PREFACE.

The following work is in the main a Revisal of Biot's "Dictionnaire des Villes Chinoises," supplemented by a catalogue of the more important minor towns of the Empire, inserted in their proper alphabetical places.

Biot published his work as far back as in 1842, and, even in conservative China, many changes have taken place during these thirty-six years necessitating not a few additions, corrections, and, occasionally, eliminations. Moreover the system of orthography employed is not such as to make it a book of easy reference to most Europeans, and no longer finds the same favour as when the French Roman Catholic Missionaries were the chief authorities on matters relating to China. The revision I have undertaken has therefore resulted in an entire re-arrangement of Biot's materials.

The utility of the list of minor towns of the Empire, which constitutes my independent contribution to the work, may not be readily apparent. It should be considered, however, that the general march of events in China tends more and more to an opening up of the country to foreign knowledge. The last few years have seen travellers penetrate, both in an official and a private capacity, into the little known regions of Yünnan and Ssŭch'uan; the Baron von Richthofen has published the first instalment of his great work on China, the fruit of journeys and observations in the interior. The famine, which for so many months has been raging in Shansi and Honan, has been the cause of philanthropic missions to that part of the country in the endeavour to relieve, however partially, the terrible distress there prevalent. The Chefoo Convention has opened new ports on the coast and on the Great River, has stationed a Consular Official in the middle of Ssŭch'uan, has provided for the residence of a representative of the British Government in Yünnan, and has prepared the way for a mission to Thibet. The rumour that the Chinese Government has it in contemplation to establish gradually an Imperial postal system throughout the Empire, is the possible foreshadowing of a step in the same direction, and its realisation would of itself necessitate the compilation of some such list as that to which I am now alluding. The opening of the country to Europeans must inevitably bring into prominence places which, not being marked on European maps, it would be a matter of great difficulty to identify without some such aid as this book will give. Incomplete as this list necessarily is, it is offered as a contribution towards a more thorough knowledge of the geography of China than is yet possessed by Europeans.

In the dearth of other sources of information within my reach, the degrees of Latitude and Longitude have, with few exceptions, been taken from BIOT's work and have little claim to be considered scientifically accurate. In the few instances where it was possible, they have been corrected from the British Admiralty Charts and from calculations placed at my disposal by the courtesy of Dr. FRITSCHE of the Russian Observatory at Peking, and in these instances the errors have been found to be of considerable moment. The Latitudes and Longitudes of localities in Manchuria, Mongolia, Turkestan and Thibet have been taken from Dr. WILLIAMS' map of the Chinese Empire and from JOHNSTON's General Gazeteer. Elsewhere, in cases in which the above authorities have supplied no information, they have been calculated as carefully as possible from the Chinese Atlas. Though scientifically imperfect, they will enable the towns to be found readily on any foreign or native map of China, and this is all I claim on their account.

The orthography I have chosen is that of the Tzŭ-êrh-chi and, on the ground that "good wine needs no bush," the choice should perhaps require no justification. Sir THOMAS WADE's system of romanisation has, however, so often been declared unsuitable for general purposes, however well adapted to the requirements of Pekinese Mandarin, that I think it advisable to state briefly my reasons for considering it peculiarly fitted for the purposes of this book.

This orthography, as developed in the Tzŭ-êrh-chi, is beyond denial purely and simply that of the Pekinese dialect; it must be also admitted that only a small proportion of the Chinese people use this Northern Court dialect as their native tongue at all, and that the class which has acquired it by education is not very numerous. Still the variety of Chinese spoken in and about the Capital is the language of polite society and bears much the same relation to other dialects as the French of Paris does to that of the provinces. Pekinese is the Langue d'Oil of China; Nankinese its Langue d'Oc. He would be a bold innovator who should propose to the world in general to pronounce all French proper names according to some provincial dialect, say Provençal or Gasconnais, for no other reason that "Parisian French is too peculiarly the dialect of Paris." Yet those who would reject Pekinese as the standard dialect for China are virtually assuming this position. They persist in advocating the claims of the Langue d'Oc though the nation itself has declared for the Langue d'Oil. Pekinese I believe to be the most suitable dialect in which to romanise Chinese proper names, (with a few exceptions to be noted presently,) and to say that Sir THOMAS WADE's Pekinese orthography is the best, as being the most scientific, is to make a statement as nearly as possible axiomatic.

