nature of a letter (except circulars as above stated), nor any sealed enclosure, or it will be charged as a letter on delivery. Names from and to whom sent may be written on any page of a book. On the outside of any book-packet the name and address of the sender may be written or printed.

Money Orders, Inland Rates.

Post Office Savings Banks.—No deposit less than 1*s.* will be received, nor more than £30 in one year. When the savings amount to £150 exclusive of interest, no farther deposit will be received; and when principal and interest reach £200, no further interest is given. Interest is at the rate of 6*d.* in £1 annually, or ½*d.* per month. Married women, children, and infants, may open accounts; strict secrecy is observed.

Government Insurances and Annuities.—Insurances may be effected by persons between 16 and 60 years of age, for not less than £20 nor more than £100. Annuities are granted for not more than £50, to persons of the age of 10 and upwards.

Telegrams must be written on proper printed forms. The charge is 1*s.* for the first 20 words, and 3*d.* for every additional 5. The names and addresses of the sender and receiver are not charged for. (For telegraph offices, see page 57.)

LATEST EDITION!!

RESUMPTION
OF THE TICHBORNE CASE.

ATTORNEY GENERAL—Did you not state in your last examination, that you had never been to Oxford?

CLAIMANT—I don't remember.

ATTORNEY GENERAL—Now, on your oath, did you never visit W. CLARKE of that City?

CLAIMANT—I Orton't to forget it: I bought a Hat from him that looked better on me than any I ever had.

MR. HAWKINS—It made you look just like Roger, I suppose?

CLAIMANT—It certainly was a perfectly easy fit, and no doubt made me look just like Roger.

ATTORNEY GENERAL—Would you be surprised to hear that he sells the best and cheapest Hats ever offered to the public?

CLAIMANT—Not at all; that was the reason I went to his establishment.

ATTORNEY GENERAL—What is his address?

SERGEANT BALLANTINE—Does my learned friend wish himself to visit this noted shop?

ATTORNEY GENERAL—Really, my lord, I must protest against these interruptions. If I do desire to save a few shillings in a Silk or Felt Hat, I do not see what it has to do with this case.

CLAIMANT—Don't make a mistake! the Address is

W. CLARKE,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
SILK & FELT HAT
MANUFACTURER,
30a GEORGE STREET, OXFORD,
And 2 OCK STREET, ABINGDON.

NEW SERIAL EDITION OF

CASSELL'S

HOUSEHOLD GUIDE.

THE largely-increased cost of every article of consumption in the Household, renders it more necessary than ever that the means of acquiring a practical knowledge of the various features of Domestic and Social Economy should be within easy reach of all. In "CASSELL'S HOUSEHOLD GUIDE," the first issue of which was completed in Four Volumes, at Six Shillings each, this important subject is dealt with so as to meet all requirements of income. It is now urged upon the Publishers that it would be a great convenience to vast numbers of persons who are desirous of possessing the Work, if they had the opportunity of purchasing it in the form in which it was originally published—viz., of Weekly Numbers and Monthly Parts. Arrangements have therefore been made for the

THE QUIVER.

Weekly, 1d. Monthly, 6d.

NEW VOLUME commenced with No. 370, price 1d.; or Part 85, price 6d.

THE continued and increasing success of THE QUIVER encourages the Publishers to spare no expense in rendering the Magazine in every department worthy of the popularity which it has already attained. The Editor has much pleasure, therefore, in being enabled to put forth the list of new features which will appear in the NEW VOLUME, and for which he has already made arrangements. From the names of the eminent and distinguished authors, and the titles of their subjects, it will be seen that the character of THE QUIVER, as a Religious Magazine of healthy, interesting, and instructive literature, suitable for the Sunday and the Week-day, will be carefully maintained. The Serial Tale, entitled "THE THREE HOMES," is a story of unusual brilliancy and power. The Editor hopes that THE QUIVER, increasing in interest and attractiveness, will be a welcome and cheerful visitor to many new family circles throughout the country.

LITTLE FOLKS:

An Illustrated Magazine for Children.

"'LITTLE FOLKS' is about the prettiest, neatest, wisest, nattiest, and best illustrated magazine for little people that we have ever met with."—The Publishers' Circular.

"If any reader wishes to make his children happy, let him procure 'Little Folks,' and, without saying a word, place it in the way of his little family. He will see them take up the monthly part, retire into a corner, and there, quiet as mice, turn over its leaves and study its pages. Immediately after there arises a hum, and a lively animated talk and discussion; even the smallest of the children takes part in it. All this has occurred amongst our Little Folks, who will find endless amusement in the work."—The Bookseller.

THE CHRISTMAS VOLUME (Vol. IV.) of LITTLE FOLKS is now ready, price 3s., containing nearly 500 PICTURES.

 Vols. I., II., and III. of LITTLE FOLKS, containing nearly 1,500 PICTURES, have been several times reprinted, and are still on sale. Coloured boards, 3s.; cloth gilt, gilt edges, 5s. each.

Cassell, Petter, & Galpin, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

"The most Dantesque work on Dante that ever was produced, from the Pontificate of Leo X. to that of Pius IX. M. Doré's sketches have for a considerable time attained a European celebrity, and any words that may be suggested to us by the splendid English edition now before us, can scarcely add to or detract from it."—Times.