The exceptions to which I refer above are inevitable and are to be met with in every language. In Europe an Englishman speaks of Brussells, Florence, Vienna and Copenhagen, not of Bruxelles, Firenze, Wien or Kjöbenhavn; the former method of spelling has become so engrafted on the language as to make a change equally impossible and undesirable. Similarly in China we must continue under ordinary circumstances to speak or write of Foochow, Amoy, Canton and Peking; no one will advocate the expediency of changing to Fu-chou, Hsia-mên, Kuang-chou or Pei-ching. The same rule applies to the names of the provinces, which are all more or less familiar in their Southern form to European ears. In referring to the provinces I have therefore employed the Nankinese form, romanised in accordance with Sir THOMAS WADE'S principles. To avoid confusion between the characters 金 and 晉 I have applied the same rule to the names of the Chinese dynasties. To facilitate reference to Dr. WILLIAMS' map of China, which I have assumed to be that most commonly used by foreigners in this country, I have in the case of all administrative cities, added Dr. WILLIAMS' orthography after the Chinese characters.*

The Chinese works which I have consulted are the Chin-shên 搢紳 or "Chinese Red Book," which affords a complete list of the cities of China; the great Chinese Atlas published at Wu-ch'ang Fu and called the Ta-ch'ing Yi-t'ung Yü-t'u 大清壹統輿圖; my edition is dated 1863. The two works just mentioned have chiefly to do with the modern part of my materials. For the ancient, or historical portion, my authority has been the Li-tai Ti-li-chih 歷代地理志, an account of the political geography of China since the Han Dynasty, published in the winter of 1870-71. I have only made use of about one-fifth of the matter contained in the Seven Historical Volumes of this Chinese work, and am not therefore in a position to claim anything like completeness for the historical portions of the following pages. Had the entire contents of these Seven Volumes been utilised, the present work would have been more than doubled.

Among other works consulted, I may mention the Cyclopædia called the Yü-hai 玉海, which supplies many details about the geography of the ancient dynasties.

For the identifications of various cities in Turkestan and elsewhere to the West of China, I have to acknowledge my obligations to Dr. BRETSCHNEIDER'S able articles in the Chinese Recorder and in the Transactions of the North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.

Finally to Dr. E. J. EITEL Inspector of Schools, Hongkong, my best thanks are due for his care and attention in superintending the passage of this book through the press.

G. M. H. PLAYFAIR.

* Even in one or two cases retaining obvious printers' errors, as in the instance of Fan-chih District city Shansi, which on the map has been written Fün-chi, by error for Fan-chi.

OF

TERMS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

C. — Chou, 州, department; the division of a province ranking above a district and below a subprefecture; usually called San Chou, 散州, in contradistinction to the next. Under the T'ang dynasty a first-class Chou comprised 30,000 families or more; a second-class Chou, over 20,000 but under 30,000 families.

C. L. C. — Chih-li Chou, 直隸州, independent department; i. e., independent of a prefecture. This territorial division seems to be of modern institution; as also the following.

C. L. T. — Chih-li T'ing, 直隸廳, independent subprefecture; a division of a province ranking immediately after a prefecture and dependent directly on a circuit.

C. Wars. — Civil Wars; the historical period comprised between 481 and 255 B.C.

Chên — 鎮, now generally a market-town, though the name is also applied to the district under the command of a Brigade General or Chên-t'ai. Under the Kin dynasty the Chên seems to have been of greater importance than at the present day.

Chou — 州, the designation of the great divisions of the Empire usually ascribed to the Emperor Yü, and which are said to have been instituted after the Chinese Deluge. The Chou existed as a division until the T'ang dynasty, and represented the modern province.

Chün — 郡, As a territorial division the Chün varied under various dynasties from almost a province to a prefecture. As a general rule it may be taken to correspond pretty nearly to the prefecture of the present day. The word Chün is still used in the literary language as a synonym for Fu.

Circ. — Circuit, 道 or 路. These two Chinese characters were in use under various dynasties to denote essentially the same thing. Like most of the territorial divisions the circuit has varied greatly. Under the T'ang, it replaced the Chou, thus corresponding to a province, the character 道 being then in use. Under the Yüan the name 路 seems to have been given both to what represents the modern circuit and to the chief prefecture, or 首府, of that circuit. The modern circuit called 道, consists of one or
